

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. You can search through the full text of this book on the web at <http://books.google.com/>

Stanford University Libraries

3 6105 028 000 029

69

LELAND STANFORD JUNIOR UNIVERSITY

WORKS ISSUED BY

The Hakluyt Society.

THE COMMENTARIES OF THE GREAT AFONSO DALBOQUERQUE.

No. LXIX.

W
A
S
H
I
N
G
T
O
N

O
S
T
O
N

AFOSO DALBOQUERQUE

LIBRARY

9

HAKLUYT
THE
COMMENTARIES
OF THE GREAT
AFONSO DALBOQUERQUE,
SECOND VICEROY OF INDIA.

TRANSLATED FROM THE
PORTUGUESE EDITION OF 1774,
With Notes and an Introduction,
BY
WALTER DE GRAY BIRCH, F.S.A.,
A SENIOR ASSISTANT OF THE DEPARTMENT OF MANUSCRIPTS IN THE
BRITISH MUSEUM; HONORARY SECRETARY OF THE
BRITISH ARCHAEOLOGICAL ASSOCIATION, ETC.

VOL. IV.

"... Agora: pois que tendes apprendido Trabalhos que vos fação ser acceitos
As eternas esposas, e fermosas
Que coroas vos tecem gloriosas:
Podeis vos embarcar; que tendes vento
E mar tranquillo para a patria amada."
CAM. Lus., x, 142.

LONDON:
PRINTED FOR THE HAKLUYT SOCIETY.
M.DCCC.LXXXIV.

YRABU
SOMU. OROHAP OPA
YTRAVHU

137108

LONDON:

WHITING AND COMPANY, LIMITED, SARDINIA STREET, LINCOLN'S INN FIELDS.

910

H157

no 69

COUNCIL
OF
THE HAKLUYT SOCIETY.

---

COLONEL H. YULE, C.B., PRESIDENT.
MAJOR-GENERAL SIR HENRY RAWLINSON, K.C.B., VICE-PRESIDENT.
W. A. TYSSEN AMHERST, Esq., M.P.
REV. DR. G. P. BADGER, D.C.L.
WALTER DE GRAY BIRCH, Esq., F.S.A.
CAPTAIN LINDESAY BRINE, R.N.
E. H. BUNBURY, Esq.
THE EARL OF DUCIE, F.R.S.
SIR BARROW ELLIS, K.U.S.I.
LIEUT.-GENERAL SIR J. HENRY LEFROY, C.B., K.C.M.G.
R. H. MAJOR, Esq., F.S.A.
REAR-ADMIRAL MAYNE, C.B.
E. DELMAR MORGAN, Esq.
SIR CHARLES NICHOLSON, BART.
ADMIRAL SIR ERASMUS OMMANNEY, C.B., F.R.S.
LORD ARTHUR RUSSELL, M.P.
ADMIRAL SIR ALFRED RYDER, K.C.B.
THE LORD STANLEY OF ALDERLEY.
B. F. STEVENS, Esq.
EDWARD THOMAS, Esq., F.R.S.
LIEUT.-GEN. SIR HENRY THULLIER, C.S.I., F.R.S.
CLEMENS R. MARKHAM, C.B., F.R.S., HONORARY SECRETARY.

LIST OF CONTENTS.

	PAGE
PORTRAIT OF AFONSO DALBOQUERQUE, from Correa's Lendas da India . . . . .	Frontispiece
INTRODUCTION . . . . .	ix
CHRONOLOGY OF PART IV . . . . .	xxiii
—
TITLE TO THE EDITION OF 1774—PART IV . . . . .	xxvii
TITLES OF THE CHAPTERS CONTAINED IN THE FOURTH PART . . . . .	xxix
—
COMMENTARIES OF AFONSO DALBOQUERQUE—PART IV . . . . .	1-227
“Of the Situation of the City of Adem” . . . . .	10
VIEW OF ADEM, from Correa . . . . .	16
THE CROSS WHICH AFONSO DALBOQUERQUE SAW IN THE SKY, from the edition of 1774, part IV, p. 50 . . . . .	44
VIEW OF THE PORTUGUESE FORTRESS OF CALICUT, from Correa . . . . .	72
SHIELD OF ARMS OF THE LORDS OF CASTELLO DALBOQUERQUE, from the edition of 1774, part IV, p. 253 . . . . .	214
SHIELD OF ARMS OF AFONSO DALBOQUERQUE, from the title-pages of the edition of 1774 . . . . .	215

~ AFOSO DA LBOQVERQVE ~

INTRODUCTION.

---

Olhai que ledos vão por varias vias, Quaes rompentes leoens, e bravos touros,
Dando os corpos a fomes, e vigias,
A ferro, a fogo, a settas, e pilouros,
A quentes regioens, a plagas frias,
A golpes de idolatras, e de Mouros,
A perigos incognitos do mundo,
A naufragios, a peixes, ao profundo.

CAM. Lus., x, 147.

---

THE present volume contains the translation of the Fourth and last Part of the COMMENTARIES OF THE GREAT AFONSO DALBOQUERQUE, as written by his son. The interest in the career of the hero is sustained throughout, and a short summary of the principal events recorded herein may with propriety be introduced at this part of the work. The portrait which is placed as a frontispiece to this volume is a reduced photographic facsimile from that given in Correa's Lendas da India, at the place which treats of that period in the history of Portuguese India when the Lusitanian sceptre was practically swayed there by this great man. Its value as a contemporary portrait is undoubtedly great, and it may be compared with the portraits derived from other sources which have illustrated the previous volumes of this translation.

After setting affairs in order at Goa, under the chief captaincy of Pero Mascarenhas, Afonso Dalboquerque

† ADRIANUS VAN NERCKE †

LIBRARY
THE HAKLUYT SOCIETY
COMMENTARIES

OF THE GREAT

AFONSO DALBOQUERQUE,

SECOND VICEROY OF INDIA.

TRANSLATED FROM THE

PORTUGUESE EDITION OF 1774,

With Notes and an Introduction,

BY

WALTER DE GRAY BIRCH, F.S.A.,

A SENIOR ASSISTANT OF THE DEPARTMENT OF MANUSCRIPTS IN THE
BRITISH MUSEUM; HONORARY SECRETARY OF THE
BRITISH ARCHAEOLOGICAL ASSOCIATION, ETC.

VOL. IV.

".. Agora: pois que tendes apprendido
Trabalhos que vos fação ser acceitos
As eternas esposas, e fermosas
Que coroas vos tecam gloriosas:
Podeis vos embarcar; que tendes vento
E mar tranquillo para a patria amada."

CAM. Lus., x, 142.

LONDON:

PRINTED FOR THE HAKLUYT SOCIETY.

M.DCCC.LXXXIV.

mounted, to the ships again, after losing, among others, Jorge da Silveira, one of the captains, and Garcia de Sousa, another, the details of whose gallant fate are related more particularly at length. As the Portuguese retired, Mira Merjão endeavoured, from his position on the island of Cira, to harass them, and did so for a time ; but Dom Garcia de Noronha assaulted the tower on the island, and drove out the native forces. Shortly after this escalade, Afonso Dalboquerque received intelligence of a revolt at Cairo, the fears of the Sultan at the rumoured entry of the Portuguese into the Red Sea, and the doings of the Xequé Ismael.

Sending forward the small ship of Chaul, lately captured by João Gomez, the Portuguese commander set sail for the Straits of the Red Sea, and quickly sighted the large, lofty, and apparently barren island of Jebel-Zukur, and put in to a port on the Abyssinian side of the Red Sea, where he found some Arabs collecting slaves. These he rescued, and punished their captors in the customary barbarous manner then so frequently practised in that part of the world.

Here follows a chapter devoted to a description of the shores, winds, tides, and currents of the Red Sea, probably useful in the highest degree at the time when it was written, to those whose navigation led them into those treacherous waters. In the middle of this digression the author records two unaccomplished resolves of Afonso Dalboquerque—the diverting of the River Nile from Cairo, by piercing a range of hills, so as to throw the water into the land of Prester John ; and, secondly, the landing of a small body of horsemen on the Arab coast, so as by making a dash to get possession of the body of Mahomet.

Proceeding up the Red Sea, the Portuguese fleet stood off Luya, or Loheyyah Bay, where the flag-ship grounded, but after great exertion was fortunately floated off uninjured. The next day the fleet made its way in safety to Camarão, intending to proceed to Judá, or Djiddah, but the wind proved adverse; and during the forced delay a miraculous cross—an illustration of which is given from the Portuguese text—was seen in the heavens, not only by Afonso Dalboquerque, but by all who accompanied him. After a stay of two months—June and July, 1513—at Camarão, he weighed anchor and proceeded to Ras-Zebid, a watering-place on the Arabian coast, with the intention of inquiring after certain Portuguese captives wrecked in a brigantine commanded by Gregorio da Quadra. João Gomez, who had been sent to reconnoitre the pearl-fishery on the islands of Dalaca, or Dahalak, returned with unfavourable news of the refusal of the natives to trade with the Portuguese.

At this time Afonso Dalboquerque despatched a messenger overland, by way of Cairo, to the King of Portugal, carrying news of the doings of the Portuguese in India; and on the very day after the messenger set out, a miraculous ray of light, probably a shooting star or electric ball, fell down from the sky, to the dismay of the fleet and the terror of the natives.

The author of these Commentaries here introduces a relation of the wanderings of Gregorio da Quadra, whose vessel, a brigantine, in the fleet commanded by Duarte de Lemos, had broken away from her anchorage on a dark and stormy night off the coast of Melinde, the whole crew being taken prisoners next morning, opposite Adem, by the natives. The ruler of Adem appears to have been content to keep them in captivity, without exercising the cruel tortures upon them so frequently inflicted upon Europeans whose misfortune placed them in the power of Oriental princes at that time; and Gregorio da Quadra, becoming in course of time proficient in Arabic, made a stealthy visit to Medina, inspected the sepulchre of Mahomet, and after nearly perishing in the inhospitable deserts of Persia, finally reached Busrah, or Baçora, where he embarked for Ormuz, and there D. Garcia de Coutinho, the captain of the fortress, received him with great kindness. The wanderer at length returned to Lisbon, and became a Capuchin friar.

Leaving Camarão on the 15th July, A.D. 1513, the Portuguese commander explored the Island of Perim, in the Red Sea Straits, to which he gave the name of Ilha da Vera Cruz, and sending two vessels forward to Zeila—an expedition which bore no fruit, on account of the refusal of the natives to have any communication with the Portuguese—bore up opposite Adem, and lost no time in skirmishing with the natives, burning the shipping on the shore, and exchanging shots with forces in the towers along the beach. On the 4th of August 1513, Afonso Dalboquerque weighed anchor—abandoning for the time all further attempt to effect an entry into Adem—and ran in to Diu, where the native authorities received him with an apparent friendliness, which did not, however, deceive the Portuguese commander. From that point the voyage was continued to Chaul, whither Tristão Dega had just returned from his mission to Cambay. Setting forward again, he stopped for a short time at Dabul, where three ships under Lopo Vaz de Sampayo were left to blockade the port in order to compel the surrender of several native ships, which had left Calicut with produce against the commands of the Portuguese. By this and similar means every one of the native vessels that had left Calicut for the Straits fell into the hands of Afonso Dalboquerque, who at length reached Goa, where he was received with great joy by everyone.

Francisco Nogueira, who had been commissioned to build the Portuguese fortress at Calicut, about this time gave the commander an account of the abortive circumstances attending the building. I have been able to reproduce at p. 72 a contemporary view of the fortress from Correa's Lendas da India bearing the following inscription :—

“ O . REY . DE . CALEQVV . CÕ . TEMOR . QVE . OS . NOSSOS .
 TOMARIÃ . DELE . VINGANÇA . DA . MORTE . DO . MARICHAL . CÕ .
 MVITOS . ROGOS . AFONSO . DALBOQVERQVE . LHE . ASENTOV .
 PAZ . FAZENDO . ESTA . FORTELEZA . A . SVA . CVSTA . QVE . ESTEVE .
 EM . MVITA . PAZ . ATE . O . ANO . DE . 1525 . QVE . DÕ . JOAM .
 DE . LIMA . SENDO . CAPITAM . ALEVĀTOV . GERA . E . SE . DESFEZ .
 ESTA . FORTELEZA . EM . TENPO . DO . GOVERNADOR . DOM . ANRI-QVE . DE . MENESES . ”

The Portuguese commander was, however, determined to bring this important matter of establishing a powerful fortress on the West Coast of India to a successful issue, and sent forward his nephew, D. Garcia de Noronha, to Calicut, to interview the Çamorim, while he himself proceeded to Cochim, and after a stormy interview with the king, which showed him how little advantage he was likely to gain by negotiations, despatched secret instructions to a brother of the Çamorim of Calicut, advising him to poison the ruler, his brother, with a view to succeeding to his power. This was effected, and the new Çamorim, owing his elevation to the Portuguese (whose influence in this proceeding admits of no palliation), showed his gratitude by conceding a site for the Portuguese fortress, which was immediately commenced, in a position which commanded the entry into the port. This fortress, invaluable as it was in all respects to a nation whose policy was to hold the coast by means of superior military organisation, was not long destined to stand, for it was destroyed in 1525, by order of D. Anrique de Menezes, the governor, to prevent it falling into the hands of the natives.

Having thus carried out successfully an undertaking calculated to overawe the races on the coast of central India, Afonso Dalboquerque sailed away to Cananor, where he received news of the unsettled state of Cairo, Suez, the Red Sea, and the coast of Arabia and Northern India. Hereupon, Pero Dalboquerque was despatched to Cape Guardafum and Adem, to acquire more precise information of the proceedings of the Turks, who were reported to be organising an attack upon the Portuguese in India.

In December 1513, Afonso Dalboquerque sailed to Cochim, and sent Miguel Ferreira to the Xequé Ismael by way of Dabul; and, after making provision for refitting the Portuguese fleet, proceeded to Goa, whither he arrived in the beginning of January 1514. Miguel Ferreira arrived at Tauriz, and eventually reached the Xequé, who received him well, and sent him back with costly presents for Afonso Dalboquerque, and with a good impression of the Court of that potentate. The calamitous condition of the Portuguese at Malaca, reported to Afonso Dalboquerque at Goa by Manuel Fragoso, the Portuguese envoy to the Court of Siam, demanded immediate succour, which was at once sent, and arrived out just in time to reinforce the fort. The little garrison was in hourly expectation of attack by a large fleet of ninety junks, carrying 10,000 men, that arrived off the fortress a few days later; but, overawed by the three large Portuguese vessels that lay off the shore, the enemy drew off, and suffered considerable loss at the hands of Fernão Perez Dandrade, who fell upon them as they fled. To the Court of Cambay, Diogo Fernandez de Béja and James Teixeira were sent, with instructions to obtain a site for a fortress in Diu. This expedition, which, like the others, was unsuccessful, is related at considerable length in the Commentaries.

Pero Dalboquerque, in pursuance of the instructions he had received, cruized about off Socotra for the summer, and at the end of May bore away for Ormuz, where he was visited by the king, and after in vain attempting to recover possession of the fortress by negotiations, landed some merchandise under charge of two factors, and sailed into the Persian Gulf in July, explored it as far as Barm Island, returned to Ormuz on the home voyage (to India) in August. His endeavours to obtain the payment of tribute by the king were ineffectual; he therefore sailed away, after embarking his factors and merchandise, and reached Goa on the 28th of September 1514.

The account of the condition of Ormuz which Pero Dalboquerque was enabled to lay before his uncle Afonso Dalboquerque, incited the Portuguese commander to make his way thither with a fleet without losing any time; and after receiving visits of diplomatic importance from the ambassadors of the King of Narsinga, who desired to enter into an alliance with the Portuguese to attack the Hidalcão (a matter put off for the time by Afonso Dalboquerque), and from the Hidalcão on his own behalf, who was desirous of maintaining peaceful relations with the Portuguese, he summoned Jorge Dalboquerque from Cochim, and sent him on to Malaca with four vessels and two hundred men, to relieve that distant colony. Thus, intending to winter at Ormuz, four galleys were to be built and sent on to him at that port, with a view to their taking part in the intended expedition, during the ensuing summer, to Adem and the Red Sea Straits.

On the 25th of February 1515, a council was held at Goa by the captains of the twenty-six vessels composing the Portuguese fleet, having on board fifteen hundred Portuguese and seven hundred Malabarese. At this meeting Afonso Dalboquerque unfolded the Portuguese policy, and, after some opposition on the part of the captains, it was decided to sail to Ormuz and establish themselves in that city. On Ash Wednesday, the 21st of February, the fleet sailed out of Goa harbour, and on the 25th of March drew up opposite Curiate, on the Arabian side of the Gulf, and proceeding along the coast, anchored off Mascate, where news was obtained of the condition of the city of Ormuz, the king of which had been virtually a prisoner for the last two months in the hands of Reys Hamed, a Persian Moor.

Sailing away in a direct course, the Portuguese fleet arrived safely opposite Ormuz, where Miguel Ferreira, on his return from the embassy to the Xequé Ismael, rejoined the ships and gave Afonso Dalboquerque a detailed account of his journey. The intrigue of Reys Hamed, which appeared likely to become successful, was more than counterbalanced by the astuteness of the Portuguese governor-general, who brought about the deliverance of the king and his chief councillor REXNORDIM, or Reys Nordim, by the assassination of the rebellious Reys Hamed, to whom the success of the Portuguese in getting possession of the fortress of Ormuz, on the 31st March, or 1st April, 1515, was especially galling, as interfering with his intention of usurping the royal authority in that city.

The reception of the ambassador from the Xequé Ismael in Ormuz was conducted by Afonso Dalboquerque with great pomp and magnificent ceremonies, which delighted the Oriental mind, to which such things are dear; and it was no doubt calculated to impress upon the king and the inhabitants of Ormuz the importance of the Portuguese influence in that part of the world. The author of the Commentaries gives a long and detailed description of these proceedings. The disarming of the inhabitants of Ormuz, and the prompt seizure of an opportunity which arose for getting possession of the enemy's artillery, were master-strokes of policy, and tended effectually towards the preservation of that territory in Portuguese hands. The inhuman treatment of the runaway Portuguese, who were burned in a boat in the principal square of Ormuz, cannot be defended. It is a typical instance of Oriental cruelty—and other instances will be met with by the reader of these Commentaries—probably instigated in this case by the desire on the part of Afonso Dalboquerque to make a terrible example of those who proved traitors at a time when the utmost peril would have been brought upon the whole body if any serious defection had arisen. The settlement of affairs at Ormuz; the despatching of Fernão Gomez de Lemos to the Court of the Xequé Ismael with terms of a treaty; the departure of D. Garcia de Noronha for Portugal; the reception of several native envoys; and the building of the Portuguese fortress, are among the most notable events successively chronicled in these Commentaries immediately previous to the supervention of the illness to which the great commander succumbed. Appointing Nicoláo Ferreira to keep guard over the King of Ormuz, and Pero Dalboquerque, his nephew, to be governor of the newly erected fortress, Afonso Dalboquerque sailed away, dangerously ill, in the Flor da Rosa, captained by Diogo Fernandez de Béja, on the 8th of November 1515. The disorder with which he was afflicted was aggravated by the report which reached him of the appointment of Lopo Soarez de Albergaria in his stead by the King of Portugal. On Sunday, the 16th of December, he died on shipboard at anchor off the bar of Goa, to the extreme grief of the inhabitants of Goa, who, indeed, owed their all to his bravery and forethought. The work ends appropriately with an account of the funeral obsequies; the text of the king's letter to Lopo Soarez, limiting that governor's powers in India, and continuing Afonso Dalboquerque in his office, with the exception of the fortresses of Cochim, Calicut, and Malaca, which were placed under Lopo Soarez absolutely; a well-written panegyric upon the character and achievements of the dead hero, including a review of the condition of India at the time of his death; an account of the circumstances attending the translation of the remains of Afonso Dalboquerque to the Chapel of Our Lady of Grace, at Lisbon, in April, and their final sepulture in May 1566; and a summary of the pedigree of the family, derived from Dom Dinis, King of Portugal, and Dom Sancho, King of Castile.

The Appendix will be found to contain some important information of little known Portuguese-Indian places and fortresses, as well as other matters relating to the text of the Commentaries.

The Index which has been compiled for the four volumes will be found useful as containing a variety of references not usually, perhaps, placed in an Index. The references to names of persons are under the Christian name or first name—a plan laudably adopted by many authors, and notably so by Barbosa Machado in his Bibliotheca Lusitana.

---

CHRONOLOGY OF PART IV.

---

PAGE	A.D.
1.	Afonso Dalboquerque sets sail with a fleet for Goa . . . . . 7 Feb. 1513
8.	Stands in to Adem Harbour . Good Friday [25 Mar. 1513]
10.	Prepares to attack Adem . . . . . Easter Eve [26 March 1513]
45.	Lies off Camarão, in the Red Sea, with his fleet during . . . . . June and July 1513
54.	Sails for Camarão to Perim Island, en route for Adem . . . . . 15 July 1513
58.	Leaves Adem and proceeds to Diu . . . . . 4 Aug. 1513
80.	Sails to Cochim . . . . . December 1513
89.	Reaches Goa . . . . . Beginning of January 1514
109.	Pero Dalboquerque cruizes off Socotra . In the Summer 1514
109.	Pero Dalboquerque visits Ormuz . . . . . End of May 1514
114.	Pero Dalboquerque sails to explore the Red Sea . . . . . 7 July 1514
115.	Pero Dalboquerque returns to Ormuz . . . . . 6 Aug. 1514
118.	And arrives at Goa . . . . . 28 Sept. 1514
133.	Afonso Dalboquerque embarks on board the fleet at Goa for Ormuz . . . . . 20 Feb. 1515
136.	Sails for Ormuz . . . . . 21 Feb. 1515

136. Stands off Curiate . . . . . 25 March 1515
147. Takes possession of the fortress of Ormuz 31 March or 1 April 1515
179. D. Garcia de Noronha sails from Ormuz for Lisbon . . . . . 29 Aug. 1515 188. Afonso Dalboquerque informs the captains of his illness . . . . . 26 Sept. 1515
192. Sails from Ormuz for Goa . . . . . 8 Nov. 1515
196. Arrives off Goa . . . . . 15 Dec. 1515
196. His death . . . . . 16 Dec. 1515
200. Letter from the King of Portugal to Lopo Soarez . . . . . 20 March 1516 211. Remains of Afonso Dalboquerque conveyed to Lisbon . . . . . 6 April 1566 211. Their burial . . . . . 19 May 1566
-

COMMENTARIES
OF THE
GREAT AFONSO DALBOQUERQUE.

VOL. IV.

d

COMMENTARIES
OF THE GREAT
AFONSO
DALBOQUERQUE,
WHO WAS
CAPTAIN-GENERAL OF THE EAST INDIES
IN THE TIME OF THE VERY POWERFUL KING D. MANUEL,
THE FIRST OF THIS NAME

PART IV.

OSBON:
PRINTING OFFICE,
[MCCCLXXIV]

London and New York

TITLES

OF THE

CHAPTERS CONTAINED IN THIS FOURTH PART.

---

WHEREIN IS CONTAINED HOW THE GREAT AFONSO DALBOQUERQUE
ENTERED THE STRAITS OF THE RED SEA, AND WHAT PASSED
AFTER HIS RETURN TO INDIA, AND WHAT HE DID IN THE
SECOND TAKING OF THE KINGDOM OF ORMUZ, AND HOW HE DIED, AND WHOSE SON HE WAS.

---

CHAPTER I.

How, after making his fleet ready, he took counsel with his captains and pilots respecting the voyage: and how it was determined to enter the straits of the Red Sea, and what passed in the course until they reached Adem . . . . . 1

CHAPTER II.

How the great Afonso Dalboquerque set sail from Çacotorá, and reached Adem; and the reason why he did not immediately attack the city as he had intended, and the rest that took place . . . . . 6

CHAPTER III.

How the great Afonso Dalboquerque attacked the city of Adem, and what passed in this first attack . . . . . 14

CHAPTER IV.

How Jorge da Silveira, with some Fidalgoes who were on the wall, leaped down inside and went to attack the Moors; and the rest that took place . . . . . 19

CHAPTER V.

- How the great Afonso Dalboquerque, after having collected all his forces together, and made ready to embark, commanded D. Garcia to capture the artillery placed in the Island of Cira, with which the Moors were firing upon him . . . 22

CHAPTER VI.

- How the great Afonso Dalboquerque set out from the harbour of Adem with his fleet, and made sail direct for the Straits . . . 26

CHAPTER VII.

- Description of the lands adjacent to the harbours of the Red Sea Straits inwards . . . . . 28

CHAPTER VIII.

- How the great Afonso Dalboquerque set out from that harbour for Camaráo, and how he was like to have been wrecked on the way . . . . . 40

CHAPTER IX.

- How the great Afonso Dalboquerque determined to set sail from that place to Judá, and what happened on the way; and of the sign which he beheld in the heavens . . . . . 43

CHAPTER X.

- How Gregorio da Quadra and the others, his companions, who were captive in the power of the King of Adem, escaped from their captivity; and what he went through until his arrival at this kingdom of Portugal . . . . . 49

CHAPTER XI.

- How the great Afonso Dalboquerque set sail out of the harbour of Camaráo for India, and what took place on the voyage . . . 54

CHAPTER XII.

- How the great Afonso Dalboquerque set sail from the harbour of Adem for India; and of what passed in the way until his arrival at the city of Goa . . . . . 58

CHAPTER XIII.

- How Francisco Nogueira gave an account to the great Afonso Dalboquerque of all that had taken place with the Çamorim respecting the erection of the fortress; and of the council which he held with the captain relating to this, and of what was decided upon . . . . . 63

CHAPTER XIV.

How the great Afonso Dalboquerque set sail for Cochim, and sent D. Garcia de Noronha to Calicut to settle the terms of peace; and what passed with the King of Cochim on this matter . . . . . 67

CHAPTER XV.

How D. Garcia de Noronha sent a despatch to the great Afonso Dalboquerque of what had passed with the Çamorim, and what was done in consequence of this; and how he went to Calicut and built a fortress therein . . . . . 71

CHAPTER XVI.

How the great Afonso Dalboquerque set sail for Calicut, and proceeded to Cananor: the news which Fernão Martinz Evangelho wrote to him from Diu: how he sent Pero Dalboquerque with a fleet to explore the Persian Straits, and the rest which took place . . . . . 75

CHAPTER XVII.

Proceedings of the great Afonso Dalboquerque with the Alguazil of Cananor concerning certain things which he did prejudicial to the service of the King of Portugal; and how he set sail for Cochim; and of the message which the ambassador of the Xequé Ismael, who was in Dabul, sent to him: and how Miguel Ferreira was sent in company with this ambassador, on an embassy to the Xequé Ismael . . . . . 78

CHAPTER XVIII.

Of the ambassadors whom the Xequé Ismael sent to the King of Cambay, and to the Hidalcão; and of the origin of their embassies . . . . . 82

CHAPTER XIX.

How Miguel Ferreira, who went as ambassador to the Xequé Ismael, arrived at Tauriz, and of the reception which he experienced, and of what took place until his return to Ormuz . . . . . 86

CHAPTER XX.

How the great Afonso Dalboquerque reached Goa; and of the news which reached him from Malaca, and the succour he sent thither; and how Fernão Perez Dandrade gained a victory over the Javanese fleet . . . . . 89

CHAPTER XXI.

- How the great Afonso Dalboquerque sent Diogo Fernandez de Béja and James Teixeira as ambassadors to the King of Cambay: and how they arrived at Çurrate, and set out from that place to the King's Court . . . . . 93

CHAPTER XXII.

- How Diogo Fernandez de Béja and James Teixeira reached Madoval, and the reception which they experienced there; and what passed with Çodamacão, Chief Alguazil of the King of Cambay, in reference to dispatching them . . . . . 98

CHAPTER XXIII.

- How Diogo Fernandez and James Teixeira took their leave of the King of Cambay, and journeyed away: and what passed until their arrival at Goa . . . . . 104

CHAPTER XXIV.

- How Pero Dalboquerque fared on his voyage to Cape Guardafum; and how the King of Ormuz came to visit him . . . . . 108

CHAPTER XXV.

- How Pero Dalboquerque, seeing that the King of Ormuz would not give him the fortress, nor a site for building another, sent to beg for a house wherein he could discharge his cargo; and then sailed away to explore the straits of the Persian Sea . . . . . 112

CHAPTER XXVI.

- How Pero Dalboquerque again endeavoured to compel the king to pay the tribute, and what passed upon this matter with him; and how he set sail for India and arrived at Goa . . . . . 116

CHAPTER XXVII.

- Of the arrival of the ambassador of the King of Narsinga, and of the reception which the great Afonso Dalboquerque gave him; and how he sent him back with a despatch, sending in company with him Antonio de Sousa and João Teixeira to settle the business for which he had come . . . . . 121

CHAPTER XXVIII.

- How, after the departure of the ambassador of the King of Narsinga, another ambassador came from the Hoidalção to treat for peace and the trade in horses, and yet another from the Hoidalção's mother, who came to hasten forward the matter: and what Afonso Dalboquerque did thereupon . . . . . 125

CHAPTER XXIX.

How D. Garcia arrived at Goa with the vessels which he had caused to be refitted at Cochim; and how the great Afonso Dalboquerque made his fleet ready to set sail, and sent away Jorge Dalboquerque to be captain of Malaca, and what happened on the voyage . . . . . 129

CHAPTER XXX.

Of the council which the great Afonso Dalboquerque held concerning the voyage he should make; and how it was decided that he should go to Ormuz; and of the news which reached him when he arrived at Mascate . . . . . 132

CHAPTER XXXI.

How the great Afonso Dalboquerque set out from Mascate and reached Ormuz; and of the messages which he sent to the king, and of the rest which took place . . . . . 137

CHAPTER XXXII.

How the King of Ormuz sent Reys Nordim to parley with the great Afonso Dalboquerque concerning the surrender of the fortress; and of what took place about this matter . . . . . 143

CHAPTER XXXIII.

How Reys Nordim sent, through Alexandre de Ataíde the interpreter, an account of the intrigue of Reys Hamed, and of what passed thereupon . . . . . 147

CHAPTER XXXIV.

How the ambassador of the Xequé Ismael went to pay a visit to the great Afonso Dalboquerque; and of the reception which he met with; and of the events which took place thereafter . . . . . 150

CHAPTER XXXV.

How the great Afonso Dalboquerque related to the captains all that had taken place with Reys Nordim, and the condition in which the king's affairs stood, and what was determined upon concerning this: and how the king came to pay him a visit at the fortress, and Reys Hamed was killed . . . . . 154

CHAPTER XXXVI.

How Reys Mudafar and his brother, on hearing of Reys Hamed's death, set out with all their host to attack the king's palace, and fortified themselves therein; and of what further happened . . . . . 160

CHAPTER XXXVII.

- How the King of Ormuz again paid a visit to the great Afonso Dalboquerque in the fortress, and what passed between them ; and the punishment which was visited upon seven Portuguese who fled away to the Moors . . . . . 163

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

- Of the message which the great Afonso Dalboquerque sent to the king concerning the forces of Reys Hamed ; and of certain other matters which were ordained for the security of the kingdom ; and how Abraham Beque, captain of the Xequé Ismael, returned to his own land . . . . . 167

CHAPTER XXXIX.

- How the great Afonso Dalboquerque, on account of the news which he received concerning the coming of the Rumes, sent to beg the king to lend him his artillery, and what passed thereupon ; and how, after having obtained possession of it, he paid the king a visit in his house . . . . . 171

CHAPTER XL.

- How the great Afonso Dalboquerque despatched the ambassador of the Xequé Ismael, and sent Fernão Gomez de Lemos to go in his company ; and the present which was sent to that prince through him . . . . . 175

CHAPTER XLI.

- How the kings of all parts sent their ambassadors to visit the great Afonso Dalboquerque ; and how D. Garcia de Noronha begged permission to return to the kingdom of Portugal, and the rest that happened . . . . . 178

CHAPTER XLII.

- How a captain of the Xequé Ismael came to Ormuz to see the great Afonso Dalboquerque, and the news which he gave him, and the rest that took place . . . . . 181

CHAPTER XLIII.

- Of the situation of the city of Ormuz and of its commerce . . . . . 185

CHAPTER XLIV.

- How the great Afonso Dalboquerque, on account of his illness, held a conversation with the captains with regard to the succession in case of his death ; and what was agreed upon on this behalf, and how he sailed away to India . . . . . 188

CHAPTER XLV.

How the great Afonso Dalboquerque, by means of a war-boat which he captured on the way coming from Diu, learned that Lopo Soares had come as Governor of India; and how he died on reaching the bar of Goa . . . . . 193

CHAPTER XLVI.

How the body of the great Afonso Dalboquerque was carried to burial in his chapel, and the great mourning which was made for him; and of his life and manners . . . . . 197

CHAPTER XLVII.

How the king D. Manuel repented of having ordered the return of Afonso Dalboquerque from India, and sent word that he was not to come back; and of the letter which he wrote thereupon to Lopo Soares, the Governor of India . . . . . 200

CHAPTER XLVIII.

The state in which the great Afonso Dalboquerque left India at the time of his death . . . . . 204

CHAPTER XLIX.

How the bones of the great Afonso Dalboquerque were conveyed to Portugal: and how they were carried to [the church of] Our Lady of Grace . . . . . 209

CHAPTER L.

Of the pedigree of this excellent Captain Afonso Dalboquerque, his origin and parentage, and an account of the way in which he spent his youth, until his first voyage to India . . . . . 213

PART IV.

---

WHEREIN IS CONTAINED HOW THE GREAT AFONSO DALBOQUERQUE
ENTERED THE STRAITS OF THE RED SEA, AND WHAT PASSED
AFTER HIS RETURN TO INDIA, AND WHAT HE DID IN THE
SECOND TAKING OF THE KINGDOM OF ORMUZ, AND HOW HE DIED, AND WHOSE SON HE WAS.

---

CHAPTER I.

How, after making his fleet ready, he took counsel with his captains and pilots respecting the voyage : and how it was determined to enter the straits of the Red Sea, and what passed in the course until they reached Adem.

AFTER the great Afonso Dalboquerque had agreed with the Captains and Fidalgoes of India concerning the affairs of Goa, and had writtten to the King D. Manuel explaining his opinions in that matter, he sent Jorge Dalboquerque, as Captain, to Cochim ; for Pero Mascarenhas, who at this time held that office, was to remain in Goa as Captain, as I have related ; and when this had been arranged he proceeded to embark on the seventh of February, in the year [fifteen hundred and] thirteen, and ordered the captains and men to assemble in their ships, to the number of about one thousand seven hundred Portuguese and eight hundred Malabars and Canarese in all.

And after that all had embarked, the whole fleet being now outside the bar of Goa, before sails were set he caused all the captains to be summoned to a meeting. These were:—

Feb 7 1513

D. Garcia de Noronha,
 Pero Dalboquerque,
 Lopo Vaz de Sampaio,
 Garcia de Sousa,
 D. João de Sá,
 Jorge da Silveira,
 D. João de Lima,
 Manuel de Lacerda,
 Diogo Fernandez de Bejá, Captain of Afonso Dalbo-querce's ship
 Simão Dandrade,
 Aires da Silva,
 Duarte de Mélo,
 Gonçalo Pereira,
 Fernão Gomez de Lemos,
 Pero de Afonseca de Castro,
 Ruy Galvão,
 Jeronymo de Sousa,
 Simão Velho,
 Antonio Raposo, and João Gomez, Captain of the caravela.

And when they had all assembled together he declared to them that the King D. Manuel, his lord, in every letter which he had written, made it a very great point that he should endeavour to capture Adem and make his way into the straits of the Red Sea; and that now, in letters brought by D. Garcia, his nephew, there present among them, this matter was still further insisted upon; but for some proper precautions which he had taken, he had as yet given them no explanation of his determination, as well also because now that the course of their proceedings had been arranged and decided by His Highness, it was no part of their duty to put to the vote whether they should act upon their orders or not, unless it should so happen that so much opposition should be shown to the orders that he would be compelled to adopt another plan. Therefore, he would beg them of their goodness if they had any objections to urge, to the end that it would not be to the service of the King to undertake the proposed expedition, to state them to him. And after much debate had ensued, it was unanimously agreed that Afonso Dalboquerque must make an entry into the straits, seeing that now the affairs of India afforded him an opportunity of effecting it.

When the council meeting was over, every one rejoined his ship, and on the morrow morning Afonso Dalboquerque ordered a gun to be fired as a signal for setting sail, and all anchors were weighed, and thus, with a favourable wind for a good voyage, they shaped their course direct to the Cape of Guardafum;<sup>1</sup> but, in the Gulf, the winds were so boisterous, that they lost more time than could have been anticipated by any one for that voyage, and this caused the store of water to run out; and because there was no watering place at the Cape of Guardafum for so many ships, and it seemed likely that, if delay of some days should arise on account of taking in water, the Moors of Adem might obtain information of the arrival of the Portuguese fleet, Afonso Dalboquerque ordered the whole fleet to stand in to Çacotorá,<sup>2</sup> and anchors were cast in the port of Çoco,<sup>3</sup> where our fortress used to stand. In this place, there were already about fifty Fartaquins,<sup>4</sup> who had begun to repair it, but as they had not yet any means of defending it, as soon as they saw the fleet they all fled to the mountain range opposite Calaceá,<sup>5</sup> which is a port

<sup>1</sup> See vol. i, p. 80.

<sup>2</sup> See vol. i, p. 19.

<sup>3</sup> Sák, on the N. coast in Tamarida Bay.

<sup>4</sup> See vol. i, p. 58.

<sup>5</sup> Ghubbet Gollonsier, i.e., Gollonsir Bay, at the N.W. corner of the island. Col. Yule calls this place Colesseeah, and sees in it a resemblance to Ecclesia.—Marco Polo, 2nd edit., ii, 402.

situated on the other side of the island. But the native Christians came down to parley with Afonso Dalboquerque, and he ordered a present to be given to them of some cloths and rice, and all the houses belonging to the Moors to be thrown down, and set on fire everything they possessed therein.

As soon as this had been done, Afonso Dalboquerque ordered the whole fleet to take in water, and sent João Gomes to cruise along the coast in his caravela, round the island as far as Calaceá, for he was in fear lest there might be there some barque belonging to the Fartaquins, or some Moorish vessel, watering; which, when it passed over from the other side for Fartaque and Dofar,<sup>1</sup> would carry intelligence of the coming of the Portuguese. João Gomes searched all the island, and entered the port, without finding a single barque or vessel, and then set out to return, but as the winds were easterly, and contrary for returning to the port of Çoco, where our fleet had remained, he was compelled to tack, and, while he was tacking out to sea, he fell in with a ship which was on its way to the straits, and took possession of her and brought her along with him. But as she came from Chaul, with which we were at peace, and brought no spices, although there was no safe conduct among the ship's papers, Afonso Dalboquerque would not take anything out of her, but brought her in his company, in order to avail himself of the pilot in that voyage, for there was not one with him who knew the coast.

After that João Gomez had thus returned, the whole fleet having already laid in a supply of water, Afonso Dalboquerque, before setting out, discussed with all his Captains, Fidalgoes, and Cavaliers of the fleet, the manner in which they should proceed to attack the city of Adem. In this debate various different opinions were delivered.

<sup>1</sup> See vol. i, p. 58.

For the greater number of voices declared that on reaching the city they ought to parley with the Moors before making any attack upon it, demanding to know whether they were willing to stand in obedience and service of the King of Portugal: on the other part, others declared that without holding any further communication, they ought to attack the city.

Afonso Dalboquerque was of the latter opinion, for he said, that in important undertakings, which, like this city of Adem, had help so close at hand, it was not fitting, when they were at the crisis, to be taking counsel as to what they must do, but rather to make up their minds thoroughly to attack it; for to wish to negotiate with the inhabitants was the same as giving them time to get themselves into a better condition of defence than they now were in, and opportunity for help to come to them from some other quarter, if any necessity for succour should arise; and if only the inhabitants were suffered to equip themselves for defence, then the Portuguese would have to run the risk of their lives, and put out their whole strength; therefore his opinion was that as soon as they reached Adem, without holding any further communication with the Moors (provided nothing untoward should arise), to attack the city at once, for the best advice he could give them was to forestall events which might happen, and not in the midst of peril be seeking for a remedy; for the Moors of that land would not pay tribute in consequence of philosophical arguments, but only after much blood had been spilt among them. And every one agreed with him in his opinion.

---

CHAPTER II.

How the great Afonso Dalboquerque set sail from Çacotorá, and reached Adem; and the reason why he did not immediately attack the city as he had intended, and the rest that took place.

As soon as this debate was over, the great Afonso Dalboquerque gave orders that all the fleet should set sail direct to Adem; and because the wind began to drop, all proceeded to warp in as much as possible, in order to get well in under the lee of the Cape of Guardafum, which lay to the windward of the fleet; for from that point, no matter from which direction the wind came, they would have it in their power to make the mouth of the straits, and notwithstanding that they altered their course from one rhumb-line to another, yet they touched in shore at a place to the leeward of Abedalcuria,<sup>1</sup> and from that point onward sounded the coast as they proceeded along it, with the intention of crossing over from Mete<sup>2</sup> to Adem. But inasmuch as the currents were contrary to the wind, and the sea ran high, our fleet experienced great difficulty for the space of three days, so that all the catars, which hung at the prows of the ships for use when the fleet had entered the straits, were lost. And when the pilots made out their position to be ten leagues from Mete, they determined to cross over to Adem. But because if once they missed the port they could not make it again on account of the easterly winds, they ordered the fleet to steer a north-westerly course, so as to be continually to the leeward, and with this course they held on all that day and night, under very little sail, and when dawn broke they were between Canacani<sup>1</sup> and a mountain range called Arzina<sup>2</sup> and on that day they made their way along the coast. But when night fell, Afonso Dalboquerque, not wishing to pass the port of Adem, ordered signal to be made for all the fleet to stop; and all the vessels lay to under bare poles until morning, when they made sail again, and at sun-down they came in sight of Adem. And as they were not acquainted with the land, and the fleet was very large, and the ships might dash one against another if they anchored, every one was of opinion that it would be well not to try and enter the port in the night, but to lay out cables with the intention of remaining in their present position for that night. And being thus minded, Pero Dalboquerque came in his boat to the ship of Afonso Dalboquerque and told him how he had found a bottom in thirty-five fathoms. On receipt of this intelligence which Pero Dalboquerque had given him, he ordered a signal to be made to the ships to weigh anchor, and with sounding<sup>3</sup> and leads<sup>4</sup> in their hands they made their way through that reef until the lead showed fourteen fathoms, very close in to the harbour of Adem. The Moors, who had already for some time had our fleet in view from a very high ridge of mountains which overlooks the whole of that sea, made fires to entice it upon a point of land which is just opposite the straits after passing Adem, thinking that our men would steer their course toward the fires, because if they had once made their way to that side they could not make the harbour again as long as the east wind blew.

<sup>1</sup> See vol. i, p. 188.

<sup>2</sup> Mete. This is the present course. — Vessels bound to Aden should in the N.W. monsoon stand by along the Somali coast until off Mozambique when they should stand off from it for the Arabian coast. — See vol. i, p. 188, n. 12.

But Afonso Dalboquerque, with his accustomed caution,

<sup>1</sup> Called the Islands of Canicani, on the Arabian coast, N.W. of Socotra, and N.E. of Aden, in Barretto de Resende's Map. See vol. i, p. 80.

<sup>2</sup> Darsina, between Aden and Canicani Islands on the same map.

<sup>3</sup> Traquetes.

<sup>4</sup> Prumos, i.e., Plumbos.

fearing for some unexpected event, ordered the whole fleet to come to anchor, and remained there thus at anchor during the whole of that night. On the following day, in the morning, which was Good Friday,<sup>1</sup> they set sail and started with intention of anchoring in the eastern harbour, but as there were many Moorish vessels already lying in the harbour, so as to occupy the whole space, our vessels remained a little way off outside.

Our men, however, being all under arms, and apparelled in all respects for disembarking, in accordance with the arrangements already concerted, desired to lose no time in getting to land, and falling upon the city. And although Afonso Dalboquerque was very desirous of gratifying their wishes, because it was Good Friday, the day of the Passion of our Lord Jesus Christ, to whom he was very devoted, and in whom he reposed all his hopes, yet seeing that the necessity of the situation somewhat altered his plans, he desired rather to insure the safety of the fleet and place the vessels where they would not be one in another's way, and strengthen their cables, with the end that if any very fierce wind should suddenly arise, no untoward event should take place; and so indeed it fell out, for after the ships had cast anchor, the east wind blew so fiercely that some of his ships had to lay out three, and others four cables.

After the burst of wind had passed over, Mira Merjão, Governor of the city, sent a message to Afonso Dalboquerque, by a Moor of Cananor who was in Adem, asking what it was that he wanted, and what it was that he had come to seek for with that fleet? Afonso Dalboquerque replied the Captain-General of the King D. Manuel, gal and Lord of the Indies, that he had been Judá<sup>2</sup> in pursuit of the Rumes,<sup>3</sup> and not find-
.e, had determined to go to Suez to discover

ra de Endoenças.
ii, p. 60.

<sup>2</sup> See vol. i, p. 234.

if the report was true that the Sultan of Cairo was daring to fit out a fleet against the power of the king his lord.

The Moor returned to land with this reply, and Mira Merjão sent him back immediately with a present of fowls, sheep, lemons, and oranges, and sent with him a message that the city of Adem was the King of Portugal's, and everything that king wished or ordered concerning it should be carried out. Afonso Dalboquerque replied to this, that it was not his practice to receive presents from lords with whom he was not in a settled state of peace, let him therefore look to his own words, for he would accept the presents on that condition only; and the Moor was told to declare to Mira Merjão that inasmuch as he was willing to be in obedience to the king his lord, he must give orders for opening the gates of the city, and must receive the Portuguese flag and soldiers in the same; and as for the Moorish merchants whose ships were there, he (Afonso) would grant them safe-conduct, and they must apply to him for the permission. Afonso Dalboquerque did this with the object of drawing these merchant ships out of the city, so as to have fewer enemies arrayed against him.

When Mira Merjão perceived by this last communication from Afonso Dalboquerque, that he liked deeds better than words, he sent him a message by two of the principal Moors of the city, that he (Mira) was the servant of the Xequê, lord of all that land, and had no permission to allow the Portuguese to enter within the city; but if he desired anything further let him come and discuss the matter at the water's edge with twenty men, and he on his part would bring the same number of men to the interview. Afonso Dalboquerque replied that he begged to be excused from taking part in any meeting between them in any other place except within the city. The two Moors thereupon returned, bearing this reply, and no further intercourse transpired, neither did the merchants take care to come and get safe-conduct for their ships, and upon this matter there was no more correspondence nor counsel. And because on account of the want of the caturs which were lost on the voyage, Afonso Dalboquerque was not provided with the means of disembarking the men so rapidly as was necessary, he ordered the ships to collect together some large barges<sup>1</sup> that drew very little water, which were used by the Moors there in the lading and unloading of their vessels, with the intention of attacking the city on the following morning before daybreak, which was Easter Eve.<sup>2</sup>

OF THE SITUATION OF THE CITY OF ADEM.

Adem<sup>3</sup> is a city seated on the coast of Arabia in twelve and a half degrees of north latitude. Its circuit would be greater than that of the city of Evora, but the population is not so great. It contains very beautiful houses, very lofty, all made of stone and mortar. The city is situated at the foot of a very lofty mountain range, and along the road at the summit<sup>4</sup> there are many castles and towers, which seems to be a thing made more for the sake of beautiful appearances than profitable for defence.

The city lies in the mouth and fairway of the straits of the Red Sea, and close alongside of it there pass by the ships which set sail from India to the straits in the months of November, December, January, February; but those which set out in the month of March hug the coast of the Cape of Guardafum and keep always in sight of the land of Barboru<sup>5</sup> and Zeila,<sup>6</sup> but do not catch sight of Adem, for at that season of the year the west winds already begin

<sup>1</sup> Barçasas.

<sup>2</sup> Easter Eve in A.D. 1513 fell on March 26th.

<sup>3</sup> See Appendix. The best chart of Aden that I have seen is that of Commander Haines.

<sup>4</sup> Comiada.

<sup>5</sup> See vol. i, p. 58.

<sup>6</sup> See vol. i, p. 58.

to blow. This city is stronger on the side of the land than on that of the sea. There are two places where an entry may be effected. From this mountain range which overlooks the city comes a wall of very steep ascent,<sup>1</sup> reaching down to where the sea touches the city wall, which would be about the same length as in Lisbon from the Golden Gate to the gates of the dockyard. And this wall lies opposite to the harbour which the Moors call Focate,<sup>2</sup> which is the road whither all the ships proceed to lie at anchor, and there are two towers there with a bastion, wherein the Moors had artillery and a catapult.<sup>3</sup> In this harbour lies a little island of sharp rock, with not a green blade of grass upon it, separated from the city, and this the Moors call Cira;<sup>4</sup> the which has a mole or mass of wall crossing the harbour and sheltering the ships under it from the east wind, which, when it comes, is so furious that they suffer greatly from its effects. And at the head of this mole they have a tower and a bastion, both very strong.

When Afonso Dalboquerque returned hither after his coming from the straits he found this island surrounded with a wall with many towers made in it, that Mira Merjão had caused to be made, fearing lest our men should take it, and fortify themselves in it, when they returned to these parts, but this availed him very little, as I shall show further on. Neither in the island nor in the city is there any water except that which is brought into them by carriage, and two or three years often pass without any rain. On the back of the city, behind this mountain range, lies another harbour, which they call Ujufu,<sup>5</sup> sheltered from

<sup>1</sup> Talhado a pique.

<sup>2</sup> Bay of Hokát, south of the old town of Aden in Haines' chart.

<sup>3</sup> Trabuco, a military engine for throwing large masses of stone against the enemy.

<sup>4</sup> Sirah, or Fortified Island, to the east of the town on the same chart.

<sup>5</sup> Ras Hejáf, or Heyof, on the N. coast of the Peninsula of Aden, facing the entrance of the inner bay.

every wind. It has a bottom in which very large ships can lie at anchor, and near this harbour there runs a very narrow creek, which at low tide has but little water. Over it passes a bridge made in ancient times by the inhabitants of the city, because it formed the shortest route from Zebir<sup>1</sup> to Aden, where the king spends the greater part of the time. And along this road runs a stream of water, in a conduit which passes at the side of the bridge, and discharges itself into a large tank built of masonry, at a league's distance from the city, and it is to that spot that the camels are taken for water.

The water which issues out from under the arches<sup>2</sup> is spread over the country below in pools or lagoons, and if the inhabitants of this city had not this bridge, they could not go round in a single day so many pools as there are spread forth over those fields. And beyond this water service of the bridge, there is a broad plateau, which reaches from the interior country plain to a gate which is formed in the mountain range, having two strongly fortified towers, and by means of it they used to supply the camels with water at the very time when our fleet lay in the harbour, for from our ships and boats our people used to see them going and coming laden along the plateau and entering the gate of the mountain range.

The breadth of this isthmus, from one sea to the other, is about a quarter of a league, whence it may clearly be seen that Aden is not an island, although in ancient times it was always so held to be. But Afonso Dalboquerque, hoping hereafter to return again and attack it, desired to obtain better information about this, and ordered Manuel de Lacerda, Simão Dandrade, Pero de Afonseca, and Simão Velho, to take their boats and explore all this and examine it very carefully. For he often used to say that had he seen Adem he would not have attacked it on that part where he did attack it.

<sup>1</sup> Perhaps the village of Biyar Ahmed, site of the Sultan's residence, to the N.W. of Aden on the chart. But from chapter ix, it is more probably Zebid, N.W. of Aden, near the Arabian coast of the Red Sea.

<sup>2</sup> The remains of this aqueduct are marked on the chart as still existing. Total breadth, 54 ins.; water channel, 19 ins. deep, 16 ins. wide; wall, 19 ins. on each side.

In front of this mountain range, on the other side of the land, lies a place which is called Rubaca, in which there lived twenty fishermen, all poor people, in straw huts, and in this district there are many pools of good drinking water and a small palm grove.

The King of Adem has about fifteen hundred cavalry soldiers, and a large force of infantry. His principal revenue, which, indeed, maintains him, is from the madder,<sup>1</sup> which grows in his country, of which there is a yearly crop of about twenty-five thousand bales. No one may purchase this except only the king of the land. The growers give it to him at six xerafins<sup>2</sup> the bale; and he sends it on to Cambaya, where it is used in dyeing cloth, being sold there at twenty-two [xerafins] the bale. All his other sources of revenue are insignificant.

This harbour of Adem was anciently a very small settlement, but after the discovery of India by the Portuguese and their navigation to that place, it began to increase, and at length became a large mart of all the kinds of merchandize which enter the mouth of the straits [of the Red Sea] inwards. The reason of this is, because the fleets which the King of Portugal always maintains on the Indian coast do not allow the ships of the Moors to make their way to those parts [which lie inside the straits] in their proper season, for these ships, to avoid capture, set out on their voyage without waiting for the monsoon, and go and discharge their merchandize at Adem, selling them to the native merchants, and then buying other goods, which they take back with them to India, and then, when the monsoon is come, the merchants of Adem send this merchandize to Judá, to Meca,<sup>1</sup> to Suez, and to other sites which lie within the straits. For this reason it was that many merchants came to settle at Adem from Cairo, from Judá, and from India, and from other such places, with large possessions. This made Adem the noble place it is to-day, being reputed to be the richest district that there is on all that coast.

<sup>1</sup> Ruiva: called in Vieyra's Dictionary "Ruiva dos tintureiros".

<sup>2</sup> See vol. i, pp. 43, 82, 170.

---

CHAPTER III.

How the great Afonso Dalboquerque attacked the city of Adem, and what passed in this first attack.

When Friday was passed, the whole day being occupied in fastening the ships together with cables, as I have already said, on the following night the great Afonso Dalboquerque sent for all the captains and told them that, although it had been agreed by all that an attack should be made upon the city, the extent of the wall was so long that they had neither sufficient men nor ladders to invest the whole of it; therefore, it seemed good to him that all must unite together to make an assault upon it at one spot, so as to get a double line of men up to the wall, who could thereby succour each other; and when once they had forced their entrance into the city, they must be careful to take up such a position in respect to the Moors as to get possession of the gate of the mountain range which led towards the interior country, for if they failed to take that, they would fail to obtain any real advantage, and the Moors could place as many reinforcements as they liked inside the city, so that the Portuguese would be compelled after all to retire to their ships, and this would be a great disaster and failure for them. Therefore, it was very important for all of them to fight like cavaliers, and labour to the utmost to gain possession of the gate.

<sup>1</sup> See vol. i, p. 58.

The captains began to feel somewhat disconcerted, and replied that he need not be under any misapprehension, nor bring himself to abandon undertaking the assault, for they on their part were quite ready to give him their assistance in the enterprise. This having been, therefore, thus arranged, Afonso Dalboquerque decided that D. Garcia, with the greater part of the soldiers, Fidalgoes and Cavaliers whom he could muster, were to proceed to assault the wall with their scaling ladders, on the left hand side, where the Moors had posted the larger number of their forces. For on that side there was a gate, concerning which they have a prophecy that through it the city of Adem must be captured. This gate D. Garcia endeavoured to break in, but he found it was walled up inside. Meanwhile, Afonso Dalboquerque himself, with the rest of his people, were to attack on the right hand side, and João Fidalgo, the Captain in command of the train-bands, was to take up a position between the two, having with him a very broad scaling-ladder, by means of which six men could mount abreast. At the same time Anrique Homem, with a party of a hundred ordnance soldiers, were to cross the summit of a rock which ran level with the wall, for by this means he could easily descend into the city. And as soon as our people had reached the top of the wall they were to leap down inside.

When all had been instructed in the different duties which they were to carry out, they returned to their ships, and, when there wanted two hours to daybreak, Afonso Dalboquerque ordered a trumpet to be sounded; then all came on board his ship immediately, and from it they set out just as the dawn was breaking, making their way to reach the wall. But, as the bottom of the water was very shelving, with parcel rocks, the boats were compelled to come to a stop about the distance of a cross-bow shot from shore, and this gave our people great trouble, for they all were forced to wade through the water, and the musketeers wetted the powder which they were bringing with them. But not the less on this account did the captains and all these servants of the king, like valiant cavaliers, take the scaling ladders on their backs, each one in the company in which he was placed, and set them up against the wall, with great efforts.

The captains who formed Afonso Dalboquerque's company, placed their scaling ladders and mounted up to the walls by means of them without any further consideration, which caused Afonso Dalboquerque great concern, for although this was a deed of daring worthy of cavaliers, it resulted in the ranks of the men of their company becoming at once disordered, with the exception of a few Fidalgoes and Cavaliers who went up the ladders at the same time with the captains, and so eager was the haste which every one made to mount, each exerting himself to be the first, that with the weight of numbers the ladders broke down.

When Afonso Dalboquerque perceived that the ladders of his party were broken, and all the rest of the men hastening towards that one which was under command of João Fidalgo, Captain of the train-bands, he was under the apprehension that they would break it also in like manner as they had done his, so he ordered the halbardiers of his company to hasten to the spot to try if, by means of their halbards, they could prop up the scaling ladder and protect it from being broken. But, notwithstanding this, the ladder broke down under the great weight of the

Adem

W
A
S
H
I
N
G
T
O
N

men, and the halbards were broken in pieces, and some of the halbardiers killed and others badly wounded.<sup>1</sup>

D. Garcia, also, during this time, with the assistance of the captains who were in his company, had placed his scaling ladders in position; and, although the Moors had posted a large body of men to oppose him, nevertheless, our men had manœuvred in such a manner that a great number of them had climbed to the top of the wall, and had cleared everything from off it, and planted their banner upon it. And it is declared that Garcia de Sousa was the first to plant his banner upon one of the turrets.<sup>2</sup>

The remainder of the men forming the company of Afonso Dalboquerque, envious at the sight of their companions who had got on the top of the wall, repaired to the scaling-ladder under charge of D. Garcia, with a view to ascending also, and so great a number of men thronged together there, one upon the other's heels, that all the scaling-ladders were broken; and D. Garcia himself was wounded, together with a large number of those under his command at that place. And when he saw that the scaling-ladders were broken, and that he himself could do nothing, wounded and in evil plight as he was he ran along the top of the wall, with the men whom he had with him, and made his way to Afonso Dalboquerque, to learn from him what was to be done. When Afonso Dalboquerque saw him in this sorry condition, streaming with blood, he said to him: "Sir nephew, do not excite yourself, for this orchard cannot produce any other kind of fruit than this; and, although these Moors now get the best of us as we have broken our ladders, I trust in Our Lord that at some other time we may be revenged upon them. Then he ordered him to make his way along the wall with his men and see if he could burst open any porthole or embrasure, so as to let some twenty or thirty cross-bowmen or musketeers pass through it, in order to help those of our forces who were on the top of the wall, and fortify themselves in the turret which they had already taken, while he himself mended some of the scaling-ladders in order to make a second attempt to get up.

<sup>1</sup> See the early woodcut of this escalade in the British Museum Map Department, reproduced in Col. Yule's Marco Polo, 2nd ed., 1875, vol. ii, p. 438.

<sup>2</sup> Cubelo. Cubello, a sort of tower formerly erected upon the walls of a town or fortress.

D. Garcia, as soon as he arrived at the embrasure, burst it open ; and inside it was about the height of a man standing upright. When our men saw the embrasure cleared, they all ran up to it so as to make good their entry through it. But D. Garcia, in accordance with the orders which Afonso Dalboquerque had given him to admit none but cross-bowmen and musketeers, tried hard to prevent any other but these from entering ; yet, by this time, João de Ataíde, and some soldiers, had already forced their way in. The Moors, perceiving so small a number of our men on the wall, and the scaling-ladders broken, swarmed up at the mouth of the embrasure, intending to prevent our men from entering in ; and, with great store of lighted straw, and earth, and stone, which they cast in, soon covered up the embrasure again, most of our party of cross-bow men and musketeers being by this time dead, and many others wounded, for they could not get in on account of the suffocating smoke ; while our other party, who were on the top of the wall, not being provided with lances, could not drive away the enemy who were engaged in closing up the embrasure, for when they had climbed to the top of the wall the only weapons they carried were short swords and bucklers.

---

CHAPTER IV.

How Jorge da Silveira, with some Fidalgoes who were on the wall, leaped down inside and went to attack the Moors; and the rest that took place.

When the Captains, Fidalgoes, and Cavaliers, who were on the top of the wall—that is to say, Jorge da Silveira, Aires da Silva, D. João de Lima, Vicente Dalboquerque, D. João Déssa, Ruy Galvão, João de Meira, Ruy Palha, João de Ataíde, Manuel da Costa, João Gonçalvez de Castelo-Branco, Tristão de Miranda, Garcia de Sousa, D. Alvaro de Castro, Lourenço Godinho, Gil Simões, and other servants of the king—perceived that the Moors were barking at them below, piqued at the little account in which they were held by them, and without waiting for any further reinforcements, they leaped down at them, and, with brave endeavours, came to close quarters with them, and, pursuing them as they ran, they got in, altogether in a confused mass, inside the palisades which had been set up at the mouths of the streets leading to the market square, until they reached a terrace, where they slew very many of the enemy.

Mira Merjão, the Captain of the city, who was watching the train-bands, which Afonso Dalboquerque had stationed on the edge of the mountain range, to see that they did not make any movement of coming down, for, if they had come down, they would have fallen upon him in the rear, and, in that case, would have inflicted a severe blow upon him, saw that they did not make any move, so he sallied out, with a band of about a hundred Moors, and fell upon our party from the wall. These showed him a very good front, killing some of his men and wounding Mira Merjão himself. But, while this was being done, so many Moors rallied together to support him, that our men were compelled to retire up against the wall, Jorge da Silveira having been killed, and some of the soldiers wounded in the encounter.

Meanwhile, Garcia de Sousa, Duarte de Mélo, Gaspar Cão, Diogo Estaço, Diogo de Andrade, João de Sousa, André Correa, and a mulatto man, belonging to Garcia de Sousa, fortified themselves in a turret; and the others watched on the wall for the Moors who were following up in close pursuit after them. These, when they arrived near to them, were handled very severely (the ground being on a level with this landing) with darts<sup>1</sup> and arrows; for our men had no lances which would have enabled them to attack the enemy from the top and drive him away. Afonso Dalboquerque, who was on the outer side, close up to the wall, seeing them thus hard pressed, gave orders to reconstruct, out of the splinters of the broken scaling-ladders, another one, lashed together with cords, whereby they could get up and rally to the support of those on the wall. No sooner had this newly made scaling-ladder been set up against the wall—every one being desirous of mounting it, and failing to make way for those who were above to descend by means of it—so large a body of men got upon it that it was again broken into pieces. Anrique Homem, who was drawing off with train-bands party under his command, ashamed of being the cause of this disaster, and of the careless way in which he had acted in this attempt to succour our men, made an endeavour to get down the ladder again; but, because there was no longer any time to do it, Afonso Dalboquerque ran up in haste and reproved him, and made him turn back, and then returned to D. Garcia, whom he had left mending a scaling-ladder and ropes so that our men might drop down from the wall. But because the ladder was a little too short, most of our men slid down the ropes in safety, and, at length

<sup>1</sup> Zagunchos.

noue were left in the turret on the top of the wall except Garcia de Sousa and one more, his mulatto man. Then Garcia de Sousa, seeing that all had deserted him—some of them, indeed, with such haste that they broke their legs—began to call out aloud to Afonso Dalboquerque: “Sir, order some men to come up here, to help me in defending this turret, for those who were with me have deserted me.” Afonso Dalboquerque, in a great rage at seeing affairs turning out thus, without any means of improvement at his hands, replied: “I know not what to do for you, all the scaling-ladders are broken, and we have nothing wherewith we can make any more. The hour of Adem is not yet come, so I beg you to save yourself by these ropes, just as these other Captains and Cavaliers here with me have done.”

Garcia de Sousa made no answer to this, but turned himself to the Moors, who were working their way to get in at him in the turret, and said to his mulatto man: “Do thou save thyself, for I shall die here, for never would God have it that I should go down except by the same way which I went up. Thou shalt take this, my buckler, to the king, our lord, in order that it may be a witness before him how I have met my end here in his service.” Then he took out a piece of the Wood of the Cross, which he wore round his neck, and gave it to the mulatto man. By this time the Moors had already got on the top of the wall close to the turret, and he and his mulatto man defended themselves so stoutly that none of the enemy could get into it, until at length Garcia de Sousa was struck with an arrow on the head, which laid him low, after he had made great havoc among the Moors.

When the mulatto, who was already severely wounded, saw his lord was dead, he took the buckler and let himself slide down by the ropes. This buckler was made after the fashion of those of cowhide, which are used by the Malabar people, and on this account it was thick with arrows. The combat lasted from daybreak until midday, at which time our men withdrew. I do not blame Garcia de Sousa because he rashly refused to do that which the other Fidalgoes and Cavaliers had done, neither do I blame those of whom he complained, for deserting him, for all the scaling-ladders were broken, and the wall was very lofty, and there was no means of scaling it, nor place where the artillery could fire against it so as to effect a breach, because the tidal water came up close to the spot. Let him who reads these Commentaries decide the matter for himself.

---

CHAPTER V.

How the great Afonso Dalboquerque, after having collected all his forces together, and made ready to embark, commanded D. Garcia to capture the artillery placed in the Island of Cira, with which the Moors were firing upon him.

The great Afonso Dalboquerque having all his forces collected together for re-embarking, Mira Merjão ordered an attack to be made upon him with the artillery which he had in a tower upon the Island of Cira, with the result of killing some of our men and wounding many. Seeing the damage which the large guns of the enemy inflicted upon him, and that he could not resist them because he had no scaling-ladders nor means of getting to close quarters with them, and his people much exhausted with their labour, and the excessive heat of the weather, Afonso Dalboquerque proceeded to embark—the high tide being already close up to the foot of the wall—much against every one's wishes, for they were desirous of returning again to the combat, and wanted Afonso Dalboquerque to order the heavy guns to be taken out of the ships and put on shore and trained on the wall, so as to effect an entry under cover of their fire.

But Alfonso Dalboquerque, who was well aware that this could not be carried out, on account of the difficulty which I have already spoken of, with respect to the tide, and also because the east monsoon was beginning to fail, and a single day more spent at Adem would put the fleet to the hazard of being lost for want of water, and to turn back would be equivalent to the loss of two months and a half, and if they wished to enter the straits [of the Red Sea], the east wind was just on the point of ceasing to blow, would not undertake this, but withdrew to the ships with all his forces; and, on the following day in the morning, ordered D. Garcia de Noronha, his nephew, with all his men, to go and take possession of the tower and bulwark of the Island of Cira. On his arrival at the foot of the tower, with the force that accompanied him, D. Garcia bore himself so bravely in the attempt, that he took it with very little damage on our side. As for the Moors, they could not stand against the onset with which we fell upon them; many threw themselves down from the wall, others fled into the city, and those who were left were all put to the sword. There were taken in this tower and bulwark thirty-six cannon,<sup>1</sup> of the size of our camelos,<sup>2</sup> and others somewhat smaller. D. Garcia, with this victory, kept himself stationed there until Afonso Dalboquerque desired to set sail for the straits, bombarding the city and throwing down many houses in it.

When D. Garcia had returned to the ships, Afonso Dalboquerque ordered all the masters of the ships to refit them with rigging and shrouds, and all other things that they had need of, out of the ships of the Moors which were lying in the harbour; and the captains and soldiers in the fleet to strip them of all the merchandise which they carried, and gather together all the provisions they could find. And when the Moorish ships were thus sacked and despoiled of all their contents, Afonso Dalboquerque ordered that they should be set on fire, and thus all were consumed without a single one remaining.

<sup>1</sup> Bombardos, mortars.

<sup>2</sup> See vol. i, p. 73.

All that can be said concerning this attempt upon Adem is, that the Captains, Fidalgoes, and Cavaliers engaged in it, attacked the city with great bravery and fierce onset, but Fortune, envious at seeing them at the point of gaining with such great honours a city of such importance as that was, under the very beard of the Grand Sultan, would have it that the scaling-ladders should be broken all at the same time; for without contradiction they would have taken the city had it not been for this unexpected accident, seeing that there was no force of the enemy who could dare to fight at close quarters with our men in the streets of the city, notwithstanding that three days had already elapsed since our fleet had been sighted from the heights of the mountain range of Arzina<sup>1</sup> ere it arrived before the harbour of Adem. It would have been, indeed, a very creditable deed for Portugal, and highly advantageous towards the security of India, if we had gained possession of Adem and fortified ourselves in it.

Afonso Dalboquerque, indeed, often used to say that for the preservation of India, and the prevention of troubles arising from that territory to the Kings of Portugal, there were four things, of which their possession by the Portuguese must be made very strong and very sure. These were: Adem, in order to have dominion over the Straits of Méca, before the Grand Sultan could forestall them in their seizing it; Ormuz, so as to have supreme rule over the Straits of Baçorá; and Diu and Goa, for the sovereignty of all the other districts of India. And with these four places assured to Portugal, and fortified with very strong fortresses, she could avoid many other unnecessary expenses to which she was now subject.

<sup>1</sup> See p. 7; Camões calls this Arzira, see p. 80.

A fortnight after the day when Afonso Dalboquerque had reared the scaling-ladders against the walls of Adem, news reached Cairo by the camel-post sent from the Xequé of Adem to the Grand Sultan, to the intent that he would have him to know that the Portuguese had effected an entrance into the Red Sea, and intercepted the route of the pilgrimages to Méca. The reply sent back was to the effect that if the Christians had made good their entrance into the straits, the Xequé must keep a good guard over his harbours and his lands, just as he himself intended to do the same over his. The reason of the Grand Sultan's reply being couched in such dry terms was that a few days ago he had sent a message to the Xequé desiring that he would hand it over to him, for it had belonged to his father and his ancestors; but the Xequé's answer to this demand had been that he was not aware that Adem ever had any other lord than himself. And the Moor who brought back this reply also gave intelligence that Judá was being depopulated of all the women and children, out of fear of our fleet; that in Cairo a great revolt had broken out because it was reported that the Christians were coming up against Alexandria, and the Xequé Ismael, with a great army, against Aleppo; that the Grand Sultan, upon hearing of the entry of our fleet within the straits, had fallen into a great state of alarm, because he was of opinion that this was part of a preconcerted plan made by everyone to effect his destruction; and that the same Xequé had ordered the execution of Amirquebir, Udaquebir, and Mircelaquebir, the three principal captains of his kingdom, on account of the suspicion which he had that they were privy to this conspiracy against him, and had summoned to his presence the Governor of Damascus, who would not go at his command, because he feared lest he should be subjected to the same death which had overtaken the others at the Xequé's orders. All this news was corroborated afterwards before

Afonso Dalboquerque, by an Abyssinian<sup>1</sup> who came off with Ruy Galvão in Zeila on the return voyage out of the straits.

---

CHAPTER VI.

How the great Afonso Dalboquerque set out from the harbour of Adem with his fleet, and made sail direct for the straits.

When the great Afonso Dalboquerque was now quite ready to set forth, and all the fleet supplied with everything necessary for the sureness of their voyage, he sent forward, in advance of the vessels, a ship of Chaul, which João Gomez had captured in Çacotorá, having on board twenty Portuguese and a Jew for interpreter, giving them directions to take a pilot for him at the entrance of the straits out of the number of those who dwell there, for he was afraid that if they were to see our whole fleet they would flee away, and he would be left without a pilot. The ship had no sooner arrived at an island which lies at the mouth of the straits than one of these pilots came up and hailed her, and came on board, asking if there was need of a pilot. Then our people came out of their hiding as soon as they had the pilot on board, and laid hands upon him. These pilots are called Rubães; they live at the entrance of the straits, in the island of which I have already made mention. They conduct the navigation from that point inwards, and have great experience of all the shallows and harbours of those parts; and the ships which are making for port inside the straits call at that island for a pilot, paying thirty cruzados for his services as far as Judá.

As soon as this Chaul ship had gone forward, Afonso Dalboquerque ordered the whole fleet to be towed out of the harbour, and set sail direct for the straits, and in two days' time reached the mouth. And as they were the first

<sup>1</sup> See further on, chapter xi.

Portuguese who had ever reached that point since the discovery of India, the great Afonso Dalboquerque ordered that the ships should be dressed with their flags, and all the artillery fired, and great rejoicing made; and they proceeded to anchor in the eastern harbour which lies just inside the gate of the straits. When the fleet was anchored, our men (who had gone forward in the Chaul ship) came back, bringing with them the pilot whom they had captured; and, although Afonso Dalboquerque carried three whom he had taken in some ships from Zeila which had reached the harbour of Adem, he was very much pleased at the sight of this one, and gave him a very good reception. On the morning of the following day, an inward-bound Moorish ship hove in sight, making for the passage, but as soon as she caught sight of our fleet, she hauled down her sails and went and anchored behind an island lying in the mouth of the straits, which they call Mium,<sup>1</sup> and as she lay to windward of us, she was saved.

Afonso Dalboquerque, seeing that the time was passing quickly, and that his great need of water had put him into considerable difficulty, not knowing where he could get it if the Moorish pilots had not said that they would be able to furnish it for him in Camarão, would not allow himself to be detained any longer, and on the next day set sail, shaping his course through the broad sea which is in the middle of the straits. Keeping the coast of Arabia and of the Preste João always in sight, the Portuguese fleet drew along in front of an island which lies in the middle of this passage called Jebelzocor,<sup>2</sup> but could not put in that day;

<sup>1</sup> Perim Island, sometimes called Meyún, a bare rocky island, rather flat, about three miles long and one and three-quarters broad, close to Cape Bab-el-Mandeb.

<sup>2</sup> Jebel Zukur, lying on the parallel of 14 deg. N., is by far the highest island in the Red Sea, and may perhaps be considered a small mountain. It is twenty-eight miles in circuit, and nearly nine miles long from north to south, composed of a series of lofty hills of barren aspect.

A few
with strait

and as the land was seen to them, which they had to explore with the land-line on their hand, and the sun was nearly set, Alonse Dalboquerque will the pilots to show him a harbour, and they caused the boat to row up opposite the Arabian coast, and they proceeded to take it to a harbour, where he remained under shelter from the east wind; there the five men went, being on the bottom of four oars to twice fifteen. The boatsmen there were found four ships from Malacca and other parts with supplies for Jack and Alonse, and a crew of men, women, boys, and youths, which he then was carrying back to Jack. But as the weather was not good, Alonse Dalboquerque would not allow them to be made away out of the Mouth of the River, because he must have secured themselves by entering of the straits, and was afraid they would be furnished by coming off the coast, and would flee away, because they were subjects of the Emperor of India, and
The ship had to be put down on their own hand, and in the mouth of the straits, he would have served all those whom he met inside the
and hailed her, and she would have been of Camacho, because he had obserneed of a pilot, and he would have been of Camacho, because he had obseras soon as they had seen the land, and he would have been of Camacho, because he had obser-

How the

When ready to thing ne forward, to João Gon
twenty Por directions to

of the straits out of the straits, and he would have been of Camacho, because he had obser-
was afraid they would be furnished by coming off the coast, and would flee away, because they were subjects of the Emperor of India, and
The ship had to be put down on their own hand, and in the mouth of the straits, he would have served all those whom he met inside the
and hailed her, and she would have been of Camacho, because he had obser-
need of a pilot, and he would have been of Camacho, because he had obser-

as soon as they had upon him. These pilots the entrance of the straits already made mention that point inwards, and shallows and harbours of are making for port inside the pilot, paying thirty cruzados to

of the straits out of the straits, and he would have been of Camacho, because he had obser-
was afraid they would be furnished by coming off the coast, and would flee away, because they were subjects of the Emperor of India, and
The ship had to be put down on their own hand, and in the mouth of the straits, he would have served all those whom he met inside the
and hailed her, and she would have been of Camacho, because he had obser-
need of a pilot, and he would have been of Camacho, because he had obser-

As soon as this Chaul ship Dalboquerque ordered the whole the harbour, and set sail direct days' time reached the mouth.

of the straits out of the straits, and he would have been of Camacho, because he had obser-
was afraid they would be furnished by coming off the coast, and would flee away, because they were subjects of the Emperor of India, and
The ship had to be put down on their own hand, and in the mouth of the straits, he would have served all those whom he met inside the
and hailed her, and she would have been of Camacho, because he had obser-
need of a pilot, and he would have been of Camacho, because he had obser-

CHAPTER VI.

1 See further on, chap.

and terra-firma runs a passage or canal about one league only in breadth, through which pass all the ships of the Moors bound to Suez and all the other parts thereabouts, for they come with the east winds, and they lie to on the Arabian side of the land, which forms a very sheltered harbour for them. And in front of this island of Mium, in the same harbour and shelter from the east wind, lies a small islet,<sup>1</sup> to which at low tide one can walk dry-shod on to terra-firma. It is in this island that the Rubães live, who are the pilots of the straits. In the middle of this canal the soundings are about twelve fathoms, and in the harbour sheltered from the east winds the soundings vary from seven to nine fathoms. In these two islands there is no fresh water, neither is there any in the harbour of shelter from the west winds, but it is brought there from terra firma on camels; and behind the island of the Rubães, just before the entrance to the gates of the strait, on the side of terra firma there is a good harbour of shelter from the west winds, which has water at some little distance from the sea-shore. Between the island of Mium and the land of the Preste João<sup>2</sup> runs another canal, which has about seventy-five fathoms' depth of water, and is about two leagues in breadth. Few ships navigate this canal, although it is wider and deeper than the other, and the reason of it is that it possesses no harbour of shelter from the east winds wherein they can ride at anchor, if there is any necessity to do so.

The Moors divide the Red Sea<sup>3</sup> into

<sup>1</sup> Sheikh Mala, or Ilha de Mala, see Gray's Chart of Perim Island, 1874.

<sup>2</sup> See vol. ii, p. 229.

<sup>3</sup> Camber makes the

<sup>4</sup> O cabo de

E agua de

Onde com

Mar Ross

three partitions, and take for their fundamental basis this, that in the breadth of the Red Sea there are twelve gemmas,

Este como limite está lançado, Que divide Asia de Africa ; e as melhores Povoações, que a parte Africa tem, Maçná são, Arquico, e Suanquem.

“ Vês o extremo Suez. que antiguamente, Dizem, que foi dos Héroas a cidade, Outros dizem que Arsinoe, e ao presente
Tem das frotas do Egypto a potestade :
Olha as aguas, nas quaes abrio patente
Estrada o grão Moysés na antigua idade :
Asia começa aqui. que se apresenta Em terras grande, em reinos opulenta.

“ Olha o monte Sinai, que se ennobrece Co’o sepulchro de sancta Catharina :
Olha Toro, e Gidá. que lhe fallece Agua das fontes doce, e crystallina :
Olha as portas do estreito. que fenece
No reino da secco Adem, que confina
Com a serra d’ Arzira, pedra viva, Onde chuva dos ceos se não deriva.

“ Olha as Arabias tres, que tanta terra Tomam, todas da gente vaga e baça, Donde vem os cavallos para a guerra,
Lig-iros, e ferozes, de alta raça.
Olha a costa, que corre até que cerra
Outro estreito de Persia, e faz a traça
O cabo, que co’o nome se appellida Da cidade Fartaque alli sabida.

“ Olha Dofar insigne, porque manda O mais cheiroso incenso para as aras,” etc.

Lusiadas, x, 97-101.

“ The Cape which Antients ‘Aromatic’ clepe Behold, yeapt by Moderns Guardafú ;
Where opes the Red Sea Mouth, so wide and deep,
The Sea, whose ruddy bed lends blushing hue :
This as a bourne was far thrust out to keep Asia distinct from Africk, and a few that is, three daily courses,<sup>1</sup> containing about thirty leagues in the widest part of the straits, and these they divide in the following manner; that is to say, four gemmas, or one sangradura, of foul sea, islands, shallows and parcel reefs, along the Arabian coast as far as Suez; and other four

Of the best markets Negro sea-boards claim Arquico are, Masuá and Súanquem.

“ View extreme Suez where, old annals say,
Once stood the city hight Hero’opolis;
By some Arsin’oe called, and in our day
She holdeth Egypt’s fleets and argosies:
Behold the watery depths, where clove his way
Moses, the mighty, in past centuries:
Asia beginneth here her huge extent
In regions, kingdoms, empires opulent.

“ See Sinai mountain, with her boast and pride,
The silver bier of saintly Catherine:
See Toro-port and Gidá, scant supplied With fountain-water soft and crystalline:
Behold the straits which end the southern side Of arid Aden-realms, that here confine
With tall Arziran range, nude stone and live, Whence soft, sweet rains of heaven ne’er derive.

“ See threefold Ar’aby, cov’ring so much ground,
Where tawny peoples vague o’er vasty space;
Whence come the Rabytes* best for battle found,
Light-limbed, high-fettled, noble-blooded race.
Behold the coast that trends to bind and bound Yon other Persian Strait, where sight can trace
The Headland proud the potent name to own
Of Fartak-city, erst to fame well-known.

“ Behold insign Dofar that doth command
For Christian altars sweetest incense-store,” etc.
Burton.

* Arab horses.

---

<sup>1</sup> Sangraduras. The Sangradura, or Singradura, is the way or progress made by a ship during the space of twenty-four hours.

gemmas of foul sea, as already described, along the territory of the Preste João as far as Çoar,<sup>1</sup> which lies nearly north and south with Otor,<sup>2</sup> close to Suez; and other four gemmas are of clear sea, which runs in the middle of the straits; and in these two repartitions which the Moors make of the foul sea, the soundings vary from eight to twelve fathoms; the bottom is parcel reef, and with the lead-line in hand, one can heave-to and get under weigh as much as one likes, and ride at anchor where one wills. But for the navigation of this rough sea pilots are taken at the gates of the straits; for if the weather prove unfavourable they can take a ship into port between the islands and shallows from any one part to any other.

The canal which leads to the middle of the straits, which the Moors call broad sea, has a depth of from twenty-five to forty fathoms, and for its navigation ships have no need of taking the pilot, for whereas they come in settled weather, the same winds which bring them enable them to navigate this broad sea, and pass by the island which is called Jazelzocor,<sup>3</sup> that lies, as I have already said, in the midst of the straits; and beyond this, opposite Judá,<sup>4</sup> lies another island which they call Sertão,<sup>5</sup> and they ride at anchor off these when they think fit, for they have very good roadsteads there. And in spite of all the absurdities<sup>6</sup> which have been anciently reported about this foul sea, our ships can navigate it from one side to the other securely by day with proper precautions, but not by night; and they can navigate the middle of the straits by night or by day without any embarrassment, anchoring at will, provided they are furnished with strong cables.

<sup>1</sup> See vol. i, p. 84.

<sup>2</sup> Tór, for the initial letter here is the Portuguese article, as in Oporto; see plan of Tór on the Admiralty chart, No. 8a, Red Sea, sheet 1.

<sup>3</sup> See p. 27, where the name of the island is given as Jebelzocor.

<sup>4</sup> Here probably Eid.

<sup>5</sup> Kurdumyat (island) or Çurdomeate.

<sup>6</sup> Bicos, see vol. iii, p. 67.

The straits have no fresh water, neither are there rocks sunken below the water, just a wash covered by the sea, as the Moors of those parts used in ancient times to declare, only so that no one should dare to navigate them. There are no storms there, nor contrary winds, nor thunderings:<sup>1</sup> the winds that blow in the spring are always easterly, and those that blow in the winter westerly; but sometimes for an hour, immediately after nightfall, when the east winds drop, there is a land breeze. It is a hot land:<sup>2</sup> the Moors call these straits of the Red Sea, in their language, Bahar Queixum, which means in ours "the enclosed sea", and, in my opinion (not following the ideas of those who have written the history of India, but following in this respect the opinion of Afonso Dalboquerque, who was the first after its discovery to penetrate through the gates of the straits), this name Red Sea, or Vermilion Sea, is more suitable to it than any other, and he who first called it by this name had very good reason for it, because all the straits of the Red Sea are full of many spots as scarlet as blood.

And when Afonso Dalboquerque was riding at anchor, with all his fleet, off the point of the straits in the harbour of shelter from the west winds, being then already on his return voyage to India, he saw from the masthead of his ship a streak of sea of a very crimson colour, discharging itself through the mouth of the straits in an outward direction, and running down opposite Adem, and extending within the straits as far as a man could stretch his sight. Afonso Dalboquerque, being terrified at this, asked the Moorish pilots what was the meaning of that great expanse

<sup>1</sup> Hurricanes or heavy storms are almost unknown in the Red Sea, but fresh gales and close-reefed topsail breezes are of constant occurrence.

<sup>2</sup> The climate of the Red Sea, with exception of that of the Persian Gulf, is perhaps the hottest in the world. At the end of June the temperature is about 98 deg. Fahr., rising to 105 deg. in August in the shade.

The first object of this canal was to be seen in the Wady tumilat which empties into the Mediterranean at the mouth of the Nile. It is situated at a distance of about 100 miles from Cairo and is the only one of its kind in the world.
 It was constructed by the ancient Egyptians and its purpose was to facilitate the navigation of the Nile during the summer months, when the waters of the Nile are so low as to render it difficult to pass the rapids which occur at this season. The ancient Egyptians were the first to construct a canal which connected the Nile with the Red Sea. This canal was situated at the mouth of the Nile and was used for the purpose of carrying the produce of the Nile to the Red Sea. It was a short canal, but it was of great importance to the ancient Egyptians. The canal was destroyed by the Romans and it was not until the middle of the sixteenth century that it was again constructed.
 It was then called the "Canal of the Kings" and was used for the purpose of carrying the produce of the Nile to the Red Sea. It was destroyed by the Turks and it was not until the middle of the eighteenth century that it was again reconstructed. It was then called the "Canal of the Khedives" and was used for the purpose of carrying the produce of the Nile to the Red Sea. It was destroyed by the British and it was not until the middle of the nineteenth century that it was again reconstructed. It was then called the "Canal of the Khedives" and was used for the purpose of carrying the produce of the Nile to the Red Sea.

Leaving out from the space of the straits along the coast of Arabia as far as Kamarik, all the land is under the dominion of the King of Aden, and along the sea there is not a single town nor fort-like harbour: there are only salajeh and points of land jutting out into the sea, which are the only things that stand in and hinder there from the east and west winds: and from Kamarik as far as Juda bayinna is the Khelifa of Jazan. Juda belonged to the

1. Kamarik. Traces of this canal are to be seen in the Wady tumilat which empties into the Mediterranean by Wady from Ismailiyah to Tel-el-Kebir.
 2. Kamarik Bay, Aden and Libeyyah. See plan of Kamarik on Ad-y sheet, No. 14.

Xerife Parcati, but at the time that Afonso Dalboquerque arrived there, it was subject to the Grand Sultan of Cairo, who had placed there a factor with twenty Mamelukes to collect the taxes upon the spiceries and all other sorts of merchandise which reached the port. It was a small place, and the greater part of the houses were built of straw. But when D. Francisco de Almeida overcame the Rumes,<sup>1</sup> Mirocem came to live at Judá, and encircled it with a wall and built towers on the land side for fear of the Alarves who live there in those deserts as far as Méca (which would be about a day's journey), for they come down and rob the inhabitants of the land; and on the side of the sea there was nothing to fear. This harbour of Judá is girt with sharp-pointed ridges of rock like little islands, and close to the land it has hidden banks. It is sheltered from all winds. There are no provisions in the land; they procure all they require from Barbora and Zeila<sup>2</sup> and Alaca<sup>3</sup> and Meçua.<sup>4</sup> And in those days, when Afonso Dalboquerque stayed within the straits, the inhabitants suffered great privations, for the Moors did not dare to make the voyage.

From Judá all the way to Otor there live many bands of Alarves. Otor is a city of Christians. From Acintura,<sup>5</sup> and so on as far as Suez, throughout the interior country, they are all Alarves who live in those deserts, nearly as far as Jerusalem, spreading themselves along the sides of the range of Mount Sinai, between the Persian Gulf and the Red Sea. Between Judá and Otor, along the shore of the sea, there lies a harbour which is called Liumbo,<sup>6</sup> and from that

<sup>1</sup> See vol. ii, p. 16.

<sup>2</sup> See p. 10.

<sup>3</sup> Ras Alargah, near Jebel Hasan (Aden).

<sup>4</sup> Massowah, or Musawwá Island, the port of Abyssinia, in the northern extremity of Harkiko Bay.

<sup>5</sup> Ras Sedour, in the Gulf of Suez, on the Arabian coast between Suez and Tor.

<sup>6</sup> Liumbo, now Yenbo, the port of entry for Medina, on a low sandy shore on the northern side of an inlet of the sea. The entrance to the place, two days' journey into the interior country, lies the city of Midina, where the body of their false prophet is preserved.

Afonso Dalboquerque had made up his mind to carry out two important undertakings if death had not prevented him (or, to speak more accurately, if the King D. Manuel, listening to the counsel of his enemies, had not ordered him home from India). The first was to pierce through a very small range of hills which runs along the side of the River Nile in the land of the Preste João, so as to divert its waters into another bed, and destroy the irrigation of the lands of Cairo. It was for this object that he sent many times to beg the King D. Manuel to forward to him workmen from the Island of Madeira, accustomed to cut the rocks, so as to make trenches, with which they used to water the sugar-canes in that island. This undertaking could be carried out very easily, for the Preste João was very desirous of accomplishing it, but had no means of carrying it out; and if this had been done (as I believe it could have been done if Afonso Dalboquerque had lived), the land of Cairo would have been entirely destroyed. For, if the Alarves who lived in the desert between Caná<sup>1</sup> and Coçaer<sup>2</sup> were powerful enough to break through the bank, and divert the rising of the Nile whenever they quarrelled with the Grand Sultan, as I shall describe further on, it is clear that it would have been far more easy for Afonso Dalboquerque to do so, with the aid of the Preste João.

The other enterprise was that, on his return entry into the straits of Méca (as he hoped with the help of God to acquire) a harbour lies in lat. 24 deg. 4 min. 30 sec. N. There is a loopholed wall, formerly of considerable strength, now in ruins; the houses also are falling into decay.

<sup>1</sup> Keneh. See further on in this chapter.

<sup>2</sup> Kosair, in lat. 26 deg. 6 min. N. There is a caravan route to the river Nile, four days' journey to the westward, formerly used by passengers travelling overland between Europe and India.

comply very soon), he had a mind to fit out an expedition of four hundred horsemen in taforeas, disembark them in the harbour of Liumbo, march rapidly to the temple of Méca,<sup>1</sup> and strip it of all its treasures, for they were, indeed, many; taking as well the body of its false prophet, and conveying it away, with a view to ransoming the Holy Temple of Jerusalem in exchange for it. This could have been carried out very easily, for it is but a day and a half distant from Midina, where his bones lie, and that is but a small place, with no one in it except a few Moors who are accounted saints, with painted finger-nails,<sup>2</sup> and maintained by alms sent to them from Cairo and from the Xequé Parcati, who used to be lord of that territory. For, with three hundred horsemen of the Alarves, without arms, none would dare to attack our party, and to get succour from Cairo would take them thirty or forty days, for they would have to get ready a large transport service of caravans of camels carrying water and provisions for their men, because the country round about is nothing but sand and desert, and without water. Much less could help be obtained, for by the time that the news of our entry into Midina had reached Cairo, we should have all returned to the port of Liumbo, and re-embarked.

From the Island of Mium, which lies at the entry of the straits, as I have already said, as one goes along the shore of the territory of the Preste João as far as Dalaca,<sup>3</sup> two

<sup>1</sup> Méca here must be an error for Midina or Medina. Jiddah or Judá is the port of Mecca, and the body of Mahomet does not lie in that city, but at Medina, of which city Liumbo, that is Yenbo, is the proper port.

<sup>2</sup> Com as unhas alfenadas. The alfena is considered by Vieyra to be the privet plant. Perhaps a stain was made from the juice of the berries. The expression is clearly one of contempt; the last word, however, may be connected with alfenim a long and slender roll of sugared paste used in Arabic pharmacy; hence the term homem de alfenim, a slender, delicate, or dainty man.

<sup>3</sup> Dahalak Bank and Islands, lying between the parallel of 15 deg. 25 min. N. and 16 deg. 38 min. N.

Moorish lords are rulers of the country, one of whom is called Azali, and the other Dancali. From Dalaca, as far as Maçua,<sup>1</sup> Çuaquem<sup>2</sup> and Arquico,<sup>3</sup> lies the land of the Preste João, whose lordship is extended along the coasts of the interior country of Magadoxo and Çofala; on this further side of the Red Sea, it is extended over against Cairo as far as Çuaquem; and in the interior it is bounded by Nuba,<sup>4</sup> and the land of the Moors called Ajaje,<sup>5</sup> from which site comes the gold to Çuaquem, in little square blocks like dice. The Abyssinians only call the Preste João by the name of Elati, which is the name of "Emperor".

From Çuaquem, as far as Coçaer, the land is inhabited by bands of Alarves, a people rich in horses, and most of them armed. Coçaer lies on the shore of the Red Sea; it is a large city,<sup>6</sup> but depopulated, with old buildings of masonry, and ruins, churches having marks of crosses on the walls, and inscription in Greek letters, from which it appears that at some time or other it was inhabited by Christians. On the road from this city of Coçaer, which is situated, as it were, just at the top of the Red Sea, a distance of three days' journey<sup>7</sup> through the interior to the Nile, lies a village, with a few houses called Canaa,<sup>8</sup> through which at that

<sup>1</sup> Not the same as above, Massowah, but Macowa or Makawwa Island, lat. 20 deg. 44 min. N.

<sup>2</sup> Suakin or Sawákin.

<sup>3</sup> Argeego, or Harkikó Bay.

<sup>4</sup> "Ve Méroe, que ilha foi de antiga fama

Que ora dos naturaes Nobá se chama."—Cam. Lus., x, 95.

<sup>5</sup> Aji is the most powerful of the Somali tribes, S.E. of Abyssinia.

<sup>6</sup> See plan of Kosair on the Admiralty chart, No. 86, Red Sea, sheet 2.

<sup>7</sup> Four days, according to the Red Sea Pilot, 2nd ed., 1873, p. 61.

<sup>8</sup> This is the place called Cana a little further back in this chapter. It is Keneh or Kenopolis. Of it, Ebers, in his Egypt, vol. ii, pp. 223, 224, says:—"Keneh.....has long since supplanted the ancient Koptos as the starting-point of the caravans travelling from the Red Sea and the harbour of Koseyr. In former times great corn were exported from Egypt to Arabia by this route, and grain destined for Djiddah is more commonly sent round

time the Portuguese and Castilian Jews used to make their route to India. The reason of choosing this route, in preference to that through Judá, was that they were terribly afraid of passing through Méca.

In the interior of this country, between Coçær and Canaa, there live many Alarves, horsemen and foot soldiers, and, when they were at variance with the Grand Sultan, they used sometimes to cut the bank of the Nile when the waters were rising, and let out the waters along some extensive valleys of their land, in order to be revenged upon him. The Sultan, in order to prevent their doing so great an injury to Cairo, as it would be if he were deprived of the irrigation of certain high-lying lands, which were cultivated round about Cairo, laboured sometimes with the lance in his hand, and at other times with presents, to maintain their friendship, and draw them over to his side.

At the top of all these straits lies Suez, which is a village built with straw houses, wherein there used to live thirty Mamelukes, whom the Sultan maintained there to keep watch upon the hulls of his galleys, so that the Alarves should not burn them, for they used to come down and attack the Mamelukes sometimes; and also to keep these hulls well watered every day in the morning, so that the joints should not open under the heat of the sun, which beats down very fiercely there. This village of Suez shows, by its great buildings, now thrown down and in ruins, that in ancient times it had a great population, and that it must be the site of Sïão Gaber,<sup>1</sup> of which the Bible makes mention.

by Suez. The traffic between Keneh and Mecca is still very considerable at the season of the pilgrimage, for many pilgrims from Upper Egypt, Nubia, the Soodan, and the Mohammedan provinces of Central Africa, prefer the route by Keneh and Koseyr, and Djiddah is easily reached from that port by sailing or steam vessels."

<sup>1</sup> A mistaken reference to Ezion Geber, N. of the Gulf of Akabah, not Suez. Cf. Dr. Shaw, Travels, p. 322; Numb., xxxiii, 35; Deut., ii, 8, etc.

CHAPTER VIII

Now the great Almirante Dalboquerque set out from that harbour for Camarão, and now it was like to have been wrecked on the way.

On account of the necessity which the fleet had for fresh water, the great Almirante Dalboquerque did not remain in that harbour beyond that night, and, having collected the provisions and burned the ships which he took there, he set sail at daybreak, shaping his course for Camarão; and, when he had made his way as far on as the Island of Jebel-zooz, he told the pilots that it would be well to stand in to shore, for it was getting late, and the fleet would not make the island until the night was far advanced, and even then he did not feel sure that all the ships could anchor in the harbour. They replied that they had no need to put in at any other harbour except the island to which they were bound.

Afonso Dalboquerque, however, insisted that, notwithstanding this, they must point out a harbour to him, for the wind would drop during the night, and they could not reach the anchorage in such time that the fleet could get well moored. The Rubães then gave the word to stand in to the shore, and proceeded to take up their quarters close to the Arabian shore in twelve fathoms, and there the ships remained during the night. But, when morning was come, they set sail again, and passed close under the Island of or; and one hour before sundown, Afonso Dalboquerque again ordered the Rubães to take him into harbour; at those times he was very careful to put in to any evil chance should happen to him at night.

Abães set all the fleet in order, so as to stand in, first a place called Luya,<sup>1</sup> where there is a large yyah, or Lohia, in lat. 15 deg. 43 min. N., on the Arabian sea plan on Admiralty Chart, No. 86, Red Sea, sheet 4. From Don Pêro, it does not appear that there is good anchorage for ships.

bay, with a headland jutting out into the sea, and behind it a very good harbour sheltered from the east wind. As they were proceeding thus on their course in full sail, one of those Rubães, to show that he had better knowledge than his fellows, told Afonso Dalboquerque to order the fleet to luff<sup>1</sup> as much as possible, for, if they kept on in the tack they were now sailing upon, they would not be able to double the point of the reef; so he ordered the pilot of his ship to keep on sounding with the lead-line in his hand, and steer the ship as was suggested. And the pilot thus making way and sounding at the same time, the ship touched the ground at eight fathoms, and then struck again in four fathoms and a half; and on this reef the ship beat three times.

As soon as the ship touched the bottom, the pilot gave the word to strike all the sails at once,<sup>2</sup> and cast an anchor, and the ship swung back immediately upon the cable, and fell back into five fathoms and a half. At the sight of this accident, which had befallen the flag-ship, Lopo Vaz de Sampaio, D. João Dessa, Pero de Afonseca, Simão Velho, and Fernão Gomez de Lemos, furled their sails and cast anchors, and came up at once in their boats. The other captains, who were out more to seaward, held on their course a good way off, for they were more to leeward, and proceeded to take up a good position where D. Garcia had berthed his ship.

The pilot, finding that the ship held by the cable, got down into his skiff and took soundings all round her; and finding a good bottom, proceeded to lay out a towing-rope to the Madanella, which had cast anchor in sixteen fathoms. And, as the bottom where the ship had grounded was ribbed with sand, in a very little space of time they managed to force the ship off the beach, but not without great exertion on the part of Diego Fernandez de Béja, the captain of the ship: for although he had been severely wounded by a musket shot, which struck him on the breast in the neighbourhood of the liver, of which he carried the nail into the eye of his breast, for it could not be extracted, and was therefore compelled to use a wooden tube, by which a large discharge was kept up, he worked very hard on his part to save the ship, and all the Fuzigees and Cavaliers who sailed in her helped him, for on such occasions as this all the men were looking after their own treasures. The ship, however, proved to be water-tight, and without the least leak, for the strokes which she made on the sand were not slight, and when everything had been set right again, they all set sail, and stood in for the anchorage where D. Garcia was already anchored. He indeed, knew nothing of this accident, for he had gone on in advance.

<sup>1</sup> Que mandasse ir a Armada toda á orsa quanto podesse. See Jal, Gloss. Naut., s. v. orza.

<sup>2</sup> Amainar de ramania; "Toute de suite", Jal, s. v.

All that night the fleet rode at anchor in this harbour, and when morning was come, set sail again and reached Cambray: and just as the ships were standing close in to the harbour some shallops<sup>1</sup> were sighted sailing out of the port. As soon as they were caught sight of, Afonso Dalboquerque ordered D. Garcia to go in chase of them, thinking it was a ship from Debal, which was keeping along in front of him. D. Garcia reached the shallops, and found they were barques carrying persons from the island to the mainland, who were flying in fear of our fleet; so he made them strike their sails, and took out of them certain Moors, both men and women, as well as a Principal Xequé, who had hidden himself for fear of the King of Adem. The whole fleet, then, stood in under sail, and anchored in the harbour, where we found a ship belonging to the Grand Sultan, and another to the merchant, without crews—for they had all fled—and two ships drawn up on the beach. The next day after their arrival the easterly winds dropped, and the west winds began to blow, whereupon Afonso Dalboquerque became very much alarmed, for he saw that it was no longer in his power to get to Judá nor to Suez, as he had hoped to do, for, in the straits, the only winds that blow are east and west.<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Geluas; see vol. i, p. 226.

---

CHAPTER IX.

How the great Afonso Dalboquerque determined to set sail from that place to Judá, and what happened on the way; and of the sign which he beheld in the heavens.

After many days had passed, while the great Afonso Dalboquerque lay to off Camarão, because of the west winds that were blowing, one day during the night the east wind began to blow, so he, desirous as he was of performing the voyage that he had set out upon, sent word immediately to the captains to make themselves ready, for on the following day he was determined to set sail; and when morning was come they all weighed anchor and made sail, and steered out of the harbour between some islands and sand banks—a very narrow passage for ships so large—shaping their course for an island which lies in the broad sea; but just as they arrived off this island the west wind began to blow again, so they all anchored there in a bottom of from fifteen to thirty fathoms, where they remained for many days. Afonso Dalboquerque, annoyed at this westerly gust of wind, and anxious to know what was going on in the open sea, despatched João Gomez in the caravela, and Domingo Fernandez the pilot with him, to make their way to an island lying in the midst of the straits, called Ceibão,<sup>1</sup> so as to see what sea and what wind there might be there, for he could not believe that this was owing to anything else than his sins.

<sup>1</sup> This is scarcely correct of the winds that now are met with in the Red Sea. See Red Sea Pilot, &c.

They proceeded on their way, and in tacking once, in and out, they reached the island; and, after taking the soundings all around it,<sup>2</sup> returned forthwith to the place where our fleet was at anchor, and declared to him that they found out there just the same kind of calm weather as there was with the fleet, and the same soundings around that island, but no current in the sea from one side to the other, only the ebb and flow. Afonso Dalboquerque was pleased at the news brought by João Gomez, for as there were no currents in the sea he was in hopes of being able to make one tack out and in again, so as to reach Judá, or, at least, some harbour on the land of the Preste João; but this was impossible, for in the straits one cannot sail by tacking, on account of the shallows, whereat he became much alarmed. The Rútiæs,<sup>3</sup> seeing him in this state of mind, begged him not to be alarmed, for a change of wind was a very natural thing in the straits; and when a certain star, called Turia, appeared on the south side, two or three days of east wind would ensue, and this would carry them to Judá. With this ray of hope which the Rútiæs<sup>3</sup> offered him, Afonso Dalboquerque permitted himself to rest there a few more days, and while they were all there lying at anchor, waiting for the favour of our Lord, there appeared over against the land of the Preste João a cross in the heavens, very clear and resplendent, just as is here depicted; and when a cloud passed over it, it was rent into several parts without <sup>1</sup> Saba, or Zebayer, Island, lying in 15 deg. 5 min. N. lat., N.W. by W. of Jebel Zebáyir, and between Jebel Teir and Cape Bab-el-Mandeb, about half a mile over and nearly round, consisting of a sandy plain with two remarkable hills on it, each of which has a crater.

<sup>2</sup> See Admiralty chart, Red Sea.

<sup>3</sup> Rútiæs, a typographical error in the text.

THE CROSS WHICH AFONSO DALBOQUERQUE SAW IN THE SKY.

From the Edition of 1774, Part IV, p. 50.

touching the cross, or covering its clearness. This cross was beheld by everybody in the fleet, and all with many tears fell down on their knees and worshipped it.

Seeing that sign in the heavens, Afonso Dalboquerque came to the conclusion that our Lord was minded that they should shape their voyage to the land of the Preste João and not to Judá, since it was towards that land that He had shown them the sign of His Holy Cross, and he determined to tack towards the land of the Preste João; but the people in the fleet, like men of little faith, caused him much inconvenience in hope of preventing this. Afonso Dalboquerque, however, commanded that an examination should be made throughout all the ships concerning this sign which was seen in the heavens, and all declared that they had seen a Cross in the heavens, very clear and resplendent, for a considerable space of time. Whereof a document was drawn up which he sent to the king D. Manuel.

When this incident had passed, the want of water being still felt in the fleet, Afonso Dalboquerque, finding himself quite in despair of ever making the intended voyage (as it was now the end of May), ordered all to set sail, and they set out towards Camarão, where they remained during the months of June and July, without rain once during the time, nor having any bad weather when a boat could not pass all over the straits. During the time that he remained there he lost many men by disease, for it is a very unhealthy land; and he ordered that all the ships should be refitted in anticipation of the time that was coming when they should shape their course for India. Now, because the Island of Dalaca<sup>1</sup> is very celebrated in those straits on account of the seed-pearl fishery which is carried on therein, he ordered João Gomez, captain of the caravela, to go and see what kind of thing it was, and use the best endeavour he could to get possession of a shallop, so as to learn news of Judá and of Suez, giving him a Rubão of the same land, and Domingos Fernandez, the pilot, to accompany him.

<sup>1</sup> See p. 37.

As soon as João had started, Afonso Dalboquerque determined to proceed to Zibit,<sup>1</sup> which is a chief city where the Xequé of Adem always stays, intending to parley with him concerning certain Portuguese captives still in his power, who were wrecked in a brigantine which accompanied Duarte de Lemos<sup>2</sup> when he went as chief captain of a fleet on the Cape of Guardafum (whereof Gregorio da Quadra was captain, as I shall relate hereafter so as not now to interrupt the thread of my history), and in order the better to accomplish this business he sent also a Moor, who had been taken out of the Grand Sultan's ship, with his wife and children, a merchant, who had been formerly a captive, and gave him a letter for the Xequé of Adem and another for the captives who were there, promising at the same time that on the restoration of the captives he would give him his wife and children again and set him at liberty.

The Moor replied, that if only he would put him on shore he would do all that was demanded of him; and when he reached Zibit, where the Xequé lived—seven days' journey from Adem—he delivered the letters which he carried, and the Xequé received them; but on the following day the Xequé sent back the Moor without delay to the harbour wherein the vessel which had brought him was lying, escorted by certain men in charge of him, and then he declared to our people, without saying a word about the captives, that if Afonso Dalboquerque chose to restore to him his wife and children, he would give two hundred

<sup>1</sup> Called Zebir in chap. ii, but from the context, there is little doubt it is the same place. Rás Zebid, on the Arabian coast, in lat. 14 deg. 6 min. N., has an excellent spring of fresh water emptying itself into the sea, and is still used as a watering-place on the voyage from Kamarán to the Straits of Bab-el-Mandeb.

<sup>2</sup> See note of his character in vol. ii, p. 242.

pardaos ;<sup>1</sup> but he said no more, for the Moors who escorted him would not allow him to speak any further, although they showed him a place where he could send off some fresh stores from the land, and from that place they returned to the Xequê, without any further intercourse.

Three days after the vessel had returned with this reply, João Gomez arrived, and recounted to Afonso Dalboquerque how he had reached the Island of Dalaca,<sup>2</sup> and anchored outside the shallows which encircle the harbour, and gone in his skiff to shore ; and that the Xequê of the island had sent word to him by two mounted Moors asking what it was that he wished ; and he had replied that he came thither in obedience to the orders of the Captain-General of India, who was anchored off Camarão with a great fleet, seeking to know if they would purchase any merchandise in exchange for seed-pearl,<sup>3</sup> and the Xequê had sent in answer to say that there were no merchants in his land, but only men-at-arms ; and on receipt of this reply he did not care to hold any more converse with the Moors, but withdrew and sailed all round the island, which lies in sight of the land of the Preste João—just as do the fields along the banks of the river Tagus opposite Lisbon—but he had not crossed over to it, for he carried no definite orders empowering him to do so ; and he had met with a shallop in the sea, fishing for seed-pearl, but when he got up close to her, she took to the shallows and sandbanks close by, whither the caravela could not follow her, and so got away.

Afonso Dalboquerque was somewhat cheered up at this news, for when the weather should turn out favourable for the navigation, he was determined to sail away to the land of the Preste João with all his fleet. And being thus minded, there came a man-at-arms to him, who said, if his lordship desired to send to the King Dom Manuel an account of what had been done in that part of the world, he would essay to make good his journey to Cairo, and so proceed from that city to Portugal. At this, Afonso Dalboquerque asked him how he could hope to accomplish such a journey when he did not know the language of the country? The man-at-arms replied, that he had been a Moor, but at Azamor<sup>1</sup> he had joined the Christians, and therefore he could make that journey in safety, for he was well acquainted with the Arabic tongue. Seeing that he ran no risk in this matter, and that it would be a great happiness for the King Dom Manuel to know how the Portuguese were faring in the straits, Afonso Dalboquerque accepted this man's voluntary offer, and ordered that he should be supplied with money for the journey, telling him how to conduct himself, and then gave orders that he should be set upon the main-land in front of Camarão with iron fetters on his feet, so that it should be seen that he was a fugitive from the fleet.

<sup>1</sup> See vol. ii, p. 95.

<sup>2</sup> See p. 37.

<sup>3</sup> See vol. i, p. 235.

This man reached Portugal in due course, and the king was very much pleased with the news which he brought, and made use of him to carry back the reply. On that very night in which he set forth, while the heavens were quite clear, there came down from the side of the Preste John's land a ray of fire,<sup>2</sup> very broad and very long, which spreading itself along the sky fell down at last in the direction of Jada and Méca, causing great dismay throughout the land. The Xequé, also, and all the Moors who were present were terrified, for they regard it a prophecy that the King of Jada shall give his horses provender within a certain time. This Xequé allowed Afonso Dalboquerque to proceed with all his people up to the day of his departure, and showed him many favours.

<sup>1</sup> Azamor lies on the N.W. coast of Marocco.

<sup>2</sup> A shooting of fire in the clear sky is a common form of mediæval

<sup>3</sup> Not in European and Oriental chronicles.

CHAPTER X.

How Gregorio da Quadra and the others, his companions, who were captive in the power of the King of Adem, escaped from their captivity ; and what he went through until his arrival at this kingdom of Portugal.

Inasmuch as I have just declared that I would give some account of the Portuguese captives in the power of the Xequé of Adem, who would not take any ransom for them, and would relate how they escaped out of the captivity in which they lay, I thought it fit that I should first of all narrate how they were wrecked. It was in this way. At the time when Duarte de Lemos, chief captain, was lying at anchor with his fleet off the coast of Melinde, a great darkness and storm fell on them one night, and one of his brigantines was driven from her moorings, but no one knew whether the cables snapped accidentally or whether they were cut by design. The captain of this vessel was Gregorio da Quadra, an honourable man, servant of the king D. Manuel. The great current of water,<sup>1</sup> which at that time was running direct towards the entrance of the straits, brought the ship down with it, and when morning broke the crew found themselves opposite Adem.

When the natives of the land saw the brigantine, and perceived that there were Christians on board, they fitted out two fustas and took her, and all those who were on board, and carried these men forthwith before the King of Adem, who dwelt in the city of Zebit,<sup>2</sup> the capital city of his kingdom. As the king was an ill-conditioned fellow, and accustomed to treat his captives with cruelty, he gave orders that they should be thrust into a dry cistern, where he kept many other captives of different nations. They had already been eight years in captivity, and all were dead, except five when Afonso Dalboquerque was at anchor off Adem. Gregorio da Quadra, being a sensible man, lost no time in learning the Arabic tongue, and could speak the language very well, so much so that the people could not believe that he was not a Moor. And he became a tailor, and there in the cistern he used to make caps; and at length he became so clever in the fashioning of them, that the Moors used to bring him dates and raisins, wherewith all the captives were supported, for the custom in that land is to wear these caps.

<sup>1</sup> The currents sometimes have a rate of forty miles a day.—Red Sea Pilot.

<sup>2</sup> See p. 46.

A few days after Afonso Dalboquerque had returned out of the straits, making his voyage to India, one of the principal Moors of the city of Zebit rose up in rebellion against this king who held these men in captivity, claiming that the kingdom belonged to him, and came down against the king, and routed his forces and took from him the city of Zebit, setting free the captives in the cistern, and giving them their liberty to go wherever they pleased. And as he had vowed, should Mahomet give him the victory, to make a pilgrimage to his shrine, after all the affairs of the kingdom were set in order again, he made ready to set out in fulfilment of this pilgrimage. Gregorio da Quadra, being determined to go to Méca and wait there for the caravan which comes from Damascus every year, intending to proceed from that city to Baçora,<sup>1</sup> and from Baçora to Ormuz, besought the new king to take him in his company, and he, looking upon him as a saint, was delighted with the idea of his desiring to be of his company, and gave him a camel to ride on, and paid all his travelling expenses.

As soon as they arrived at Medina, where Mahomet lies buried in a sepulchre in the midst of the temple, surrounded with iron gratings, the king and all those who accompanied him began to march around it, reciting their prayers. But Gregorio da Quadra, who was with them, remembering the Faith of Jesus Christ, in which he had been brought up, and finding himself in that position, shedding many tears, cried out, "Prophet of Satan, if thou art that one whom these dogs adore, manifest to them that I am a Christian, for I hope, by our Lord's mercy, that I shall yet behold this, thy house of abomination, become a church for His praise, like as is that of our Lady of Conception at Lisbon." And he uttered these words with so many tears, that the Cacizes<sup>1</sup> who were standing by, astounded at his sanctity, begged him very earnestly to take up his abode with them for some days.

<sup>1</sup> Basra, or Bassorah, at the head of the Persian Gulf.

Now, as the Damascus caravan had set out just two days before this party arrived at Méca, Gregorio da Quadra decided to cross the desert and try and overtake it, and if he failed to do so, then to trust to the mercy of our Lord to direct him towards the straits of Ormuz. So he told the king that he was desirous of going to pay a visit to the Temple of Mahomet's grandchildren who are buried in Persia, and therefore he would beg royal permission for this journey. The king, who was pleased to have him in his company, took this very much to heart, and said to him: "Whither dost thou desire to go? There is nothing there but desert; and even the birds of that country cannot hold any communication with the birds of this land." Nevertheless, Gregorio da Quadra took leave of the king, and set out upon his journey, not knowing where he was going, travelling for many days along those deserts, with not a blade of grass in them, only heaps of loose sand; and when he had consumed the slight store of provision which he had taken with him, he used to eat locusts and other winged creatures. As he carried no clothing upon himself, except only a piece of common cloth to hide his nakedness, and the sun was fierce, he became blistered in such a dreadful manner that long stripes burst open all down his body, and he became so raw that he could not lie down to sleep, but used to make a pit with his hands in the sand, of considerable depth, and then getting into the middle of it so slept standing. When he felt himself at length thoroughly weakened, and all his energy gone, so weak, in fact, that he could walk no further, he crawled to the foot of a hill of sand and fell upon his knees, and, casting his eyes up to the heavens, besought the mercy of God, saying: "Lord, seeing that I am Thy creature, redeemed with Thy precious blood, and that Thou hast permitted me to escape from the captivity in which I lay, have mercy upon me, and be not willing that I should come thus miserably to my end here in these deserts." Then he began to confess his sins to God, begging Him to bear his soul in remembrance, having quite made up his mind to bring his journeyings to a close at that spot. But while he was uttering these words, and many others of the same kind, he was lifted up off the ground, and borne up on to the top of the sand hill, where those who bore him left him without his seeing who they were; and, remaining in this state, he looked down and beheld a camel, and going a little further he caught sight of a Moor; then, making his way towards him, he came up with the caravan, which had halted at that spot to take in water, for this spot happened to be one of the watering places of the route.

<sup>1</sup> See vol. iii, 69.

The Moors of the caravan were astounded when they saw, as they thought, men in those deserts, and decided that he must be a saint; they took him in among them, and healed the raw places with which he was afflicted, his body being entirely covered with open sores; then they gave him a garment to cover him, and inquired of him whence he came, and how he had come to be in that place. Gregorio da Quadra replied with a narrative of all that he had gone through, showing how he was engaged on a pilgrimage to the sacred bodies buried in Persia. So when the caravan party had accomplished their taking-in of water, they set forth again on the journey, and reached Babylonia, and there they parted company with him, and made their way to Damascus. Gregorio da Quadra, however, reached Baçora, and embarked in a terrada<sup>1</sup> (or small Indian man-of-war), which was bound to Ormuz, in company with other Moors; and when he arrived at the gate of our fortress, he asked what day it was. He was told that it was Thursday in Passion week.<sup>2</sup> Then he threw himself down on the ground, and shedding many tears, gave thanks to our Lord who had brought him safely to the land of Christians on that day. D. Garcia de Coutinho, captain of the fortress, when he saw him, was very much astonished, and inquired of him the way he had taken. Thereupon, Gregorio da Quadra recounted all that had taken place with him; and that before Afonso Dalboquerque had arrived off Adem with his fleet, he had tried to escape with four companions—for all the others were dead by that time—in a shallop; but when they got out to sea they were retaken, and something was given them to eat which intoxicated them; and while they were insensible for three days, the sign of the Moor had been wrought upon them;<sup>3</sup> and at the time of Afonso Dalboquerque's departure they were at Zibit, and he knew nothing more of what had happened to them. D. Garcia treated him with great kindness, and embarked him for India with all necessaries for the voyage; and when he arrived at length at this kingdom of Portugal, he became a Franciscan friar in the Capuchin Order, and so ended his days with holiness.

<sup>1</sup> See vol. i, p. 105.

<sup>2</sup> Quinta feira de Endoenças.

<sup>3</sup> I.e., they were circumcised.

---

CHAPTER XI.

How the great Afonso Dalboquerque set sail out of the harbour of Camaráo for India, and what took place on the voyage.

The great Afonso Dalboquerque, having carefully gathered together all the information he could obtain concerning the affairs of the straits, and being now very desirous of performing his voyage to India, commanded the captains to get themselves ready, and on the fifteenth day of the month of July, in the year [one thousand] five hundred and thirteen, warped his ships out of Camaráo harbour, and without touching land anywhere, steered his course direct to the gates of the straits; and having passed through, proceeded to cast anchor with all the fleet behind the island,<sup>1</sup> which lies athwart the mouth of the straits, as I have already shown. And, in order that he might leave nothing unexplored in this voyage, he desired also to find out what islands these were, and what harbours there were in them. One day, therefore, before sunrise, he got into his boat with Domingo Fernandez, the pilot, and D. Garcia de Noronha, Lopo Vaz de Sampayo, and D. João de Lima in theirs, and all together in a party made their way to a harbour which the island possesses, looking towards the land of the Preste João, that makes a large bay,<sup>2</sup> eating away, as it were, part of the island, and making within itself three smaller bays;<sup>3</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Perim or Meyune.

<sup>2</sup> Perim Harbour, on the south-west of the Island of that name, is small, and divided into two branches, each about eight or nine cables long. The entrance is four cables and a half broad, and has a depth of ten or twelve fathoms, extending to within half a cable's length of each side; the north-east arm is considerably obstructed by shoals; the north-west one is better to anchor in as it is clearer. Anchorage may be obtained in it in five or six fathoms, as the Commentaries proceed to shew. The bottom is sand and coral, with plenty of room for a ship to swing.—Red Sea Pilot, p. 127.

<sup>3</sup> These three bays are well shown on the Admiralty Chart of Perim Island.

AFONSO DALBOQUERQUE.

the mouth of the harbour being so situated that when it has been entered the land appears to close in around it in such a manner that the open sea can no longer be seen. This harbour has an inside depth of from six to twelve fathoms, and would contain two hundred of our ships. It is sheltered from the winds on all sides.

When Afonso Dalboquerque found himself within the harbour, he disembarked with all his captains and explored a great part of the island, which he found covered with loose stones, large and small, with not a single tree, nor a green blade of grass in it. In a sandy valley, which lies on the Red Sea side, they found a very ancient cistern, built after the manner of a tank, without a covering, choked up and without any water, and a pond also choked up with earth, but they could only see the mouth of it. This island has a lofty knoll opposite the entrance of the straits, and upon it Afonso Dalboquerque ordered that a cross should be set, large and very tall, formed out of a mast, and he inscribed upon it the name ILHA DA VERA CRUZ, i.e., Island of the True Cross, in remembrance of the sign which he had seen when he was in the straits. When he had made an end of seeing everything on the island, he withdrew to the boats, and so returned to the ships; and on the following morning dispatched Ruy Galvão in his ship, and João Gomez in the caravela, to proceed to Zeila, and endeavour to open communication with the Moors of the land, and observe the nature of the place, and of its people and its trade; but if they found any ships in the harbour, and the Moors would not treat their overtures with respect, then they were to set the ships on fire, and return to Adem and look out for the fleet, for he would lie off and wait there for their return.

As soon as Afonso Dalboquerque had despatched these off, he set sail, and proceeded to cast anchor in front of the city, where were found a large number of great ships; the around it. The building was fortified with a wall and many more towers upon it than there used to be. But, in order that the Moors should understand the foolishness of their idea that these preparations suited it all to the greater security of their position, without any delay he placed D. Garcia de Noronha, his nephew, in charge of a large party to attack the island, and give the command to train two cannon at two of the principal points which lay closest to the walls of the island, and from that position to fire, and in so much injury as could be done to those of the enemy who were inside. D. Garcia led off his company of men and assaulted the bulwarks, bearing himself so bravely against the Moors who defended them, that in a very short space of time he overcame them, and took possession of the island. As soon as he was established within it he ordered his men to set up a cannon in the principal tower, and from that point began to fire upon the city, throwing down a great part of the houses. Now, because a catapult, which the Moors had set upon the top of the mountain range, was doing considerable harm to our men who were stationed in the tower, D. Garcia gave João Luiz, artilleryman in charge of the cannon, orders to fire as fast as he could at the Moorish catapult and destroy it, if possible. João Luiz, angry that one of his gunners had been killed by the enemy, opened fire upon the catapult, and got so good a range, that at the second shot he broke it down, and the Moors, to shelter themselves from his fire, built up a high wall of stone and mortar. The merchant strangers, who had ships in the port, perceived the destruction of the houses which was going on within the city, and fearing that Afonso Dalboquerque would give orders that their ships too should be set on fire, sent word to him, that they would ransom them at whatever price he would set upon them; but his answer was that he would not take any price for them, except only the liberation of the captive Christians in power of the Xequé of Adem, and if this were not complied with he would not save a single ship that should not be burned.

<sup>1</sup> See vol. i, p. 73.

As these merchants never came back with any further offers, Afonso Dalboquerque determined to fulfil his threat that he would set fire to them, so he gave an account of what he had said to the captains; but because the setting fire to them could not be carried into execution without some danger to our men, the captains were all of opinion that it ought not to be attempted, and that it was not worth while to jeopardise the life of a single man in a matter of so little importance, for the Moors were possessed of a great store of artillery, trained upon these ships in order to protect them, and that business could not be carried out so easily, but that it would be like to cost us dearly. When Afonso Dalboquerque noticed all these excuses made by half-hearted men, he determined to execute the business by the sailors alone—whom he indeed always spoke of as “my cavaliers.” So he ordered Fernão Afonso, master of his ship, and Domingo Fernandez the pilot, to prepare in readiness for him a hundred men, for with their aid he intended to perform this undertaking and thereby to put to shame all the captains, fidalgoes, and cavaliers of the fleet. So when all were in readiness, this party embarked in the boats, and Afonso Dalboquerque got into his skiff, intending to encourage them with the trumpeters. It was on a Friday at midnight, when the Moors were not on the watch, they ran the boats on shore, and running for a considerable distance along the water side, fell upon thirty Moors who were keeping guard over the ships and killed the greater number of them, and set the ships on fire. But as they were all sodden with water, only three were destroyed. When this was done, the party returned to the boats, and made their way to the ships, highly pleased with their adventure, without any misfortune happening to any one of them. And when all had returned with this unlooked-for victory, the captains and men-at-arms became so ashamed that they begged Afonso Dalboquerque to give them permission to go and burn the ships which remained, but he would not allow them to do so because the Moors were now on the watch for them.

That very morning Ruy Gonçalvez and João Gomez returned, bringing word how they had reached Zeila, and explored the entrance of the harbour, yet when they desired to open communication with the people of the land, they could get no reply; but some of the mounted men began to skirmish, endeavouring to draw them on, and when they perceived this they would not be provoked, and avoided any conflict; nevertheless they burnt twenty of the native ships, which lay in the harbour, of great size. It was there that the Abyssinian fled off from shore, with Ruy Galvão (as I have already related),<sup>1</sup> and Afonso Dalboquerque sent him to the king D. Manuel to carry information concerning those parts, for he was a man of considerable ability and could give a very good account of these things, because he had been always attached to the Factor of the Grand Sultan.

---

CHAPTER XII.

How the great Afonso Dalboquerque set sail from the harbour of Adem for India; and of what passed in the way until his arrival at the city of Goa.

When all these matters had been brought to an end, the great Afonso Dalboquerque gave orders to his captains to weigh anchor; and thus he set sail away from the harbour of Adem, on the fourth day of the month of August, and from that headland tacked over to the other side, and bore up opposite Diolocindi,<sup>1</sup> and from this point ran along in sight of the coast, and so at length arrived at Din where Miliqueaz<sup>2</sup> received them very kindly, and offered them many presents, which he gave to all the captains. Afonso Dalboquerque remained in this port for six days, and took the opportunity of repairing the ships' boats, which had become very much dilapidated from constant service. At his arrival, Miliqueaz came down at once to pay him a visit on board ship, and they both conversed on matters of no importance.

'l his fleet hove in sight of Cape Guardafum, and

<sup>1</sup> See p. 26, end of chap. v.

Afonso Dalboquerque told him that he wished to leave in the port a ship laden with merchandise for sale, and begged him earnestly to order that the Portuguese factor and officers who remained with it should be well treated. Miliqueaz, who was not very well prepared with excuses, replied with ample offers, and Afonso Dalboquerque paid him in the same coin, and then took his leave with many marks of friendship. And when the Portuguese ships had taken in their store of water, he set sail, leaving behind the ship Enxobregas<sup>3</sup> with all the merchandise which she carried, appointing to the duty of factor for this business Fernão Martinz Evangelho, and Jorge Correa for his scrivener. When the fleet had got out to sea, Afonso Dalboquerque sent forward Ruy Galvão to proceed to Goa in his ship, and apprise the captain of the city of the coming of the whole of the fleet; and Jeronymo de Sousa to go on to Cananor and Cochim to do the same; and he himself, with all the other vessels, made his way to Chaul, where he found that Tristão Déga<sup>1</sup> had reached that port two days before, and an ambassador of the King of Cambay in company with him. Tristão Déga recounted that he had been very well received by the king, and gave him a letter for Milecopi, one of the principal Moors of that kingdom, manifesting a desire to serve the King of Portugal; for when he arrived at Cambay (he said), he found that the king had gone to the furthest limit of the kingdom of Mandao,<sup>2</sup> with a large array of men, horses, and artillery against the king; and, therefore, he awaited the king's return at Champanel,<sup>3</sup> and there gave him the two letters sent with him, but the king had answered coldly with respect to the matter of Diu, and it seemed that he would not grant the request concerning it, for, after conversation held between them in this business, the king had offered certain other islands along the coast wherein we might build a fortress and make a settlement, but he would not accept them on the part of the Portuguese, because he held no orders from Afonso Dalboquerque to do so. He had, however, learned from Milecopi that Miliqueaz was at the bottom of all this, being annoyed at finding himself kept out of Diu, and as for the business of the Rumes, the king would not allow them to enter his territory again.<sup>4</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Probably the latter part of the word indicates that Diolocindi is on the coast of Scinde. See Dr. G. P. Badger, Travels of Vartkema, p. 104, Cheo, Joah, Joah, or Kow, one of the estuaries of the Indus.

<sup>2</sup> See vol. iii, pp. 244-246.

<sup>3</sup> Enxobregas. The name of this ship appears to be derived from that of a village near Belem, one of the suburbs of Lisbon.—See Castanheda, ii, chap. cxii, p. 355.

After Tristão Déga had given an account of all these matters to Afonso Dalboquerque, the ambassador for the King of Cambay came to pay him a visit, and delivered his credentials, declaring at the same time that the King of Cambay sent word asking earnestly for his favourable consent that he would give permission to him to send a trading company of Guzarates<sup>5</sup> to Malaca, and also a safe-conduct

<sup>1</sup> See vol. iii, p. 245.

<sup>2</sup> Manda, or Mandoo, south-west of Indur, 22 deg. 21 min. N.; 75 deg. 22 min. E.

<sup>3</sup> Champaner, north-east of Baroda, 22 deg. 29 min. N.; 73 deg. 29 min. E.

<sup>4</sup> See vol. iii, p. 245.

<sup>5</sup> Hum estante dos Guzarates.

for the Cambayan ships to navigate towards those parts ; and complaining that the Portuguese had captured the ship Meri,<sup>1</sup> which belonged to him,<sup>1</sup> but now he desired earnestly that Afonso Dalboquerque would give orders for its restitution, because it had been captured from him while he was at peace with the King of Portugal.

Afonso Dalboquerque replied that the king, his lord, was very desirous of peace and friendship with the King of Cambay, and of trading in his territory, and for this reason he (Afonso) had never made war upon him, nor burned his villages, nor bombarded his fortresses ; but if his ships or his men had received any hurt at the hands of the Portuguese, it must be on account of his having always taken the part of the kings and lords with whom the King of Portugal, his lord, was at war, principally the King of Malaca and the King of Ormuz, to whom he had supplied many ships laden with arms and filled with men ; but he (Afonso) had always pretended to be unaware of it, so as not to break off relations with him. And to Milecopi, Afonso Dalboquerque wrote many thanks for the care he had taken in the affairs of the king, his lord, leading him to indulge in hope of a great reward for his services, and that as for the ship Meri, which the king begged to be restored, he had caused her to be refitted at Cochim, and would return it to him through his ambassador. The ambassador thereupon wrote to the king an account of all that had taken place with Afonso Dalboquerque, sending the letter by one of his servants, and that he himself would accompany the Portuguese, in order to convey the ship back ; and thus it happened that when he reached Goa he set sail in her for Cambay.

Now, inasmuch as Afonso Dalboquerque had received information that the ships for Calicut, which had set out that year as usual for the straits [of the Red Sea], being very late in their departure, had been struck by a storm, which compelled them all to run for shelter into the port of Cambay, as far down as the Mount of Deli,<sup>1</sup> and one of them had even entered in at Danda, in the territory of Chaul: as soon as he entered the harbour, he sent word to those on land to surrender the ship to him, for it belonged to the Meccris of Cairo, the enemies of the king, his lord, and the Governor of Chaul accordingly ordered that it should be immediately delivered to him. The ship proved to hold about three thousand quintals of pepper and ginger. Then Afonso Dalboquerque set sail again and stood off Dabul,<sup>2</sup> where he sent word to the governors to deliver up to him two other ships which were lying in the harbour. But as they began to make excuses, and Afonso Dalboquerque could not delay his voyage, he left Lopo Vaz de Sampayo to keep guard over them with three ships, giving him orders to blockade the port, and prevent any commerce from going on in it until the ships were delivered up to him. In a few days after Afonso Dalboquerque had sailed away, the ships were surrendered with all their cargo of spices.

<sup>1</sup> See vol. i, pp. 113-115 ; ii, p. 122.

And because, also, Afonso Dalboquerque had received information that yet another ship of Calicut was in the harbour of Batalá,<sup>3</sup> he sent Antonio Raposo in a galliot to make his way to that place, and if he should find the governors of the land would not surrender it, then he was to stop the navigation of the place; and Fernão Gomez de Lemos, in another fusta, to proceed to Mangalor, where, according to information received, he knew that there were two more ships, and to do the same. By means of this diligent search, Afonso Dalboquerque obtained possession of every one of the ships which had set out from Calicut for the straits that year, and this caused a great loss to the native merchants. And having thus dispatched these captains, he himself set sail and proceeded to Goa, where everybody received him with great joy; and there he found a present which one of the Ambassadors of the Xequé Ismael, one of the Court of the Hídalcão, had sent him by a servant, who had started from Goa with the intention of returning to see him on his homeward voyage from the Red Sea, before setting out for Persia.

<sup>1</sup> See vol. ii, p. 217.

<sup>2</sup> See vol. ii, p. 166.

<sup>3</sup> See vol. ii, pp. 53, 73, etc.

---

CHAPTER XIII.

How Francisco Nogueira gave an account to the great Afonso Dalboquerque of all that had taken place with the Çamorim respecting the erection of the fortress; and of the council which he held with the captain relating to this, and of what was decided upon.

The great Afonso Dalboquerque having at length reached Goa was received by the captain and people of the city with joyful demonstration. Afterwards, Francisco Nogueira, whom he had left, at the time of his sailing away, with instructions to build the fortress of Calicut (as I have already shown), gave him an account of how, on arrival at Calicut, he had delivered his letters to the Çamorim; but in discussions with that potentate on certain occasions, respecting the building of the fortress, he had found him always unwilling to entertain the idea, making the excuse that he could not prevail upon the Moors of the land to consent to the building of it in the position which was asked for, but he would give him Challe for its site; he would not, however, accept this site, and, even if a site had been conceded to him in Calicut, it would have been impossible to build a fortress in it, unless he himself (Afonso) had been there in person, on account of the conduct of the captains and king's officers, who, although they had received orders to assist him with all their power and aid in carrying out the work, yet had secretly worked against the undertaking with the desire of gratifying the Kings of Cananor and Cochim.

Afonso Dalboquerque, who was determined to plant his foot firmly in Calicut, was highly incensed at the duplicity of the Çamorim, and at finding him, as it were, entering into a new line of policy; and so, desiring to come to a final determination of what should be carried out, he ordered that the captains and king's officers should be summoned, and then and there recounted to them everything that Francisco Nogueira had transacted with the Çamorim, and how, in the ships which had come that year from Portugal, the king had written to him to say that, in respect of the affairs of Calicut, he must so bear himself, that the King of Cochim should have no cause of complaint; and that the reason of the king's writing in this manner to him must be owing to certain baseless statements which the officers of Cananor and of Cochim had sent to Portugal concerning that matter, while it was all the time really owing to them that the affair was in a critical state, from their seeking to gratify the kings of those places, who were greatly cast down at thought of this settlement, which the king D. Manuel desired to establish in Calicut; for His Highness was, indeed, under an obligation to the King of Cochim to maintain him in his estate, and pay him the appointed price for the purchases of pepper, but not to maintain his customs and paganisms, nor to make war on Calicut whenever that king wished him to do so.

After listening to these arguments, which Afonso Dalboquerque put before them, everyone carefully discussed the matter. D. Garcia and the captains, on the one hand, declared their opinion that a fortress ought to be erected in Calicut, provided that the king would assent to it by way of friendship and mutual arrangement, for, in a city of such a great size as Calicut was, and one which could be so rapidly reinforced, a fortress could never be built by force unless it were at the cost of much blood. The king's officers, on the other hand, held a different opinion, and maintained that it was not to the interest of his service that a fortress should be built at Calicut, because it could not be sustained without heavy expense, which Afonso Dalboquerque ought to avoid as long as possible (for it was economy that the king desired him more than all to practise), but it would be quite sufficient to prevent and destroy the navigation of the Calicut ships if it were decided to cruise off the coast with a fleet, and so intercept the trade; and so they went on, with other reasons, all based upon the abandoning of the intention of building a fortress.

After D. Garcia and the other captains had given their opinions in this business, Afonso Dalboquerque, perceiving how the excuses, that the king's officers were alleging against the erection of a fortress in Calicut, were evidently preconcerted with the wishes of the Kings of Cananor and Cochim, declared that he would never think of carrying on a dilatory warfare with the Çamorim, but would determinedly enter into it in such a manner that he would be able to completely accomplish it, for any other policy would simply result in keeping the Indian fleet always occupied in blockading Calicut, without being free to undertake any other enterprises; but for the fleet to gain any real advantage, it was very necessary to keep peace and friendship with the Kings of Calicut and Cochim, and endeavour the utmost that they should remain friends, and continue to be so, for in these two ports they would always find the spices packed in the way that they liked best for lading the ships homeward-bound to Portugal; and this friendship could neither be lasting nor secure, especially with the Çamorim, unless the king, our lord, had a fortress in Calicut; for, apart from the fact that by its building they would gain great prestige with the Moors, on account of the extensive repute which this war with us had acquired among them, we should drive away out of the land the Moorish agents from Cairo, for they are really the cause of all these troubles; and we should once for all remove the continual bickerings with the Çamorim, which are of no use except only to redound to the credit of the Moors, and to cause infinite trouble to the Governors of India. And if those persons, he said, who write to the king, our lord, to the effect that it is not beneficial to his service to build this fortress, would only take the trouble to march through the sea with their weapons on their backs, bombarding the Moorish ships which sail away laden with pepper to Méca, as we have done, they would be delighted enough that we should not have these bickerings. And, he continued, although Lourenço Moreno and Antonio Real had written to the King of Portugal that the building of this fortress would greatly increase the expenses of Portugal in India, yet the sums obtained for the safe-conducts of native ships bound to Calicut for their cargoes would amount to quite as great a sum, if they were closely looked after, so that half this source of revenue would be sufficient to pay the expenses of the officers and men who would have to be stationed there. "Much more," said he, "do I trust in our Lord that when we go to Calicut we shall settle this matter in such wise that, on account of the competition of these two Princes, the merchants of Cochim will come to give pepper in exchange for merchandise, and thus a great service to the king will be brought about."

And to these arguments, which Afonso Dalboquerque advanced, there was not one among his hearers who had any reply to make, for, in a matter so clearly stated, nothing more remained to be said. And, in order no longer to delay putting into practice the matters already finally decided upon, Afonso Dalboquerque forthwith ordered a fleet to be made ready, so that he might go in person and conduct this unness. He wrote, also, to the king, sending his letter by the ships of burden which that year reached Portugal, relating all that had taken place, and pointing out the determination at which they had arrived. The king replied that he had considered the arguments advanced in favour of building a fortress in Calicut, and not carrying on that desultory warfare (which he had often written that he ought to do), and that he now approved of this intention, and that must be done which seemed best for the service; for, as he had a very good experience of what had been already performed, this would of itself be good reason to look upon the counsel now offered as more valuable than that of any one else, even if he (the king) had been in India, and much more so as he was far away from that country, although the reports he had received enabled him to form a very good idea of the position in which the matter stood.

---

CHAPTER XIV.

How the great Afonso Dalboquerque set sail for Cochim, and sent D. Garcia de Noronha to Calicut to settle the terms of peace; and what passed with the King of Cochim on this matter.

Now that all the captains had decided that a fortress must be built in Calicut, for the reasons already detailed, the great Afonso Dalboquerque made up his mind to set sail for Cochim with the fleet, which he had already in preparation, and from that place make a settlement of the business in hand as best could be to this end: and he ordered D. Garcia de Noronha, his nephew, to proceed to Calicut and learn from the Çamorim what course he intended to pursue, and to request him to perform four conditions.

The first was to grant space in the roadstead in front of his Cerame,<sup>1</sup> on which to build a fortress, capable of receiving our men and protecting them from troubles, such as they had suffered in the past.

<sup>1</sup> See vol. i, p. 115.

The second, that he must give whatever pepper was required for the lading of the ships bound to Portugal, in exchange for merchandise of various kinds, according to the weights and prices current in Cananor; and that the factor of the king, his lord, must be allowed to purchase the ginger, which the producers are in the habit of bringing down for sale to the market-place, in accordance with the custom of the country.

The third, to repay all the property which the Moors had taken from the Portuguese in times past.

The fourth, that he must pay a yearly tribute towards the expenses of the fortress, and those who are in charge of it, equivalent to one-half of the payments compulsory on the Moorish merchants, for the safe-conduct of their shipping.

A few days after D. Garcia had set out for Calicut, Afonso Dalboquerque sailed away to Cochim; and as soon as he arrived, the king came down and paid him a visit; and in the interview between them, which was held in the presence of Gaspar Pereira, Diogo Pereira, and Lourenço Moreno, officers of the factory, the king began to complain loudly that he had not given him any account of this new friendship which he was striking up with the Çamorim, and brought out some letters which he (Afonso) had written to him, and the replies. But, as there was nothing contained in them which the king of Cochim could find fault with, Afonso Dalboquerque flew into a great passion, and said to him: "These letters are, indeed, mine; I will not deny them; and you ought to have the sense to perceive that, in accordance with the charge with which I am entrusted, I should reply in the name of the king, my lord, both to friends and to enemies, especially to those who send word to me to make peace and friendship, and are willing to give me a fortress in their ports, as the Çamorim does. I know too, very well how you are plotting to draw over to your side both friends and enemies, and casting about in every possible manner to maintain your kingdom and your lands in security, although you do not tell me anything about it, nor do I ask you to do so, although it would have been a sensible act on your part to have sought to interest me in these matters, for in all your difficulties you seek my assistance; and bear in mind, when the death of your uncle took place,<sup>1</sup> with what haste I came at your call, assembling my fleet was all cleared for immediate sailing to undertake the enterprise against Goa; and if you are to be as liberty to do what pleases you best, how is it that you do not think it equally right for me to learn from the Çamorim what it is that he desires of me, and to reply to his letters for all that he is an enemy of the King of Portugal, my lord; and besides that, not to be at peace with him, when it pleases me, for it is in my hands to keep peace with him if I choose, and to make war with him if I choose, and burn his ships if I choose, and destroy all his ports if I choose?<sup>2</sup> But if either of us has any thing to complain of I am the one, and not you; for if I have not destroyed the Çamorim, it is solely because you, and the King of Cananor, whenever you see he is worsted, help him with your forces, and send him ships laden with supplies, sailing under safe-conduct from the king, my lord; for you wish that this argument should be always going on; but if both of you really desire his destruction (as you have often given me to understand that you do), and had ranged yourselves on my side, and on that of the marshal,<sup>3</sup> in the attack on Calicut, he would have been entirely destroyed."

The King of Cochim, somewhat disconcerted at this turn in the conversation, and at the impetuosity with which

<sup>1</sup> See vol. ii, p. 236.

<sup>2</sup> Note the passionate repetition of se quizer at the close of these periods.

<sup>3</sup> Dom Fernando Continbo. See vol. ii, chaps. xii-xvii.

Afonso Dalboquerque put the case before him, replied that he had always been the servant of the King of Portugal, and that all the members of his family, ever since the Portuguese had made their entry into India, had died in his service; and inasmuch as the King of Calicut had been the principal cause of this, it was not likely that he would now turn round and help that king against the Portuguese; and the reason why he had not assisted the Portuguese in the Calicut enterprise (as was alleged by Afonso Dalboquerque) was because he had not desired more help from him than that which formerly the marshal had requested from him, the day when he gave him an account of the matter.

Afonso Dalboquerque answered that the King of Cochim ought to bear in mind that the differences which the Portuguese had in times past with the Çamorim were all caused by their defending for the king his kingdom of Cochim, which the Çamorim claimed to belong to himself; and if his relatives had died in the service of the King of Portugal, so likewise the Marshal,<sup>1</sup> and all those who came to their end at Calicut, died in defending his honour and estate for him, and even he himself had been maimed in the left arm, so that he could not easily raise it to his head.<sup>2</sup> And he would have him to know for certain that if he (the King of Cochim) and the King of Cananor had made up their minds beforehand to support the Çamorim henceforth, as they had hitherto done, so also he on his part was determined not to wage war upon him any longer, so let every one look after his own interests.

When this interview was over, the King of Cochim took his leave of Afonso Dalboquerque, not well pleased at these and other things which he had heard; but notwithstanding this, both he and the King of Cananor, in order to obstruct this business, did not break off their communication with the Caimais<sup>1</sup> and the lords of the Malabar territory. All this Afonso Dalboquerque learned afterwards from the aged Alguazil of Cananor who lived in Calicut.

<sup>1</sup> For a review of the historical circumstances here alluded to, see vol. ii, pp. 63, 64.

<sup>2</sup> For account of Afonso Dalboquerque's wound, see vol. ii, pp. 70, 71.

---

CHAPTER XV.

How D. Garcia de Noronha sent a despatch to the great Afonso Dalboquerque of what had passed with the Çamorim, and what was done in consequence of this; and how he went to Calicut and built a fortress therein.

Now, while the relations between the King of Cochim and the great Afonso Dalboquerque were in the condition recounted above, each one endeavouring to improve his position as best he could, there arrived a despatch from D. Garcia for Afonso Dalboquerque, wherein was set forth that on his reaching Calicut he had laid the appointed conditions before the Çamorim, but up to the latest hour no reply to it had been received; and, indeed, he did not think that the Çamorim intended to take the necessary steps to bring the matter to conclusion, for delays were continually brought forward, and every day showed a new aspect of the affairs, so that he had no name to give to these procrastinations.

Afonso Dalboquerque knew very well from which quarter all this proceeded, and determined to cut short this malice as well as he could; and because the Çamorim was encouraged by the native Moorish merchants to continue to delay this business, he thought it wise to make use of the Prince, brother of the Çamorim, who was a devoted servant of the King of Portugal, and consequently wrote to him privately a letter, in which he said that if he really desired the friendship of the King of Portugal (as he had oftentimes declared that he did), now was the time to give effect to this desire by ordering the Çamorim to be poisoned; and when he was dead, then they would take counsel together in the manner which he liked best. The Prince, who was desirous of peace, and greatly disgusted with the Moors of Cairo, who had taken up their abode in Calicut, because they made it their business to advise his brother the Çamorim not to comply with the Portuguese demands, and being also actuated by a desire of reigning, put into execution the suggestions which Afonso Dalboquerque made to him.

<sup>1</sup> See vol. i, p. 3.

As soon as the Çamorim was dead, the Prince was raised to the throne, and, being in possession of the kingdom, took to himself the aged Alguazil who had come from Cananor, whom his brother would not countenance because he was a true and loyal servant of the King of Portugal; and after the lapse of a few days, the new Çamorim sent word by one of his Caimais to D. Garcia desiring him to write to the Captain-General of India that his brother the Çamorim was dead, and he in possession of the kingdom; and that he would be happy to make peace with the King of Portugal, and give him a site in Calicut to build a fortress whenever he liked; and that he had not, however, given any notice of this affair to the principal Moors of the land, a course which had caused great difference between them, for they all desired to maintain the policy of inflexibility and contumacy shown by the late Çamorim. But as the Prince was a true man, and influenced by his wife, whom he loved very dearly (for although it was the custom of that country to have many wives, and for their sons not to become their heirs, he had only this one, and the children which he had by her had been declared his heirs), and she very desirous of maintaining peace and friendship with the

CALEQUIN

377761

Fornes de call

O REY DE CALEQUIN COTEMOR QUE OS NÓS TOMARIA DELE YINGANGA DA MORTE DO MARICHAL CO-MVITTOZ
 NOG OS A FONSO DALBOOYROVE LIME ASENTOR PAS FASENDO ESTA FORTILESA ASSA CUSTA QUE EDIUI EM MVITA 1373 ATE OANO DE 1528 QUE DO JOAR DE LIMA SENDO CAPITAN ALLEVATOR GEMA E SEDES ES FORTILESA EM TENPO DO GOVERNADOR DOM ANRIQUE DE MENESES

him with all their power and aid in carrying out the work, yet had secretly worked against the undertaking with the desire of gratifying the Kings of Cananor and Cochim.

Afonso Dalboquerque, who was determined to plant his foot firmly in Calicut, was highly incensed at the duplicity of the Çamorim, and at finding him, as it were, entering into a new line of policy; and so, desiring to come to a final determination of what should be carried out, he ordered that the captains and king's officers should be summoned, and then and there recounted to them everything that Francisco Nogueira had transacted with the Çamorim, and how, in the ships which had come that year from Portugal, the king had written to him to say that, in respect of the affairs of Calicut, he must so bear himself, that the King of Cochim should have no cause of complaint; and that the reason of the king's writing in this manner to him must be owing to certain baseless statements which the officers of Cananor and of Cochim had sent to Portugal concerning that matter, while it was all the time really owing to them that the affair was in a critical state, from their seeking to gratify the kings of those places, who were greatly cast down at thought of this settlement, which the king D. Manuel desired to establish in Calicut; for His Highness was, indeed, under an obligation to the King of Cochim to maintain him in his estate, and pay him the appointed price for the purchases of pepper, but not to maintain his customs and paganisms, nor to make war on Calicut whenever that king wished him to do so.

After listening to these arguments, which Afonso Dalboquerque put before them, everyone carefully discussed the matter. D. Garcia and the captains, on the one hand, declared their opinion that a fortress ought to be erected in Calicut, provided that the king would assent to it by way of friendship and mutual arrangement, for, in a city of such a great size as Calicut was, and one which could be so rapidly reinforced, a fortress could never be built by force unless it were at the cost of much blood. The king's officers, on the other hand, held a different opinion, and maintained that it was not to the interest of his service that a fortress should be built at Calicut, because it could not be sustained without heavy expense, which Afonso Dalboquerque ought to avoid as long as possible (for it was economy that the king desired him more than all to practise), but it would be quite sufficient to prevent and destroy the navigation of the Calicut ships if it were decided to cruise off the coast with a fleet, and so intercept the trade; and so they went on, with other reasons, all based upon the abandoning of the intention of building a fortress.

After D. Garcia and the other captains had given their opinions in this business, Afonso Dalboquerque, perceiving how the excuses, that the king's officers were alleging against the erection of a fortress in Calicut, were evidently preconcerted with the wishes of the Kings of Cananor and Cochim, declared that he would never think of carrying on a dilatory warfare with the Çamorim, but would determinedly enter into it in such a manner that he would be able to completely accomplish it, for any other policy would simply result in keeping the Indian fleet always occupied in blockading Calicut, without being free to undertake any other enterprises; but for the fleet to gain any real advantage, it was very necessary to keep peace and friendship with the Kings of Calicut and Cochim, and endeavour the utmost that they should remain friends, and continue to be so, for in these two ports they would always find the spices packed in the way that they liked best for lading the ships homeward-bound to Portugal; and this friendship could neither be lasting nor secure, especially with the Çamorim, unless the king, our lord, had a fortress in Calicut; for, apart from the fact that by its building they would gain great prestige with the Moors, on account of the extensive repute which port had returned from the straits [of the Red Sea], with a messenger from the Emir of Larim in Jemâ bringing orders for the King of Larim and for the Hebrâco,<sup>1</sup> and for all his possessions<sup>2</sup> with messengers and excuses in great numbers encouraging them with many words to make war upon the Portuguese.

The Emir of Larim is one of the principal persons there, like the chief prince of Mecca for the grand Sultan of Larim appoints the person when a new Emir is chosen, and the Emir of Larim receives the administration direct from the grand Sultan himself. News was brought by the same, also, that in Suva there was nothing left but the walls of the city, and in Larim itself the pestilence was raging to so great an extent that twenty thousand persons died every day of it, and this is not very marvellous, seeing that it is affirmed that there are in Larim only twenty-five thousand persons; that after his leaving Adem had set out from Adem, a shallop had got away out of that port and made its way to Zela and related there that the artillery of the Portuguese ships had killed a large number of persons in the city; that the Neque of Adem had written to the King of Zela that he must send all the ships which were in his harbours, and all the fighting men whom he could muster for hire; but the king had answered that he must look elsewhere for assistance, because he required all the men and ships he had for the protection of his own land. After this shallop there arrived a terrada,<sup>3</sup> coming from the Furtaque coast,<sup>4</sup> and Meliqueaz, after consulting with the Moors who made the passage in her, had recommended them not to tell the news to any one, but he (Fernão), by means of friendly Moors whom he had attracted to his cause, had learned that the King of Adem was advising all the Moors of his king-

<sup>1</sup> See vol. ii, p. 101.

<sup>2</sup> Cuciz. See vol. iii, p. 69.

<sup>3</sup> See vol. i, p. 58.

<sup>4</sup> Guazis.

<sup>5</sup> See vol. i, p. 105.

dom who were at Diu to get out on the first opportunity, for he had certain information that the Portuguese Captain-General of India was getting ready to renew the attack upon him, and, as it was, he had already collected a body of six hundred Furtaquins, taking them by force out of certain ships which had put into his harbour; that the King of Furtaque, on account of this forcible proceeding, was determined to help his lordship (Afonso Dalboquerque) with some men against the king, if he went there; that Miliqueaz had set out to the King of Cambay's court in regard to the affair of Diu, carrying a considerable quantity of silver and gold, jewels and rich cloths, and two hundred horses, to entice the king and his governors; carrying also, as a present for the king, the sword which his lordship had at a former time presented to him; and that a ship from Ormuz had arrived, bringing news of the death of Cogear, who, at the last moment of his life, had counselled the king and his governors to accept the cap of Xequé Ismael and grant his prayer permitting the Portuguese to erect a fortress in Ormuz, for, unless these two things were done, he had great doubts that the king's estate could be maintained.

At receipt of all this news which Fernão Martinz Evangelho sent, Afonso Dalboquerque became greatly alarmed, when he considered that his entry into the straits had in so short a space of time effected so great a number of changes. He therefore made ready a fleet of four ships to go to Cape Guardafum and Adem, if weather would permit of gaining any information of what was going on there. And as soon as he had fitted out these ships in all that they had need of, he appointed, as chief captain of them, Pero Dalboquerque, his nephew, and, as captains of the other ships, Ruy Galvão, Antonio Raposo, Jeronymo de Sousa, and, as factor, Tristão Déga, and João Teixeira, scrivener; and gave them written orders that, in case of weather permitting, they were to go and have a look at Adem, and proceed to winter at Ormuz, and demand of the king the fortress which he (Afonso) had left already begun, in order to store up in it the merchandise which he brought, and also to demand of him the tribute money that had fallen due to the Portuguese last year ; and, having finished doing this, to go and explore the straits of Persia, and from that point to make their way to India. As soon as Pero Dalboquerque received the order, he took leave of his uncle, and shaped his course, with his captains, direct for the Cape of Guardafum ; and further on I will give an account of his voyage.

---

CHAPTER XVII.

Proceedings of the great Afonso Dalboquerque with the Alguazil of Cananor concerning certain things which he did prejudicial to the service of the King of Portugal ; and how he set sail for Cochim ; and of the message which the ambassador of the Xequé Ismael who was in Dabul sent to him : and how Miguel Ferreira was sent in company with this ambassador, on an embassy to the Xequé Ismael.

When Pero Dalboquerque had sailed away, the great Afonso Dalboquerque began to examine into certain irregularities which the king's officers were in the habit of doing in regard to the royal property, and reprimanded them for the careless manner in which they had attended to their charge ; and, after having arranged every thing as it ought to be done, being aware that the Alguazil of Cananor was also in the habit of doing certain wrong things prejudicial to the service of the King of Portugal, and of speaking much that was ill of him, because he would not countenance his tyrannous and wicked conduct, and also because he (Afonso) was favourable to the old Alguazil, living in Calicut, whom, indeed, the present

Alguazil had caused to be cast out of Cananor because of his adherence to our side, he summoned the new Alguazil before him, and gave him a golden chain, which hung round his own neck, saying, at the same time, that he would give it to him in spite of the many ill things that he was constantly saying of him; but as for the affairs which related to the service of the king his lord, he would beg him earnestly to carry them out in such a manner that the king's officers should make no more complaints of him, and also not to be sowing discord between the King of Cananor and the captain of the fortress, for if these matters were not set right it would be necessary to punish him with the rigour that his faults deserved; and he must remember, also, that he had been forgiven for his harsh conduct towards Pocaracem the Moor,<sup>1</sup> in depriving him of his horses when he had no better excuse for so doing than that Pocaracem was on friendly terms with the Portuguese.

The Alguazil was not particularly well pleased at hearing these words of reprimand, which Afonso Dalboquerque said to him, and replied that he was greatly devoted to the King of Portugal, and that in all the matters which his lordship had been concerned in with the King of Calicut, he, on his part, had ever laboured to turn matters towards the king's service; and, in so far as related to the horses of Pocaracem which had been mentioned, the fault lay at the doors of the officers of the King of Portugal's factory, and not at his. Afonso Dalboquerque, however, although he had very good information that this Moor was a very bad man, and very inimical to the king's service, dissembled with him because he was just then in high favour with the King of Cananor, and so they managed to remain friendly towards one another.

Just at this juncture of events there arrived at Cananor the messenger from the Ambassador of the Xequé Ismael,

<sup>1</sup> See vol. ii, p. 226.

who was in the Hidalcão's Court. I have already spoken of this man as having come to Goa with a message to Afonso Dalboquerque while he was in the straits of the Red Sea.<sup>1</sup> The gist of his message was to beg a safe-conduct so that he might pass on to Ormuz, and to ask Afonso Dalboquerque to send in company with him an ambassador to the Xequé Ismael. But as Afonso Dalboquerque desired that the man should have an opportunity of inspecting all the Portuguese fortresses in India, and especially that one which was being erected in Calicut, he set him on his way, telling him to travel on to Calicut, and then to make his way to Cochim, for he would send him home from that place, for it was also Afonso Dalboquerque's desire that the messenger should see the numerous ships of burden which had that year arrived from Portugal,<sup>2</sup> and their size, and all the rest of the fleet which was being refitted, and the busy scenes in the dockyards. For, although Miguel Ferreira (afterwards) carried in his instructions orders to point out all these things to the Xequé Ismael, Afonso Dalboquerque nevertheless desired this messenger to be as well an eye-witness of the greatness of the King of Portugal.

And, in a few days after his departure, Afonso Dalboquerque set sail for Cochim in the middle of December in the year 'thirteen; and, when he arrived, he prepared in readiness Miguel Ferreira, servant of the King D. Manuel, with four changes of saddle-horses, to go as ambassador to the Xequé Ismael, carrying instructions in the terms which he had given on a former occasion to Ruy Gomez, whom he sent on the same journey—as I have already related in the account of the first taking of Goa,<sup>1</sup>—although it did not produce any good result, because, when he reached Ormuz, Cogeatar, Governor of the kingdom, gave orders to have him poisoned.

<sup>1</sup> See p. 63.

<sup>2</sup> "Sendo vinte e dous dias de Setembro d'este anno, chegarão á barra de Goa tres naos do Reyno, e por Capitão mór d'ellas João de Sousa de Lima, e outra Anrique Nunes de Lião, e João d'Abreu, da Ilha da Madeira. Estas tres sómente; e outra nao de guerra Capitão Francisco Correa, filho de Braz Afonso Correa, corregedor de Lisboa, que partindo de Moçambique pera a India se apartou da companhia, se perdeo que nunca mais appareceo; e porque a nao era noua e boa de vela, e nom ouve tromenta n'esta travessa, se presumio que podia auer desastre de fogo."—Correa, Lendas, vol. ii, p. 361.

When Miguel Ferreira had been thus provided with instructions with due care, Afonso Dalboquerque ordered passage to be provided for him and his followers until they reached Dabul, for from that port he would have to go in company with the ambassador of the Xequé Ismael who was waiting for him, and he showed favours to the Xequé's messenger, whereat he was very much pleased. In fact, the man was so struck with the personal appearance of Afonso Dalboquerque, that he desired a life-size portrait of him to be painted, which could be carried to the Xequé Ismael.

The ambassadors then set out together, and Miguel Ferreira with them, but Afonso Dalboquerque still lingered behind a few days in Cochim, attending to various needful arrangements; and when he had set everything in order, he left D. Garcia de Noronha, his nephew, to attend to the dispatching of the ships of burden which were to set sail that year for Portugal, desiring him with earnestness to entertain the ambassadors of the Çamorim in a fitting manner, who were to make the voyage to Portugal in these ships, and to give orders for the refitting of all the fleet that lay in Cochim, so that in the spring it might sail whithersoever the service of the King of Portugal should require its presence; and so he sailed for Goa.

<sup>1</sup> See vol. ii, p. 114.

CHAPTER XVIII.

Of the ambassadors whom the Xequê Ismael sent to the King of Cambay, and to the Hidalção; and of the origin of their embassies.

Inasmuch as the Xequê Ismael was very greatly desirous of drawing all the Kings of India over to friendship with him, and of persuading them to follow his religious tenets,<sup>1</sup> he frequently sent his ambassadors, in pursuance of this policy, to the King of Cambay, and to the Çabayo,<sup>2</sup> for he knew that if these two, being of superior power and great estate, could only be persuaded, all other rulers would yield without demur to that which he wished to accomplish. Hence it was that in the year '13, when Afonso Dalboquerque penetrated the straits of the Red Sea, the Xequê again sent his ambassadors to the same kings as before, each one of them being equipped with a hundred saddle horses, and with very richly-furnished tents for their lodging, and silver services of plate for their tables. The instructions which were carried by these ambassadors were to the effect that the kings must accept his cap,<sup>3</sup> [and so acknowledge his supreme power], and cause the especial book of prayer which he used to be read in their mosques. With a similar request he sent another ambassador to the King of Ormuz; and this one, acting upon the advice given to him by Cogeatâr—as I have already shown—and also on account of the circumstance that Rexnordim,<sup>4</sup> the Governor of the land, was a Persian by birth, had little trouble in persuading the king in the matter of the acceptance of the cap and the prayer of the Xequê Ismael, and the admission of his supremacy.

The ambassador who was sent to the Hidalção reached

<sup>1</sup> Cepta.

<sup>2</sup> Curapuçã.

<sup>2</sup> See vol. ii, p. 82.

<sup>4</sup> See vol. i, p. 132.

the city of Calbergate,<sup>1</sup> where he found that potentate, carrying for a present to the same certain horses caparisoned with very rich housings, and brocaded cloths, and Persian silk-stuffs, and some pieces of gold and silver, and emeralds, and a bowl<sup>2</sup> of ordinary turquoise which Diogo Fernandez, Adail<sup>3</sup> of Goa, whom Afonso Dalboquerque had sent there, and he happened to be present at the time, declared was quite a marvel to look upon. When the ambassador reached the city, he lost no time in sending a messenger to pay a visit to Afonso Dalboquerque at Goa, as I have said in a former place. The Hidalcão received the ambassador very favourably, and after the lapse of a few days sent him back, giving him a reply to the effect that he might report to the Xequé Ismael how gratified he was at the offer of friendship, but he could not accept any other law or any other prayer than those in which he had been brought up, and gave him some jewels as a present for the Xequé Ismael, and so sent him on to Dabul, so that he might embark at that port; and it was when he arrived there that he sent to Afonso Dalboquerque the messenger of whom I have just given an account.

The other ambassador, who went to the King of Cambay, reached Champanel, and was very well received by the king, but his departure did not end very favourably on account of a misadventure that happened to him in the following way. At the very time when this ambassador reached his destination, it was but a few days that there had arrived at the Court the eldest son of the King of Mandao, accompanied by certain of his subjects who had wished to follow his fortunes, begging military assistance [from the King of Cambay], so as to be enabled to cast out of his kingdom one of his younger brothers who had risen against him on the death of their father. The ambassador fell into conversation with this young man when he was at Court, and frequently invited him to an evening banquet; and it chanced that one night when they were alone, after the banquet was over, the youth being a handsome fellow, the ambassador laid hold of him, and treated him rudely (for these Ishmaelites are more given to this, if report be true, than any other Moors in those parts of India). The young man began to cry out, and all his people immediately ran in to help their master. The ambassador, when he perceived the uproar, pushed the young man out, and barricaded himself in some houses, and began to defend himself from the people who were attacking him. When the news of all this reached the King of Cambay, he sent all his guard and put down the rioting, but not before seventy or eighty people on one side or the other had lost their lives. The son of the King of Mandao, ashamed of what had taken place, went away to the Reys Butos,<sup>1</sup> who border on his realms, and they afforded him assistance against the rebel brother; and, when this man had been cast out of the kingdom, he recovered possession of it.

<sup>1</sup> I am not certain if this place is to be identified with Kolapoor, or Kolhapur, an important town in Bijapur, now in Bombay Presidency, lat. 16 deg. 43 min. N.; long. 74 deg. 13 min. E. In that case Gate refers to the Ghauts or ridge of mountains along the coast, beyond which lies the city of Kolapoor, to the N.E. of Goa. Kalberga, also called Calberga, Golburga, and Kulburga, appears to be too far distant in the Deccan, although the form of the word is very similar to Calbergate of this text. It lies in lat. 17 deg. 20 min. N.; long. 76 deg. 40 min. E.

<sup>2</sup> Porcelana.

<sup>3</sup> See vol. ii, p. 137.

This kingdom of Mandao<sup>2</sup> also borders on that of Cambay. The people are very warlike, and in all the rajah's towns and villages there are men in garrisons. The former king, father of this youth, used constantly to carry about with him for show seven or eight thousand women riding on horses, with their bows and arrows. They used to go a hunting with him, but in war he did not make use of them.

<sup>1</sup> See p. 106.

<sup>2</sup> See p. 60.

As soon as the son was in possession of the kingdom he abandoned this custom, and would not have them any more with him. The King of Cambay, disgusted at the proceedings of the ambassador, made haste to send him away, having very soon shown him that it was no use to try and obtain those things for which he had come thither ; but he gave him two elephants, and an animal which is called ganda, i.e., a rhinoceros, and many other articles, in return for the gifts which he had brought, and gave orders to a captain to carry him to Çurrate,<sup>1</sup> and from that port to put him and his baggage on board a ship.

When the party reached Çurrate, the ambassador wasted no time in getting on board a ship, which was just on the point of setting out for Ormuz. As soon as he had set out, the servants made a ship ready, in which they embarked the elephants, and the beast, and all the baggage ; but the Moors of the land, not being very well pleased with the request for a ship which the ambassador had brought to them, put a faulty mast into the ship ; and, hence, when the ship got out a little way from shore, and felt a somewhat stiff breeze, which struck it, the mast broke, so they were compelled to put back into Çurrate, and from this circumstance the king got his present again. The ambassador, however, at length, made his voyage in another ship, not much pleased, it is true, with the sorry entertainment which the King of Cambay had given him, and somewhat less pleased when he learned the trick which the Moors had played with his servants.

---

<sup>1</sup> See plan of Surat, or Surrate, in Pedro Barretto de Resende's MS., British Museum, Sloane MS., 197, f. 132.

CHAPTER XIX.

How Miguel Ferreira, who went as ambassador to the Xequé Ismael, arrived at Tauriz, and of the reception which he experienced, and of what took place until his return to Ormuz.

Miguel Ferreira, who had set out for Cochim, reached Dabul, where the ambassador of the Xequé Ismael remained, as well in expectation of the arrival of his messengers, as because he was very desirous that the great Afonso Dalboquerque should send some one to visit the Xequé Ismael, his lord. And inasmuch as this Portuguese ambassador was also accompanied by an ambassador of the Hídalcão, the man was highly gratified at their arrival, for he cared for nothing else than to see his court thronged with ambassadors of all the kings in the world. A few days after Miguel Ferreira's arrival, they all embarked in a ship and made their voyage to Ormuz, where the king showed them much entertainment; and from that city they shaped their course straight to Tauriz,<sup>1</sup> where the Xequé Ismael was staying, and he had been already advised of the coming of Miguel Ferreira by a letter from his own ambassador and by the ambassador of the Hídalcão, who was, indeed, on the same journey. The Xequé Ismael, very desirous of gaining the friendship of Afonso Dalboquerque, because of the great fame which was reported about him, desired to show honour to Miguel Ferreira, and ordered the Lords of his Court, and all his military men, to go and receive him, and bring him into the royal presence before the ambassador of the Hídalcão was introduced. This caused the ambassador of the Hídalcão to become very angry, because the reception which they gave him was not so grand as that with which Miguel Ferreira had been honoured.

<sup>1</sup> Perhaps Tauric, on the Persian Gulf, 27 deg. 41 min. N. lat. ; 52 deg. 27 min. E. long.

When Miguel Ferreira was brought before the Xequé Ismael, he delivered the credentials which he carried from Afonso Dalboquerque; and these the Xequé received with many speeches and demonstrations of amity. But Miguel Ferreira had become very ill; that day, therefore, he could not hold any further converse with the Xequé Ismael beyond delivering the letters and begging permission to go and recruit his health; and this was accorded to him, and the Chief Physician was commanded to attend upon him and do his best to restore him to health, under penalty of being beheaded if he did not succeed. In a few days' time, Miguel Ferreira's health began to grow a little better, and the Xequé Ismael sent for him again, and inquired concerning the estate of the King of Portugal, and of the Queen, and whose daughter she was, and of our manner of using arms, and how we conducted our war, and with whom we were at war, and if there were many horses in Portugal; and he asked, also, about the ships and navigation of India, and many other details of the power and estate of the king, D. Manuel, in foreign parts.

To all these inquiries, Miguel Ferreira made reply in accordance with the instructions he carried; and the messenger who had been sent to Afonso Dalboquerque, and who was also present at this interview, showed the Xequé Ismael Afonso Dalboquerque's portrait, which he had brought, and spoke in high terms of praise of the greatness of his Indian fleet and of his ships of burden, and how the kings of those parts of India durst not send their ships outside their harbours without safe-conduct of the King of Portugal. The Xequé Ismael was very much gratified at hearing these things, and at his conversation with Miguel Ferreira, because of the excellent account which he gave about everything, and, ere he dispatched him back home, caused him to be summoned before him on many occasions, and conversed with him upon the estate of the King of Portugal, and on the affairs of India, and the desires which he cherished of the destruction of the Grand Sultan, and the house of Méca, even offering to devote his own person and estate towards the accomplishment of this purpose.

After many days had in this manner been spent by Miguel Ferreira in the Court, he entreated the Xequé Ismael to dispatch him back with an answer, because Afonso Dalboquerque, Captain-General of the Indies, being desirous of gaining information respecting his royal person, had ordered him to return as quickly as he could. The Xequé Ismael was so pleased with Miguel Ferreira, that it was greatly against his inclination that he consented to allow him to return, and in company with him he sent back the same messenger who had come with him, as ambassador to Afonso Dalboquerque, bearing a present of many clothes of silk stuff, and brocades, and horses caparisoned with very rich housings, and several coats of mail, and other arms, which the Persians are wont to use, and two suits made of brocade, trimmed with golden buttons, wherewith they are clothed, and a girdle, target, and short broadsword, and other objects, all made of gold, and half an alqueire<sup>1</sup> of turquoises, just in the same condition as when they came out of the mines.

This present, which was of great intrinsic value, Afonso Dalboquerque divided among all the captains, without retaining a single thing for himself, except only the horses, and these, which he kept for the King D. Manuel, he ordered to be delivered up into the keeping of the officers of his factory. But, as the pieces of gold seemed to him to be good, and he looked at them in the light of mementoes of so powerful a prince as the Xequé Ismael, he redeemed them of the captains at his own expense, and sent them to the King of Portugal by the hands of D. Garcia de

<sup>1</sup> The Portuguese alqueire is believed by Vieyra equivalent to one peck, three quarts, and a pint, in English.

Noronha, his nephew. When Miguel Ferreira had received his letters of dispatch, he took his leave of the Xequé Ismael, and then, taking the ambassador with him, they both set out and made their journey to Ormuz, being entertained all the way in great style by all the villages which they passed through; and, having at length reached Ormuz, they were well received by the king and by Rexnordim, his governor. And it was while they were staying there, waiting for a good wind to enable them to pass over to India, that Afonso Dalboquerque arrived, with the intention of putting in order the affairs of this kingdom; and he also gave them a very cordial reception.

---

CHAPTER XX.

How the great Afonso Dalboquerque reached Goa; and of the news which reached him from Malaca, and the succour he sent thither: and how Fernão Perez Dandrade gained a victory over the Javanese fleet.

At the beginning of January, in the year [fifteen hundred and] fourteen, the great Afonso Dalboquerque reached Goa, and there he found ambassadors from the Kings of Pegú and Siam, and another from the king's mother, with presents of very rich things, and letters of many compliments, showing in them how much they desired the friendship of the King of Portugal, and wished to make arrangements for carrying on in peace the trade in Malaca; and as he was, on his part, also desirous that the commerce of this state should be widely celebrated among all the kingdoms of those parts, he was much pleased with their mission to him, and treated the ambassadors with great entertainment.

In the company of these ambassadors came Manuel

Fragoso, whom Afonso Dalboquerque had sent with Antonio de Miranda<sup>1</sup> to the King of Siam, to prepare for him a written report of all the matters, merchandise, dresses, and customs of the land, and of the latitude of their harbours; and this report Afonso Dalboquerque sent immediately, together with the presents, to Dom Garcia de Noronha, in order that he might convey them to the King D. Manuel, in the ships of burden that were ready to set sail for these kingdoms [of Portugal]. This Manuel Fragoso delivered to Afonso Dalboquerque a letter from Ruy de Brito Patalim, captain of the fortress of Malaca,<sup>2</sup> wherein he rendered an account of the state of that settlement, and showed how Patequitir had risen up in rebellion with the slaves<sup>3</sup> of Utemutaraja's widow, numbering about six thousand, and with some of the native armed men, who determined to follow his fortunes; and they had constructed a fortress, with very strong palisades, so as to be able to use it as a base for their hostile operations, by co-operation of the Lassamana,<sup>4</sup> or Admiral of the Sea, who was cruising about in the straits of Sabão,<sup>5</sup> intercepting any provisions from reaching the city; and, seeing this, he had dispatched Fernão Perez Dandrade with his fleet, by sea, and Antonio Pessoa, with armed men by land, to attack the palisadings; and although, in forcing an entry through them, they had been exposed to great danger, because of the naturally strong position of the place itself, nevertheless the position was attacked with so much vigour that they got into it by force, after killing many of the enemy; and when Pate-

<sup>1</sup> See vol. iii, p. 156.

<sup>2</sup> See vol. iii, p. 166.

<sup>3</sup> See vol. iii, p. 151.

<sup>4</sup> See vol. iii, p. 87.

<sup>5</sup> The Straits of Sabon and Mandol are very intricate, and, according to Horsburgh, p. 210, are never attempted by European navigators. The former is contiguous to the west sides of False-Durian, Sabon, and the Great Carimon. As both these straits are bordered by reefs, with shoal water in some places, they appear to be only navigable by proas or small vessels.

quitir perceived that he was worsted, he had retired along the River Muar,<sup>1</sup> into the interior, and had sent to beg for assistance from the King of Java, promising, in recompense, to make him Lord of Malaca.

After Afonso Dalboquerque had read this letter, he gathered from Manuel Fragoso how Antonio de Miranda had reached Malaca, and how, when he found that settlement in this difficulty, he had decided to remain there himself, sending forward Antonio de Miranda, with the ambassadors who had accompanied him in the voyage thither; and, at the moment of his setting out, there arrived Antonio Dabreu, who had gone to explore Maluco,<sup>2</sup> and Mendafonso, with all their party quite safe except Francisco Serrão, who had lost his [ship] in the Island of Ternate,<sup>3</sup> and remained there with those who were saved with him, and that he had also fallen out with the natives whom the king of those islands governed, of which, however, I do not give any account, because the end of it happened after the death of Afonso Dalboquerque.

Afonso Dalboquerque having thus, through Manuel Fragoso, received the latest and truest account of the necessitous condition of Malaca, gave orders to fit out immediately three vessels, with a hundred and fifty soldiers, and a large quantity of warlike stores; and of these ships he made Francisco de Melo, Jorge de Brito, and Martim Guedez, captains, for it was his opinion that these, with the larger reinforcement which had already arrived there under Antonio Dabreu,<sup>4</sup> would be sufficient until he could provide

<sup>1</sup> See the Mua River on the chart of Diogo Homem at beginning of vol. iii; also vol. iii, p. 131.

<sup>2</sup> See vol. iii, p. 162.

<sup>3</sup> See L. de Varthema, p. 245, Hakl. Soc. Edition.

“Vê Tidóre, e Ternáte, co' o fervente Cume, que lança as flammas oudeadas.”

(Cam., Lus. x, 132.)

<sup>4</sup> See vol. iii, p. 162.

the fortress with a captain.<sup>1</sup> These reinforcements arrived in due course at Malaca, and were joyfully received by those who were in the fortress; for, by means of this timely succour of new strength, they were reassured and relieved from the apprehension which the hourly-expected arrival of the great fleet of the enemy produced upon them. It was but a few days later, that one day, at sundown, Pateonur came in sight with a fleet of ninety sail against the harbour of Malaca, bringing with him ten thousand men, not counting the large junks which he left in the Muar River; and in company with him came Patequitir and the Lassamana, and they all cast anchor close to our fleet.

Patequitir, when he beheld the number and powerful armament of the ships, and saw such an unexpected number of fighting men, changed his mind, and gave up the intention for which he had come, which was to disembark and fall upon our fortress, and went to Pateonur and [the] Lassamana, and told them that it was his opinion that it was not the moment for attacking the city, for if they were to disembark all their forces on land, the Frangues, i.e., the Portuguese, would remain supreme on the sea, and could easily set fire to all the fleet; and if the fleet were destroyed in that manner, then they were indeed all as good as ruined; therefore it would be well-advised for them to rally again at their rendezvous on the Muar River, and from that position as their base, wage war upon Malaca. Inasmuch as this advice seemed prudent to them all, an hour before daybreak they weighed anchor and set sail. Fernão Perez Dandrade, who was keeping a watch over their movements, no sooner espied their retreat, than he made a signal to slip the cable of all his fleet, and gave chase to them, and before they could reach Muar River fell upon them, and sent many of their ships to the bottom, and put to death a large number of their people, many of our own men being wounded, and some killed in the engagement.

<sup>1</sup> According to Correa, Jorge Dalboquerque was sent as Captain of Malaca.—Lendas, ii, 381.

Pateonur, being in the van, had time, while our men were engaged in conflict with his fleet, to retreat with the greatest possible haste, and as soon as he reached the Muar River, embarked on board his junk, and set sail right away to Java, not at all well pleased at the result of this enterprise; and the Javanese were so dejected and terrified at this defeat—for it is indeed one of the glorious actions that we can tell of in those parts of the world—that they never dared to return again to Malaca. Patequitir and the Lassamana sailed up the river in the same ships which had brought them from Malaca, and saved themselves by taking to the interior country; and Fernão Perez Dandrade returned to Malaca elated with this victory, being there received with great joy by the captain and the rest of the people in the fortress. Of this victory, and of many others which Fernão Perez gained over the Moors, what time he held the appointment of chief captain in those parts, I do not give a detailed account, because there are others who have written a good deal about that commander.

---

CHAPTER XXI.

How the great Afonso Dalboquerque sent Diogo Fernandez de Béja and James Teixeira as ambassadors to the King of Cambay: and how they arrived at Çurrate, and set out from that place to the King's Court.

The great Afonso Dalboquerque, at the news which Fernão Martinz Evangelho wrote of the journey of Mili-queaz to the King of Cambay's Court, became pointed, and was much afraid that the pr

the fortress with a captain.<sup>1</sup> These reinforcements arrived in due course at Malaca, and were joyfully received by those who were in the fortress; for, by means of this timely succour of new strength, they were reassured and relieved from the apprehension which the hourly-expected arrival of the great fleet of the enemy produced upon them. It was but a few days later, that one day, at sundown, Pateonur came in sight with a fleet of ninety sail against the harbour of Malaca, bringing with him ten thousand men, not counting the large junks which he left in the Muar River; and in company with him came Patequitir and the Lassamana, and they all cast anchor close to our fleet.

Patequitir, when he beheld the number and powerful armament of the ships, and saw such an unexpected number of fighting men, changed his mind, and gave up the intention for which he had come, which was to disembark and fall upon our fortress, and went to Pateonur and [the] Lassamana, and told them that it was his opinion that it was not the moment for attacking the city, for if they were to disembark all their forces on land, the Frangues, i.e., the Portuguese, would remain supreme on the sea, and could easily set fire to all the fleet; and if the fleet were destroyed in that manner, then they were indeed all as good as ruined; therefore it would be well-advised for them to rally again at their rendezvous on the Muar River, and from that position as their base, wage war upon Malaca. Inasmuch as this advice seemed prudent to them all, an hour before daybreak they weighed anchor and set sail. Fernão Perez Dandrade, who was keeping a watch over their movements, no sooner espied their retreat, than he made a signal to slip the cable of all his fleet, and gave chase to them, and before they could reach Muar River fell upon them, and sent many of their ships to the bottom, and put to death a large number of their people, many of our own men being wounded, and some killed in the engagement.

<sup>1</sup> According to Correa, Jorge Dalboquerque was sent as Captain of Malaca.—Lendas, ii, 381.

Pateonur, being in the van, had time, while our men were engaged in conflict with his fleet, to retreat with the greatest possible haste, and as soon as he reached the Muar River, embarked on board his junk, and set sail right away to Java, not at all well pleased at the result of this enterprise; and the Javanese were so dejected and terrified at this defeat—for it is indeed one of the glorious actions that we can tell of in those parts of the world—that they never dared to return again to Malaca. Patequitir and the Lassamana sailed up the river in the same ships which had brought them from Malaca, and saved themselves by taking to the interior country; and Fernão Perez Dandrade returned to Malaca elated with this victory, being there received with great joy by the captain and the rest of the people in the fortress. Of this victory, and of many others which Fernão Perez gained over the Moors, what time he held the appointment of chief captain in those parts, I do not give a detailed account, because there are others who have written a good deal about that commander.

---

CHAPTER XXI.

How the great Afonso Dalboquerque sent Diogo Fernandez de Béja and James Teixeira as ambassadors to the King of Cambay: and how they arrived at Çurrate, and set out from that place to the King's Court.

The great Afonso Dalboquerque, at the news which Fernão Martinz Evangelho wrote of the journey of Miliqueaz to the King of Cambay's Court, became very disappointed, and was much afraid that the proposed affair of

himself thereby injured, because of the need which they had of him, in order to show him honour, they accepted these things of him; and then, taking their leave, they proceeded to take up their quarters in the houses of Melecopi's brother, which had been already prepared for their reception. And on the following day, in the morning, they sent, by the hands of Duarte Vaz and Ruy Paez, certain articles to Desturcão, which he also at first declined to accept, but finally accepted. Three or four days more elapsed, and then Desturcão sent them word that he had received a letter from the king his lord, ordering him to give them everything they required for their journey, and asking them to send him word of the time when they wished to set out, so that he might have everything ready for them. And because at this juncture Pero Queimado came back, bringing them news that Milecopi was out of the Court, and out of favour with the king, and in the instructions which these ambassadors carried they were enjoined to do nothing without him, they dissembled about the time of their starting, and sent word by Duarte Vaz to Desturcão that the man who had gone forward to obtain the safe-conduct for them had declared that the king had set out for the city of Patané,<sup>1</sup> making war upon the Reys Butos; and as Afonso Dalboquerque had commanded them in their instructions to return and winter in Goa, and the monsoon was now spent, and there was now no longer opportunity of doing either one thing or the other, therefore they had decided upon returning therefrom, and on the commencement of the next monsoon they would return at an easier pace. Desturcão replied upon this, through Meababu, that as they had already obtained their safe-conduct, and everything they required for their voyage was now in readiness, they did not seem to him to be acting courteously in failing to make their way to the king; neither could he feel certain of his own safety, if he were to allow them to go back without first seeing the king, for it was to this end that they had come, and it would be necessary to acquaint the king first of all of this alteration of their intentions, and on receipt of his reply then they could do as he should command them.

<sup>1</sup> Pattan, Puttun, or Anhulwar Pattan, in the Gaikwad's dominions, Bombay Presidency, 23 deg. 47 min. N.; 71 deg. 56 min. E.

When Diogo Fernandez de Béja and James Teixeira perceived the firmness of Desturcão, and felt they could do nothing except what he wished, in order to put a good front to their remaining, they sent word in reply, that as he thought it good, they would comply with his desires, for the Captain-General of the Indies would look upon it all as for the best, and therefore they wished to set out immediately on their journey to the Court. Desturcão thereupon gave orders that they should be supplied with all they required, and he appointed Meacamadin, captain of the king, with thirty peon archers, to go with them and arrange their halting places. Thus they set out on their journey from Çurrate on the twenty-eighth day of the month of March, and reached Champanel<sup>1</sup> on the fourth of the month of April, and proceeded to take up their quarters in a vegetable garden close to the city, where they clothed themselves in their best, and made themselves smart, to go and see Melecopi who was at that time in Champanel.

When Melecopi learned their arrival, he sent one of his sons in charge of a large body of men on horse and on foot, with a great company of trumpeters, to receive them, and there they passed the night, being richly entertained and nobly banqueted by Melecopi, to whom Diogo Fernandez de Béja delivered the letter which he had brought from Afonso Dalboquerque, and with it a present, and gave him an account of the business for which he had come, for in this way he had been instructed to act. Melecopi told them that Miliqueaz, after the departure of Tristão Dega, had gone to the king's Court, and spoken frequently with the king, advising him by no means to grant a fortress in Diu to the Frangues; for, if they wished to build it there, it was in order to wrest his kingdom eventually from him; and so the king had strongly fortified Diu, and now had no apprehension that any power in the world could prevail against it.

<sup>1</sup> See p. 60.

After long conversations held upon this matter, Melecopi on his part giving them advice how to conduct themselves, and pointing out to them the position which they ought to take up in the business, they took their leave of him, and set out on their way to Madoval<sup>1</sup> where the king lived, and Melecopi sent with them one of the principal men of his household, with six horsemen in his train, in order to accompany them, and told them on no account to lodge anywhere except where this man of his indicated to them.

---

CHAPTER XXII.

How Diogo Fernandez de Béja and James Teixeira reached Madoval, and the reception which they experienced there; and what passed with Çodamacão, Chief Alguazil of the King of Cambay, in reference to dispatching them.

Diogo Fernandez and James Teixeira having set out from Champanel, before they drew near to the city of Madoval, where the king was, sent word to Meacamadim, who was occupied in arranging the places for their lodging, to go forward to Çodamacão, Chief Alguazil, and acquaint him of their coming; and he sent word back telling them to lodge on that day in a vegetable garden which belonged to him, just outside the city. And on the following day, in the morning, he sent one of the principal men of his household, a Turk by birth, with thirty attendants mounted on horses, and a large number of footmen, furnished with many trumpets and horns, to accompany them by way of ceremony to a banquet in his house; and when all had arrived at the door of his courtyard, Melique Coadragui, the son of Desturção, who was one of the king's pages, came out to receive them, and there they alighted and entered into a large chamber where Çodamação was waiting in expectation of them, and by him they were received with great cordiality and honour, and there forthwith Diogo Fernandez presented to him the present which he had brought for him, giving him at the same time a letter from Afonso Dalboquerque. After spending a little time in conversation, he told them to go and take their rest, and when the king should return—for he was gone a hunting—he would go to the palace and acquaint him of their arrival, and learn from him when he would choose to give them audience; and he ordered that they should be entertained in one of the rooms of his house, where all were taken in comfortably.

<sup>1</sup> See description of this town further on at end of chapter xxiii.

On the following day, in the morning, the Çodamação went to the palace, and from that place sent word to Diogo Fernandez and James Teixeira, telling them that the king had returned and desired that they should be brought before him immediately; and, for a body guard, he sent them Melique Coadragui with all the mounted men of the Court, and with a large body of horn-blowers, who arrived just as Diogo Fernandez and James Teixeira and all their party had finished dressing themselves. Thereupon they got upon their horses and proceeded direct to the palace; and after they had alighted, and passed through many houses and courtyards, they came to a very large one where the king was seated upon a low sofa,<sup>1</sup> with all the captains of the kingdom in rows against the wall, each in due place according to his precedence; and they went up to the king

<sup>1</sup> Cattle.

(carrying before them the present which Afonso Dalboquerque sent him, for this is the custom with them), and made obeisance before him, according to our fashion, and the king received them with great kindness, manifesting that he was much pleased at their coming; and after that all the members of the company he brought had kissed the king's hand, Diogo Fernandez presented to him the letter which he brought from Afonso Dalboquerque, and he read it forthwith, for it was written in Arabic; and, after he had read it, Diogo Fernandez told him that Afonso Dalboquerque, Captain-General of India, sent him his salutation,<sup>1</sup> and an offer of the whole of the fleet of the King of Portugal to serve him therewith.

The king thanked him very much for his offers, and inquired of him how Afonso Dalboquerque was, and how they themselves had borne the fatigue of their journey. After this was over, Melique Coadragui drew them aside to the top of the courtyard, and there brought them two cabaías<sup>2</sup> of brocade for Diogo Fernandez and James Teixeira, and others of coloured velvet for the rest of the party. And when they had attired themselves in these new robes, they made another obeisance to the king after the native fashion, and he told them to go to their lodging, and of the business for which they had come they could give an account to Çodamacão, for he was instructed to dispatch them back without delay.

Next day, after dinner, Çodamacão caused them to be sent for, and told them to lay before him all that they desired the king to do for them, because he had received orders to dispatch them immediately. Diogo Fernandez declared to him that the principal cause of his coming was to request a site in Diu upon which to construct a fortress, so that therein the men and the property of the King of Portugal might be assured against harm; for Afonso Dalbo-

<sup>1</sup> Calema.

<sup>2</sup> See p. 95.

querque, Captain-General of India, was hoping to carry on a great trade in the kingdom of Cambay, and in this manner the king would have the Portuguese nearer at hand to serve him, and the native custom-house would produce twice as much revenue as heretofore. Çodamacão replied that up to that moment no mention had ever been made about a fortress except at Bacar,<sup>1</sup> which he had conceded to Tristão Déga when he was there; and truly as far as maintaining friendly relations with the King of Cambay and trading with his kingdom, Bacar would be quite sufficient, for the very name of fortress was distasteful.

Hereupon Diogo Fernandez declared that the King of Portugal's men and property could not be put into Bacar, but only in a very strongly fortified fortress, so that it should not be exposed to robbery, nor the men to slaughter, things which it was notorious had been perpetrated in Calicut, Coulão, and Malaca; but if the Portuguese had only had fortresses therein when those events took place, as now they have them, all would have been safe, and peace and friendship would never have been broken. And it was because the King of Portugal desired to maintain friendship on a true basis with the King of Cambay, that he was now sending to request him to cede the site for a fortress in Diu; and besides these reasons, many further advantages were dwelt upon which would arise out of a satisfactory settlement of the business. Çodamacão answered, that out of kindness to Afonso Dalboquerque he would lay before the king all the reasons which had been urged upon him, and he would take all the trouble he could to dispatch them on their homeward voyage as quickly as he could.

Three days elapsed, when Çodamacão sent for them again

<sup>1</sup> Bakar, or Bakkur, Island and Fort in Sinde, lat. 27 deg. 45 min. N.; long. 68 deg. 50 min. E., according to K. Johnston's Royal Atlas. It appears to be Bóka, of the West Coast of Hindostan Pilot, 1880, p. 226; but the position given at p. 338 varies considerably from Johnston.

at night (for the houses ran one into the other by communicating passages), to deliver them the despatch which the king had dictated; in which it was shown, how, in consideration of the friendship which he desired to maintain with the King of Portugal, and also, because Afonso Dalboquerque, Captain-General of India, had sent an embassy to request it of him, he would be happy to grant him a site for a fortress in any one of the following places at his pleasure, to wit, Beroche,<sup>1</sup> Çurrate, Maim<sup>2</sup>, Dumbes,<sup>3</sup> or Bacar, and let him send him word in his despatch as to which of these places he would desire to accept; but if he would not accept these terms, he should consider that the heart of the Captain-General was not good. Diogo Fernandez replied that he carried no instructions from Afonso Dalboquerque enabling him to accept any other fortress than in Diu, and seeing that he (Çodamacão) was so important a personage, and one in whom the king reposed great confidence, he ought to consider very seriously how much honour and profit he would acquire if the King of Portugal's people were to carry on trade in his land, for by these means the kingdom of Cambay would again become noble, and greatly improve her revenues beyond their present condition, and her ships would perform their merchant voyages in safety without any one doing them any injury. Çodamacão, however, asked him if, provided that the king kept on terms of peace and friendship with the Portuguese, they would hinder the Cambay ships from making their voyages to the straits [of the Red Sea] and to Adem, on condition they did not carry spices. Diogo Fernandez replied that it would not be reasonable for the ships of Cambay to make voyages towards those parts, because they belonged to nations with whom the King of Portugal was at war, whereas true friendship must hold friends of friends for friends, and enemies of friends for enemies. Çodamacão then said that, inasmuch as according to this rule the ships of Cambay would be unable to make their voyages in security to the Straits and to Adem, which were the principal centres of their commercial traffic, what profit would the King of Cambay gain by an alliance with the King of Portugal? and as for the request which the Captain-General of India had made, he had already given it to his slave Miliqueaz; and if the terms of this despatch were unwelcome to them, he could not undertake to broach the subject any more to the king. The answer of Diogo Fernandez was, why were not the Guzerates content with making their voyage to Malaca, Pegú, Martabane,<sup>1</sup> Bengála and Ormuz, and all other places which were under the service of the King of Portugal, and allied in peace with him, without seeking to visit the Straits and Adem, where he was carrying on war? These very places the Captain-General of India had determined to visit with his fleet, and destroy, and then, when he had made a settlement of the affairs of those parts, the Cambay ships might go thither with their merchandize. But as he had declared that he would not trouble the king any further with the matter, let him send him the despatch, couched in the terms mentioned, so that he might give an account of the fortress with a captain.<sup>1</sup> These reinforcements arrived in due course at Malaca, and were joyfully received by those who were in the fortress; for, by means of this timely succour of new strength, they were reassured and relieved from the apprehension which the hourly-expected arrival of the great fleet of the enemy produced upon them. It was but a few days later, that one day, at sundown, Pateonur came in sight with a fleet of ninety sail against the harbour of Malaca, bringing with him ten thousand men, not counting the large junks which he left in the Muar River; and in company with him came Patequitir and the Lassamana, and they all cast anchor close to our fleet.

<sup>1</sup> Beroche, Bharuch, Baroach, and Broach, in the Gulf of Cambay, lat. 21 deg. 44 min. N.; long. 72 deg. 58 min. E. Vessels of one hundred tons can ascend the Nerbudda at high tide to the town of Broach, nearly thirty miles from its mouth, but skilful pilots are necessary.

<sup>2</sup> See plan and description of Mayme in P. Barretto de Resende's MS., Brit. Mus., Slo. MS. 197, f. 202. It is now called Méhim. See West Coast of Hindostan Pilot, p. 175, on the North Konkan coast, close to Salsette Island.

<sup>3</sup> Near Surat, called Domus in the West Coast of Hindostan Pilot, p. 183. Formerly the channel was deepest here and used by ships going over the bar to Surat. It took a direction on the east side of the bank towards the village Domus on the eastern shore, but is now only navigable by boats at half tide.

<sup>1</sup> In Pegú.

Patequitir, when he beheld the number and powerful armament of the ships, and saw such an unexpected number of fighting men, changed his mind, and gave up the intention for which he had come, which was to disembark and fall upon our fortress, and went to Pateonur and [the] Lassamana, and told them that it was his opinion that it was not the moment for attacking the city, for if they were to disembark all their forces on land, the Frangues, i.e., the Portuguese, would remain supreme on the sea, and could easily set fire to all the fleet; and if the fleet were destroyed in that manner, then they were indeed all as good as ruined; therefore it would be well-advised for them to rally again at their rendezvous on the Muar River, and from that position as their base, wage war upon Malaca. Inasmuch as this advice seemed prudent to them all, an hour before daybreak they weighed anchor and set sail. Fernão Perez Dandrade, who was keeping a watch over their movements, no sooner espied their retreat, than he made a signal to slip the cable of all his fleet, and gave chase to them, and before they could reach Muar River fell upon them, and sent many of their ships to the bottom, and put to death a large number of their people, many of our own men being wounded, and some killed in the engagement.

<sup>1</sup> According to Correa, Jorge Dalboquerque was sent as Captain of Malaca.—Lendas, ii, 381.

Pateonur, being in the van, had time, while our men were engaged in conflict with his fleet, to retreat with the greatest possible haste, and as soon as he reached the Muar River, embarked on board his junk, and set sail right away to Java, not at all well pleased at the result of this enterprise; and the Javanese were so dejected and terrified at this defeat—for it is indeed one of the glorious actions that we can tell of in those parts of the world—that they never dared to return again to Malaca. Patequitir and the Lassamana sailed up the river in the same ships which had brought them from Malaca, and saved themselves by taking to the interior country; and Fernão Perez Dandrade returned to Malaca elated with this victory, being there received with great joy by the captain and the rest of the people in the fortress. Of this victory, and of many others which Fernão Perez gained over the Moors, what time he held the appointment of chief captain in those parts, I do not give a detailed account, because there are others who have written a good deal about that commander.

---

CHAPTER XXI.

How the great Afonso Dalboquerque sent Diogo Fernandez de Béja and James Teixeira as ambassadors to the King of Cambay: and how they arrived at Çurrate, and set out from that place to the King's Court.

The great Afonso Dalboquerque, at the news which Fernão Martinz Evangelho wrote of the journey of Mili-queaz to the King of Cambay's Court, became very disappointed, and was much afraid that the proposed affair of

taken place, pointing out that the king was very far from granting them a fortress in Diu, for Miliqueaz was intriguing against it by means of corrupt bribes, which he was constantly giving to Bilirrane, the king's chief wife, who ruled him ; and that, as for the sites which were offered for the fortress, the letter which they brought would indicate these to him.

This kingdom of Cambay was anciently in possession of the Hindoos. It borders on one side with the territories of the Reysbutos<sup>1</sup>, by the harbour of Barapatane, and with the kingdom of Decam by a port which lies between Chaul and Maim. Its coast line extends for about a hundred and thirty leagues. Its form is as it were pointed (at the base), and in the interior country its width is about sixty leagues. The surface is flat, very fairly well supplied with provisions, and containing a great number of very valuable horses. It is bounded, in like manner, on the interior, by the kingdom of Delij,<sup>2</sup> and with the kingdom of Mandou, which are ruled by two very mighty kings. When the Portuguese discovered India, it had already been held for two hundred years by the Moors ; and this fell out in the following manner.

Cambay possesses an island close into the mainland, with very steep rocks, called Betexagor,<sup>3</sup> in which the Arabian and Persian Moors, resorting thither to trade their merchandize with the Hindoos, settled a colony and began to form alliances with them ; and as the Hindoos, in accordance with their creeds and religion, may not keep arms in their houses, the Moors found a way to dispose of them, and with little trouble became lords of all the villages and harbours on the sea side, and from those points began to invade the mainland, and in a very short space of time found themselves lords of the whole country; then they began to build keeled ships, wherein they performed voyages to all parts of India. The second king of this Moorish dynasty at Cambay, a great conqueror, sent certain ships to the coast of Melinde, and from that place they stood away to the Cape of Good Hope, intending so to make their way to these parts [of Europe]; but when they got to the Cape, they found the weather so contrary that they stood in to land, and reached the Island of São Lourenço (i.e., Madagascar); and as their ships were no longer seaworthy they stayed in that island, and colonized some of the harbours; and it is believed that the advent of these ships originated the population of Moors in the island of São Lourenço, and as this kingdom of Cambay is plentifully supplied with all sorts of merchandize, there was a constant trade of ships to it from all parts of India.

<sup>1</sup> The Rajputs of Rajputana, north of Cambay.

<sup>2</sup> Delhi.

<sup>3</sup> Bate or Bet island, in the Gulf of Cutch, about five miles long. The whole island still abounds with temples and shrines in honour of Crishna ; the population, being for the most part Brahmins, is mainly supported by the pilgrims who resort here.

The king who was on the throne when Diogo Fernandez reached the Court, was a man of forty years of age, married to a Reybuta, a woman of great worth and estimation, called Belirrane, and besides her he had five hundred others. He was a great falconer, and when he went to the chase he was always accompanied by three hundred huntsmen on horses. The King of Cambay is accustomed to spend most of the time in the city of Madoval,<sup>1</sup> because it is contiguous to the mountain ranges of the Reysbutos, with whom he is constantly carrying on war.

<sup>1</sup> There is little doubt that this city of Madoval is none other than Ahmadabad, the chief city of Cambay. The Portuguese writer has cut off the initial a, mistaking it for the definite article; but I can only explain the final d becoming l by a typographical error. The latitude is 22 deg. 2 min. N., longitude 72 deg. 32 min. E. Father Clemente Tosi, in his L'India Orientale, Roma, 4to., 1676, vol. i, pp. 20, 21, recites: "E tirando verso settentrione s'incontra Amadabat Metropoli, e città, che à verun'altra cede frà quelle dell' Imperio del Mogol. E di circuito niente inferiore à Londra girando lo spacio di sei miglia. E situato in una amenissima pianura lungo le rive d'un fiume. E assicurata da una buonissima fortezza, da un muro, che la ricinge valido, e sedo. Le strade, e le piazze sono ampie, e selciate con gli edifitij dall' uno, e l'atro

This city is about a good league in length ; it is very luxuriant, and supplied with plenty of fresh water, many entertaining sights, and many palatial houses, and it is for this reason that the king spends most of his time there ; but all his treasure, artillery, and munitions of war are kept in the city of Champanel, because of its great strength. This latter city has a fortress on a height, where there are certain principal men in whom the king reposes the greatest confidence, always on guard with a large standing force of cavalry. In this kingdom of Cambay, at the time when Diogo Fernandez and James Teixeira made their journey there, were four principal lords who maintained the king's courts of justice and governed his property. The chief of these was Çodamacão, who had been his tutor and taught him to read,—a Turk by nation. The other three were called Dabiadastur, Asturmaleque, and Asturcão.

---

CHAPTER XXIV.

How Pero Dalboquerque fared on his voyage to Cape Guardafum ; and how the King of Ormuz came to visit him.

After Pero Dalboquerque had set sail from Goa (as I have already related), he proceeded on his voyage straight to Çacotorá, with intention of taking in fresh supplies of water there ; and in his passage across the sea he sighted three ships and boarded them ; but as they proved to be bound from Calicut, carrying letters of safe-conduct from Afonso Dalboquerque, he let them go and left them to follow their

lato molto bene intesi. Fiorisa di mercantie, e gli habitatori sono molto industriosi. Può in un tratto mettere insieme da sei mila cavalli in circa," etc.

voyage. On board of these ships were all the merchant Moors who had been carrying on their business in Calicut, and with them their wives, children, and property, for the the king had decreed their expulsion, as has already been shown. Pero Dalboquerque, after letting these ships go, shaped his course for Çacotorá, and cruised about in the adjacent parts for the whole of the summer, during which time he took ten very richly-laden Moorish ships, which were bound for the straits. And as the season was now far advanced, and the favourable winds would not hold out sufficiently long to enable him to go and have a look at Adem, as Afonso Dalboquerque had instructed him, he tacked out and stood over to Ormuz, at which port he arrived at the end of May ; and as soon as he had cast anchor in the bay, the King Terunxa, who was then upon the throne,—for his brother Ceifadim<sup>1</sup> had died of poison—sent Hacem Ale, a Moor born at Grada, to pay him a visit on board ship; and by him he sent word to say that the city was at the service of the King of Portugal, and that he considered himself that king's vassal.

Pero Dalboquerque shewed great signs of pleasure at this visit, and declared how happy he was to find the king in this frame of mind ; and on the following day, in the morning, he sent Tristão Déga on shore, accompanied by Francisco Dalboquerque, the converted Jew, as interpreter, with the letter sent by Afonso Dalboquerque to the king, and with instructions to declare that Afonso Dalboquerque, his uncle, Captain-General of the Indies, having been informed of the death of King Ceifadim (his brother), had sent him thither to ratify the peace with him, which had been concluded between the Portuguese and the late king, and to beg him to order payment to be made of the tribute due for the last two years ; and inasmuch as the ships which he had brought were deeply laden with merchandize,

<sup>1</sup> For the account of this king, see vol. i, p. 228.

he begged him of his kindness to deliver up the fortress which his uncle had left already commenced, in order to store up the goods safely in it ; and also that the people who should be left behind with them might be secure from any misfortune arising out of the affairs of Ormuz.

The king replied, that as for the fortress, he could not surrender it, for it was placed close to the palace, and as it was also set close to the sea, there was nothing which he took a greater delight in than it, therefore let him look about and see if there were any other place near the sea, or within the city, where the property and persons of the Portuguese could be placed in security, for he would order it to be immediately placed at their disposal ; and as for the tribute, his late brother, just before his death, had sent an ambassador to the King of Portugal, bearing a present of pearls and other things of great value, begging him to remit the dues of the past years, and he was yet awaiting the reply ; and if the tribute were not remitted, he would undertake to pay all that was owing ; and as for the ratification of peace, he was ready to perform everything that Afonso Dalboquerque desired.

Tristão Déga returned with this answer, but as Pero Dalboquerque was not pleased with it, he sent him back to say, that he had never demanded the surrender of the palace, but only the house and the fortress which had been begun by his uncle, at the cost of the King of Portugal's property, and with the consent of the king's late brother and his governors, as was manifestly shown in the letter containing the articles of peace drawn up between the two parties ; therefore he begged him earnestly of his goodness to command its surrender to them, for within its walls he was desirous of discharging his cargoes, and beginning to sell his merchandize, for indeed by these means no little profit would accrue to the native custom-house ; and as for his assertion that the fortress ran close up to the palace, this was the very thing that the king ought to wish, for the nearer he had the Portuguese to himself by so much the safer would his royal person be against the designs of his enemies, and he would maintain his kingdom more peacefully, and his harbour would become more frequented, and full of all the riches of the world.

The king replied that it was true his brother had granted a site whereon a fortress might be built, but without considering the inconveniences which might arise from this grant; but after it had been commenced, and Cogear, Governor of the kingdom, perceived the loss which the palace would sustain on account of it, he would not allow it to be completed, and this had been the chief cause of the differences which arose between Afonso Dalboquerque and the late king his brother; and that the fortress was in sight of his palace, and for this reason, as well as many others, he could not yield up the building; and inasmuch as he had offered to build another fortress in any place they chose to select, at his own expense, his offer ought to be accepted, and the matter not insisted upon any more, for in the letter which the Captain-General of India had written to him, this alternative was conceded.

Tristão Déga replied that, as the king desired to stand by the terms of the letter, and to give another site for the building of a fortress, Pero Dalboquerque, Chief Captain of the Fleet, would accept no other than the hospital or the custom-house, for in either of these two Afonso Dalboquerque had provided for the fortress to be constructed, in order that it might be closely adjacent to the palace, where the men and merchandize of the King of Portugal could be more safely housed,—if he was determined not to give him back his own. The king replied, that the hospital, which Pero Dalboquerque sent to demand of him was a house of prayer, which his ancestors had founded for the reception of the sick, and the pilgrims who come to Ormuz, and it would be a shameful thing for him to give up a house which had been dedicated to God, for the purpose of converting it into a fortress; and as for the custom-house, that was a house wherein were paid of old the customs and dues of the Kings of Ormuz, and to take this would be the same as to take the sight of his eyes away from him; in no possible manner therefore could he part with either of these buildings, but he would give him any other that he chose to select, as he had already declared. And with this final answer Tristão Déga went back, and related to Pero Dalboquerque all that had passed with the king.

---

CHAPTER XXV.

How Pero Dalboquerque, seeing that the King of Ormuz would not give him the fortress, nor a site for building another, sent to beg for a house wherein he could discharge his cargo; and then sailed away to explore the straits of the Persian Sea.

Pero Dalboquerque being now well aware of the delays which the king was practising, and finding that he had already been there for some days without achieving any result, sent word to him by Tristão Déga, that as it was his intention, in concert with his Governors, not to surrender the fortress which the great Afonso Dalboquerque had begun, nor grant any other of those sites which he had pointed out for the building of another, he must then, at least, order that some house should be given, in which he could discharge the cargo of his ships, so that the sale of the merchandize could be commenced. The king, demonstrating great pleasure at this new point of the business, ordered that the same house should be given to the Portuguese in which the factory of the King of Portugal had formerly been established, on the occasion of Afonso Dalboquerque's first visit to Ormuz, and in it were found still remaining certain things which there had not then been an opportunity of removing, and these were, at the orders of Rexnordim, delivered to Tristão Déga and João Teixeira.

When the houses had been handed over to the Portuguese, the disembarking of the cargo was immediately proceeded with. And as soon as the ships had been unloaded, Pero Dalboquerque ordered them to be set on fire, for although in so doing a considerable sum of money was wasted, which the Moors would have willingly given for them, he gained greatly by their not thus having these ships for their navigation. When this event was over, he appointed Tristão Déga and João Teixeira to remain behind on land as factors of the merchandize, and Christovão Cercado, and Vasco Pirez, scrivener of the fleet, to be their scriveners, and then he made ready with his fleet to go and explore the straits of the Persian Sea (i.e., the Persian Gulf), in accordance with the instructions which he had received from Afonso Dalboquerque; and just as he was on the point of spreading his sails to start away, the king sent word to him by Hacem Ale, begging him earnestly not to undertake the voyage, for his ships were too large and the straits full of shallows and islands;<sup>1</sup> for he was dreading lest any misfortune should arise to them in their voyage. Pero Dalboquerque replied that he was very much obliged to him for this piece of advice, but he could not omit the performance of the voyage, for the Captain-General of India had instructed him to explore the whole of the straits; and had also ordered him to find out whether Barem<sup>1</sup> was still in obedience to his commands, and as he was bound thither he (the King of Ormuz) should consider if he could do him any service while he was there, for with that fleet of the King of Portugal he was quite ready to do him any service, and indeed Afonso Dalboquerque his uncle had so ordered him to act; and he would beg him earnestly to get ready the tribute and the golden letter, for as soon as he returned he would have to sail away again in a direct course for India.

<sup>1</sup> The soundings in the gulf are deep where the land near the sea is high, and where it is low, the depths are less. The gulf is studded with islands of various sizes. They are commonly of volcanic origin, in part at least. The navigation in a sailing vessel requires great attention. The winds, as in most inland seas, are very uncertain and blow occasionally with great force down the gulf; and in winter, also, in the opposite direction. They set in without much warning.—Persian Gulf Pilot, 1870.

When the King of Ormuz saw that Pero Dalboquerque, in spite of the advice he had given him, was determined to enter the straits, he commanded that two pilots should be given to him, who were well acquainted with the navigation of those parts, and letters for his use on the voyage, whereby to procure other pilots, and all other things needful for him; and desired him earnestly to show favour to a certain one of his captains who was journeying thither. And thereupon Pero Dalboquerque sailed away on the seventh of July of this year, and entered through the straits of the Persian Sea, and explored all the harbours, islands, and villages which are contained in it, as far as an island called Lulutem;<sup>2</sup> and when he was as far advanced as Bárem, the winds being now westerly, and the season getting late for returning to India, in accordance with the instructions which he carried, he tacked about and stood along in the tack for a two days' voyage and reached Raxel,<sup>1</sup> where he found Mirbuzaca, captain of the Xequé Ismael, who had captured twenty terradas<sup>2</sup> from a captain of the King of Ormuz.

<sup>1</sup> Barem, celebrated for its pearl fishery, is on the Arabian side, now called Bahreïn island, about twenty-seven miles long, north and south, by ten in breadth. The principal town is Manámeh at the north-east corner, the capital of the chief of the great Uttúbí tribe. Captain Kemball, late Political Resident in the Persian Gulf, estimates the total population of the islands at 50,000.

<sup>2</sup> The only island with a name at all approaching this is Hálúl, almost in the middle of the waterway, seventy-two miles S.E. by E.  $\frac{1}{2}$  E. from Ras Rekkem, barely one mile across; the highest peak being 180 feet, visible fourteen to fifteen miles. There is a good landing-place, but the island is quite barren. It is visited by the pearl boats; the edge of the Pearl bank being just outside the island.

Pero Dalboquerque getting information of this, sent word to him that the great Afonso Dalboquerque had sent him to those parts in the service of the King of Ormuz, therefore he begged him of his goodness to order the restoration of the terradas which he had taken from this captain. Mirbuzaca, who had no fleet capable of offering any resistance to ours, ordered the surrender of the terradas and all the rest which he had seized. And after the captain had received the terradas again, Pero Dalboquerque sailed away to Ormuz, where he arrived on the sixth day of the month of August, and the king immediately sent Hacem Ale to visit him, giving him great thanks for the result of the affair with Mirbuzaca respecting his terradas. Tristão Déga and João Teixeira also, came off shore immediately, to see him on board, and related to him how that the king had not paid them the tribute, nor prepared the golden letter, which he had told the king he must do, before he sailed away.

Two days elapsed after this, and then Pero Dalboquerque sent a message to the king through Tristão Déga, João Teixeira, and Vasco Pirez, scrivener of the fleet, after the manner of a formal demand, stating that as he would not surrender the fortress which Afonso Dalboquerque had commenced, he must send back in writing the reply to this demand, and he must order the tribute to be paid to them, for he did not intend to return to India without it. The king was unwilling to make any written reply, but he sent back a verbal answer to the effect that as for the fortress, which they were beginning to talk about again, he had already shewn the reasons why he could not give it up; and as for the tribute, he was a poor man; on account of the great expenses to which he had been put; therefore he begged him to consider him in this respect, as well as in all the rest which he had told him about the expected return of his ambassador [from Portugal], and this reply he could give to the Captain-General; and thereupon Tristão Déga took his leave of the king.

<sup>1</sup> This seems an imperfect word for Ras-el-..... or Ras-al-.....

<sup>2</sup> Small vessels used for purposes of war.

---

CHAPTER XXVI.

How Pero Dalboquerque again endeavoured to compel the king to pay the tribute, and what passed upon this matter with him; and how he set sail for India and arrived at Goa.

Pero Dalboquerque became so angry at this reply of the king, that he immediately sent Tristão Déga back again to tell him that as he had requited him so badly for the service which he had rendered him in procuring the restitution of his terradas, he might rest assured that he did not intend to go out of the harbour without first of all being paid all the debts which were due to him. Tristão Déga delivered this message to the king, and then, without waiting for any further reply, returned to the ships. The king and his Governors, seeing the determination of Pero Dalboquerque, and fearing that if he remained in this humour he might perhaps set fire to some seventy merchant vessels in the port, which were on the point of setting out for the straits (but having received intelligence that he was cruising about with his fleet at the Cape of Guardafum, they had put in at Ormuz), unanimously agreed, that in order to remedy this state of affairs, they ought to use their best endeavours to pay all they could of the tribute that was due. So the king sent word immediately by Hacem Ale, that as he would not take cognisance of his necessity, nor wait for the return of the ambassador sent to Portugal for a reply, he would therefore seek for a loan of some money so as to pay him, but this would be all he could do. Three days afterwards the king sent by the hands of Hacem Ale, ten thousand verafins, begging him earnestly to pardon him for not sending a larger sum, for the merchants were so poor (as they dared not make their voyages out of fear of the Portuguese fleet), that the collection of that sum had only been effected with great trouble; and as for the golden letter, it was being prepared, and when it was finished he would send it to the Captain-General of India.

Pero Dalboquerque, finding the season would not allow him to delay any longer, on account of the monsoon, accepted the ten thousand verafins, and gave orders for gathering together the goods which still remained on land for sale, and re-shipping it; and when it was all collected together, and the fleet ready provided with supplies and water for the voyage, he sent word to the King by Tristão Déga and João Teixeira that Afonso Dalboquerque had learned that the Xequé Ismael was very desirous of getting possession of Ormuz; therefore he, on his part, begged the king of his goodness—since the King of Portugal recognised the necessity of protecting him—not to consent to any armed men of the Xequé Ismael entering into his lands, and to cause it to be proclaimed that no person coming from Persia could pass through to India, for Afonso Dalboquerque ordered that every one taken in this sea, on his way to that country, should be put to the sword; but merchants could go safely, as many as pleased. And in case any ambassador from the Xequé Ismael should reach Ormuz on his way to any king in India, he must not be allowed to take in his company more than fifty persons, for all above that number were to be detained as captives. And because the King of Portugal had given order for the dismantling of the harbour of Baticalá, and desired all the horses from Arabia and Persia to be landed at Goa, therefore he begged him of his goodness to order all the ships carrying horses, to proceed direct to Goa, for there they would find all the merchandise they required for their return journey ; and if this were conceded, he on his part would undertake not to give a safe-conduct to any ship to make a voyage except to Ormuz with merchandise ; and he could rest assured that every ship which was not bound for Ormuz, would have its cargo seized, and its crew put to death.

The king replied, that he was quite content that the merchants should go to Goa, but it would have to be on two conditions. The first was, that the above-mentioned penalty should only apply to those who were clearly convicted of abandoning Goa in order to visit other ports. And the other, that he should give orders to treat the merchants with every honour, bearing in mind how dear horses were in Ormuz, and to what great expenses those who shipped them were put. If these two conditions were observed, and the merchants could obtain such a price for their merchandise that they could get a profit out of it, all the merchants would be delighted to go to Goa, without there being any necessity of fixing a penalty to compel them to use that port only.

With this reply, Tristão Déga and João Teixeira took their leave of the king ; and, as soon as they got on board, Pero Dalboquerque immediately sent word to the captains, giving them notice that he was about to set sail ; and, on the following day in the morning, they all spread their sails, and he shaped his course direct for India ; and without anything taking place on the voyage worthy of notice, he arrived at Goa, with all his fleet, on the twenty-eighth day of September in the year [fifteen hundred and] fourteen, and there he found the ambassador of the King of Ormuz, who had arrived from Portugal a few days before in the ships which came from that kingdom that year ;<sup>1</sup> and at the news of the arrival of Pedro Dalboquerque, great was the rejoicing in the city, for it was already known that he had taken some valuable prizes. And, as soon as he reached the land, he went immediately to visit his uncle Afonso Dalboquerque, and gave him an account of what had taken place on the voyage, showing him how the King of Ormuz had accepted the cap of the Xequé Ismael, and ordered his prayer to be recited in all the mosques, and that Rexnordim ruled everything, and had sent orders for all his sons to come thither from Persia ; and that a captain of the Xequé Ismael, called Mirbuzaca, was cruising about with a fleet lording it over all the Persian Straits.

Afonso Dalboquerque, happy as he was at the safe return

<sup>1</sup> The British Museum MS. Add. 20,902, gives, at f. 17, the following account of the ships sent from Portugal to India in 1514:—

“Anno de 1514.

“Christovão de Brito, Capitam Môr.

“Christovão de Brito, Capitão moor de cinco naos partito a Vintasete de Março ; Capitães Francisco Pereira Rusticão ; Manoel de Mello, Luis Dantas, João Serrão ; E neste anno se fez a fortaleza de Couião, a que se pos nome Sancthorne. E foy primeiro Capitão, e feitor Heitor Rodriguez. 5 Vellas a 27 de Março.

“E em dous de Julho do mesmo anno partio Sebastião de Sousa por Capitão moor de tres Navios de que forão Capitães Luis Figueira e Pedr' Aluares Françes para fazerem feitoria na Ilha de São Lourenço que não teue efeito. 3 Vellas em 2 de Julbo do mesmo anno.

“Successos das cinco nãos.—Luis Dantas chegando à India primeiro, que os de sua companhia, foy por mandado de Affonso de Albuquerque a Cambaya carregar de algumas mercadorias para ajuda da Carga, aonde se perdeu, salvandose a gente.”

The marginal note to the first paragraph of this extract is:—“Outra Relação diz, que partiu a 9 de Abril com estes Capitães = Mel. de Melo, em Sat Ma da Luz = Fran<sup>co</sup> Pereira Coutinho em S<sup>ta</sup> Maria da Ajuda = Luis Dantas, perdido = João Serrão.”

“Esta mesma Relação diz, que depois de partida a Armada das 5 nãos partirão mais 2 vellas a 11 de Junho para na Ilha de S. Lourenço assentarem trato, e feitoria de que eram Capitães Luis Figueira, e Pedreanes Françes.” Cf. Correa, Lendas, p. 385.

of his nephew, whereby the needs of India would be supplied, felt displeased when he learned the condition of affairs at Ormuz, and was not slow in making up his mind privately to himself, to go that very year and set the affairs right again, before the Xequé Ismael could set his foot there; and he lost no time in beginning to make himself ready, giving out openly, indeed, that this preparation was being made with a view to penetrating the Straits of Méca. The prize which Pero Dalboquerque brought, was valued at about forty thousand cruzados for the crown, as well as a ship laden with merchandise, which could not be sold, and besides the ten thousand xerafins which the King of Ormuz had paid as tribute. And although Afonso Dalboquerque was advised by the king's officers to lade a ready-money cargo for Portugal, because the cost would be less, yet, remembering the necessity of his people, he would not do it, but ordered them to set out a table in the public square, and pay every one in cash and merchandise all that was due to him for his wages and subsistence up to that very hour; whereat everyone became very happy.

But before this payment was concluded, it had happened that Afonso Dalboquerque had been very much importuned by a Lascar to give orders for the payment of his wages, for he was dying of hunger; and Afonso Dalboquerque, finding himself unexpectedly left without any cash wherewith to pay him, pulling at his beard said, "I swear by the life that I am living, what would you have me do for you? Here, take these hairs of my beard and go and pawn them." The Lascar had kept these hairs, and when it fell out that he saw the others were being paid openly, he made his way to Afonso Dalboquerque and cried out: "See, here are the hairs of your beard, send and take them out of pawn and pay me." Afonso Dalboquerque embraced the man, and said that one who had so carefully preserved the hairs of his beard, ought with good reason to be well paid; but as all the public money belonging to the King of Portugal had been paid away, he ordered him to be paid out of his own private purse, and from that day forward they used to call the man Afonso Dalboquerque's Lascar.

---

CHAPTER XXVII.

Of the arrival of the ambassador of the King of Narsinga, and of the reception which the great Afonso Dalboquerque gave him; and how he sent him back with a despatch, sending in company with him Antonio de Sousa and João Teixeira to settle the business for which he had come.

With the receipt of this intelligence, which Pero Dalboquerque brought, of the present condition of affairs at Ormuz, the great Afonso Dalboquerque made up his mind to go thither that summer with a well-armed fleet, to complete the fortress which he had left already commenced, and to take possession of the kingdom before ever the Xequé Ismael should busy himself about it; and to this end he began to make secret preparations, without acquainting anyone with his intention, giving out openly that his voyage would be to the Straits of Méca, because the King D. Manoel had given him orders to that effect. Just at this juncture of events there arrived an ambassador from the King of Narsinga, called Retelim Chetim, Governor of Bracelor,<sup>1</sup> and of the villages on the edge of the sea, who was a principal man of the royal household, and held in great esteem by the king, accompanied by a large number of native peons, that ministered to him by the way.

Afonso Dalboquerque, having received information of his coming, and of the high position to which his rank entitled him, commanded Pero Mascarenhas, captain of the Fortress, with a large guard of mounted men, to go and await his coming outside the city. And when he arrived before him, he made a salutation, coming accompanied ceremoniously with many men on horseback, and a captain in command of a body of native peons. And he brought in front of his train four elephants with their castles made of wood covered with silk, and in each of them there sat a Hindoo personage of honorable rank, holding washhand bowls of silver gilt, wherein they carried pearls and jewelry of precious stones and other richly made articles of native manufacture, which the king sent to Afonso Dalboquerque as presents. With all this apparatus they arrived at the Çabayo's palace, where Afonso Dalboquerque was stationed, waiting for the new comers in a large saloon, richly hung around with trophies of arms, and having a canopy of brocade with a throne of crimson velvet, whereon he was seated, and all the captains, Fidalgoes, and noble personages who were in Goa standing up along the walls; for, although the great Afonso Dalboquerque lived on familiar terms with our own people, yet before the Moors and Hindoos of India he always maintained his authority, whence it happened that every one evinced towards him a great esteem and high consideration.

<sup>1</sup> See "Plan and Description of the Fortress and Town of Barsilor" in P. Barretto de Resende's MS., Brit. Mus., Sloane 197, fo. 284.

When the ambassador first entered the hall, Afonso Dalboquerque, having regard to the quality of his person, went down to the middle of the hall to receive him, and from that spot both proceeded to the places where it was appointed that they should sit. Thus, the ambassador standing up, delivered to him the present which he had brought, giving him at the same time a letter of credence from the King of Narsinga, in which he earnestly begged him to despatch the ambassador at an early moment. Afonso Dalboquerque told him to go and refresh himself from the hardships of his journey, while he looked at the letter and arranged the terms of his despatch, ordering that he should be supplied with all he and his people required at the cost of the Portuguese. On the following day, Afonso Dalboquerque ordered the ambassador to be called before him, and told him that the King of Narsinga had written, desiring him to give credit to all that he had written on his part, therefore he desired to know the business on which he had come, so that he might despatch him.

The ambassador replied, that the King of Narsinga, his lord, was very desirous of maintaining the peace and friendship which had been concluded with the King of Portugal, and for this reason, knowing the differences which were standing between him and the Hidalcão, he had determined to go to war with the latter; therefore, if he was still thus minded as he had been, let him send him word by a messenger, for if both were of one mind in this war, it would cost them very little trouble to destroy the Hidalcão. The letter also made mention of the trade in horses; but because the King of Narsinga, after Afonso Dalboquerque had sent Manuel Fernandez and Gaspar Chanoca to press him to a union for them both to make war upon the Hidalcão, was always making excuses without coming to any settled purpose; he also desired to delay the acceptance of this proposal until the king should understand that he had it in his power to destroy him by taking away from him the trade in horses, and giving it to the Hidalcão; therefore he told the ambassador that he would carefully consider the matter, and give him an answer at a future time.

The ambassador lost no time in informing the King of Narsinga of this diplomatic reply which Afonso Dalboquerque had made, and the king, when he perceived that Afonso Dalboquerque did not hasten with alacrity to announce to him that he was prepared to begin the expedition into the territory of the Hidalcão, being a business which he had often pressed him to undertake, came to the conclusion that he (Afonso) must have received some com-

he corroborated all that the Governor of Muscate had told him, and that Reys Hamed, as soon as he caught sight of the Portuguese ships in the harbour, had given the king more liberty and set free Reys Nordim and his sons from the prison in which they had been confined by his orders; and that only a few days back there had arrived at Ormuz Abrahem Beque, one of the principal captains of the Xequé Ismael, accompanied by six or seven serving men, leaving the rest of his party and his horses on the other side of the land; and on enquiring of the ambassador of the Xequé Ismael wherefore this his captain had come, he had declared that it was with the intention of sending from that port a messenger with twenty horses and some letters to the king of Cambay.

Afonso Dalboquerque stored up in his memory this artfully planned arrival of Abrahem Beque. Like a prudent commander he was not careless of what it behoved him to perform, but sent orders secretly to keep guard all round the Island with the galleys and brigantines which he had in the fleet, in order that no stranger should get into Ormuz, and he told Miguel Ferreira to return to shore and stay with the Xequé Ismael's ambassador, until he should send him word what he was to do. Having thus dismissed Miguel Ferreira, Afonso Dalboquerque called for Hacem Ale and sent him to the shore, accompanied by Duarte Vaz, a servant of the King D. Manuel, very well conversant with the native tongue, bearing a message to the king and to Reys Nordim, wherein there was no mention of Reys Hamed. Duarte Vaz had an interview with the king, and declared to him, on the part of Afonso Dalboquerque, that the ambassador, whom King Ceifadim, his brother, had sent to the King of Portugal, was there with the Portuguese, bearing letters and a reply to his mission; but inasmuch as he had returned to the religion in which he had been brought up, and had arrived only to find the king and Cogeatâr dead who had formerly

CHAPTER XXVIII.

How, after the departure of the ambassador of the King of Narsinga, another ambassador came from the Hidalcão to treat for peace and the trade in horses, and yet another from the Hidalcão's mother, who came to hasten forward the matter: and what Afonso Dalboquerque did thereupon.

The Hidalcão, knowing that the King of Narsinga had sent his ambassadors to the great Afonso Dalboquerque, and that he was making preparations with a large force to invade his territory and make war upon him, fearing lest Afonso Dalboquerque and the king should strike up a bargain about the horse trade, which was the principal spring of his defensive policy, sent a messenger with letters addressed to his ambassador, who had been in Goa for several days past (for he had come with Diogo Fernandez, the Adail, and João Teixeira, as I have already related,<sup>1</sup> whom Afonso Dalboquerque had sent there, and they returned without coming to any definite conclusion), to hasten forward the matter more than ever, and to declare to him that, since it had been agreed between them that as long as they maintained the treaty of peace, he would not prevent the coming of the Moorish ships with their merchandise to Dabul, he begged him of his kindness to give orders for the punishment of his captains, because, in contravention of the terms agreed upon between them, they were capturing every ship bound for Dabul; for he on his part desired (as he had oftentimes sent word to him through his ambassadors) to maintain a state of peace and friendship with the King of Portugal, and to arrange the trade in horses, and they ought not to take away these [horses] to give them to the King of Narsinga. The ambassador gave a relation of all this, which the Hidalcão wrote to him, to Afonso Dalboquerque, begging

<sup>1</sup> See p. 83.

to be dispatched away; for, he said, the Hidalcão, his lord, imagined that it was owing to his negligence that the matter was left unheeded. But, as it was the determination of Afonso Dalboquerque to dally with him, until he could find out whether the King of Narsinga wished to come to a conclusion, in respect of the propositions which had been laid before him, or not (for Afonso Dalboquerque preferred this one's amity, as he was a Hindoo, if with an honest intention he would busy himself with the conquest of the kingdom of Decam, to that of the Hidalcão, who was a Moor, with whom there never could be any lasting relations of peace because of the intrigues of the Turks who advised him not to keep on good terms with the Portuguese), he replied that he would dispatch him.

After the lapse of a few days, the Hidalcão's mother, who governed that prince, perceiving that the ambassador was delayed, and being desirous that her son should have a treaty of peace with Afonso Dalboquerque, sent word to him through one of her female servants (a woman of great authority, who was married to a Moor who governed the royal household of this queen-mother), with a letter to treat concerning this agreement for peace, making many offers and begging him to dispatch her son's ambassador, who had already been waiting for some time to receive his dispatch, and also that he would give permission to her said servant to purchase a few horses, of which she had need—for in that country all the noble women go on horseback, and for this reason, apart from the necessity they have of them for military purposes, they are highly valued. Afonso Dalboquerque gave the desired permission to buy the horses, and dispatched the servant immediately, telling her to declare to her ladyship that he was busy about a great many important matters, and therefore at present unable to dispatch the ambassador of the Hidalcão, her son, but he would dispatch him as soon as he could.

But because the ambassador strove hard with Afonso Dalboquerque in the matter of obtaining his dispatch, and Antonio de Sousa and João Teixeira had not returned with any message from the King of Narsinga (who was waiting to decide finally what reply he would make), and the time of Afonso Dalboquerque's departure for Ormuz was at hand, he at length dispatched the Hídalcão's ambassador, intending on his return from Ormuz to come to an understanding with that one who would accede to the most favourable terms; and in order to entertain the Hídalcão in the meantime, he sent in company with this ambassador João Gonçalvez de Castel-Branco, very nobly accompanied with attendants on horse and foot; and through him an answer was sent, showing that out of a desire to cultivate his friendship and to be neighbourly towards him, he would give him all the horses that found their way to Goa, on condition of his surrender of the mainland [adjacent to Goa] and the pass of the land of the Gate<sup>1</sup>—for the military position of Goa would thereby be rendered more secure—and he promised that the king D. Manuel, his lord, would give all the assurances he could wish for, so that he might rest certain that the king would not send orders to make war with him, nor thwart his policy to the advantage of the King of Narsinga; but in respect of chastising the Portuguese captains who had taken his ships when bound for Dabul, in contravention of the articles agreed upon between them, this had been perpetrated by a galley that had mutinied there, and he was powerless to mete out the just punishment merited by these Portuguese, who, armed with a safe conduct, were robbing the ships of the Moors; for out of fear of being banished by him they would flee to his (the Hídalcão's) camp or headquarters, and there he felt sure they would be very well received by him; and, indeed, it was but a few days ago that four Lascars had seized upon a ship from Cananor, and finding shelter in his conversation upon this matter, agreed that they would waive the claim to the fortress, on condition that the king would give them as hostages for the performance of his promises two of the sons of Reys Nordim; and with these terms of reply Afonso Dalboquerque sent to shore Pero Dalpoem, Manoel da Costa, and Alexander de Ataíde, interpreter, who always accompanied the parties sent with messages. The king replied that in order to comply with the demand of Afonso Dalboquerque for hostages, it would be necessary in the first case to know the place whereon he desired to build the new fortress; and with them came Hacem Ale to learn the intentions of Afonso Dalboquerque, and he told him, speaking somewhat angrily, to declare to the king and his governors that he could not understand their way of conducting business, for they had sent word to say that if the fortress were suffered to remain in the king's possession, they would give him any other site that he chose, and then, when he asks for hostages to ensure the performance of this condition, the reply is made that he must first specify the position of the place, and then the hostages would be given; therefore let him tell the king that he had made a contract with his brother and with Cogear, his governor, and according to the terms of it he intended to stand; therefore let him send Reys Nordim to discuss matters with them, and bring the text of the contract with him, as he intended to carry it out to the very letter; for he did not want his houses nor his mosque, but only that which had been begun at the cost of the King D.Manuel, his lord; and he might rest certain that if this were not surrendered he would destroy Ormuz, and on this issue he and all the Portuguese who were there were prepared to risk their lives.

<sup>1</sup> I.e., Ghaut.

---

AFONSO DALBOQUERQUE

on the way to the place of execution they turned him to prison, and the soldier, having by this time repented his intention, was ordered to be released, and when the ambassadors returned with the Hidalcão's answer to all this, they found that Afonso Dalboquerque was dead.

---

CHAPTER XXIX.

How D. Garcia arrived at Goa with the vessels which he had caused to be refitted at Cochim; and how the great Afonso Dalboquerque made his fleet ready to set sail, and sent away Jorge Dalboquerque to be captain of Malaca, and what happened on the voyage.

A few days after these ambassadors had set out, D. Garcia de Noronha arrived with the ships which he had been keeping behind to repair at Cochim, and on his arrival the great Afonso Dalboquerque immediately began to fit out his fleet. And inasmuch as the King D. Manuel had laid great stress upon the duty of leaving all matters relating to the protection of any place, on the occasion of the governor leaving India to go to any other place, in such a condition that that place should be able to give a good account of itself if any cause of trouble should arise—(for to preserve what one has gained is more important than to make new gains)—he busied himself about providing all the fortresses of India with men, artillery, and supplies, and everything else that was necessary, in profusion; and commanded D. Garcia to make ready the fleet.

When this was done, he summoned Jorge Dalboquerque to come to him from Cochim, and dispatched him with a fleet of four sail, carrying two hundred men, and all manner of munitions of war that could be required, to go as Captain to Malaca, arranging that Pero Mascarenhas was to return to Cochim and finish his proper term of service, and he conferred the Captaincy of Goa upon D. João Déssa. Now as Afonso Dalboquerque had made up his mind to pass the winter at Ormuz, intending in the ensuing summer to go and capture Adem and penetrate the straits of the Red Sea, he ordered that four galleys should be built and sent on to him at Ormuz as soon as they were finished, fitted out with every thing that was needful for them.

Just as they were now all ready to set sail, the Çamorim sent to ask permission that he might despatch two ships to Adem, but Afonso Dalboquerque made an excuse for not granting permission by saying that it would be contrary to the agreement to which both parties had consented, and that he himself was now on the point of making a voyage to Adem, and did not wish that these two ships should go before him and acquaint the king of his coming. Notwithstanding all these reasons, and others which were given, the Çamorim became more urgent in his request, and when Afonso Dalboquerque perceived this, he made a virtue of necessity and sent word to say that he would be very happy to give them permission for what they desired, provided they did not carry pepper—seeing that they were going to a country hostile to the King of Portugal, his lord—and on condition that the merchants of Calicut should make for him, at their own expense, two large galleys, and this he desired so as to justify his excuses. Nevertheless the merchants, considering the great gain they would make by sending their merchandize to the straits, were happy to make these galleys; and in order to get them made the more speedily, Duarte Barbosa was left to be manager of the works, and a Portuguese carpenter, with a gang of native artificers were set to work upon them, for the intention of Afonso Dalboquerque was, after his entry into the straits of the Red Sea, to convert all the fleet of India into galleys.

Jorge Dalboquerque, having now got his fleet in perfect readiness to set out, took leave of Afonso Dalboquerque, and sailed out of the harbour of Goa on a Saturday in the morning, and without any notable event taking place during the voyage, he arrived at Pacé just at the moment when the king—who was a devoted adherent to the King of Portugal—was in readiness with his army to give battle to a certain lord of the land who had risen up in rebellion against him. The king, learning the arrival of Jorge Dalboquerque, sent immediately to pay him a visit, desiring him to take his side in the coming attack, for he trusted with the help of the Portuguese to gain a victory over his enemies. Jorge Dalboquerque sent word back to him that he would serve him with a very good will, but it must be on condition that he was left alone with his men to attack the enemy, for he trusted in God's mercy to give him vengeance on them, and the king must post himself on a lofty knoll with all his array, every man with a branch in his hand, for from that spot he would see how the Portuguese could fight.

This having been thus arranged, Jorge Dalboquerque disembarked with all his fighting men, and proceeded to attack the enemy, who were posted in a low lying site, the king and all his people lying behind them. And he fell upon them with such an onslaught that they were dispersed and put to flight, and an innumerable quantity of them slain. Then he rallied his men at the harbour where he had anchored the fleet. The king thereupon commanded his soldiers to follow up after the flying enemy, while he came down to see Jorge Dalboquerque and gave him great thanks and much praise for the achievement—for it was indeed one of the great victories which were gained in those parts of the world, considering the small number of our men who were engaged in it.

Jorge Dalboquerque then took his leave of the king, offering to serve him whenever he had need of his assistance, and proceeded to embark, and made his way straight to Malaca, and on his arrival he took charge of the fortress; and Ruy de Brito Patalim embarked in the same fleet and returned to India, but when he reached Goa he found that the great Afonso Dalboquerque was dead. Besides that Jorge Dalboquerque was a great Cavalier, he was so very conscientious a man that on the first voyage which he made to Malaca as captain he took ten thousand cruzados, and on his second voyage of return he brought twelve and took ten [thousand] which is not done now!

---

CHAPTER XXX.

Of the Council which the great Afonso Dalboquerque held concerning the voyage he should make; and how it was decided that he should go to Ormuz; and of the news which reached him when he arrived at Mascate.

The great Afonso Dalboquerque having thus arranged all the affairs of India, and supplied the fortresses with all things they required, and having a fleet ready prepared of twenty-six sail, of which were captains the following:—

D. Garcia de Noronha,
 Pero Dalboquerque,
 Lope Vaz de Sampayo,
 Diogo Fernandez,
 Aires da Silva,
 Simão Dandrade,
 Duarte de Melo,
 Vasco Fernandez Coutinho,
 Antonio Ferreira,
 Fernão Gomez de Lemos,
 Antonio Raposo,
 Ruy Galvão,
 Jorge de Brito,
 Jeronymo de Sousa,
 Silvestre Corço,

Manuel da Costa,
 Pero Ferreira,
 João Pereira,
 Fernão de Resende,
 Francisco Pereira,
 João Gomez,
 João de Meira,
 Nuno Nunez Raposo,
 Pero Corço,
 Fernãodians, and Vicente Dalboquerque,

who was captain of the ship Nazareth, having his uncle Afonso Dalboquerque on board,—proceeded to embark on the twentieth day of February of the said year, and after they were embarked, he summoned all the captains to his ship, and with them D. João Déssa, captain of the fortress of Goa, and D. Sancho de Noronha, chief Alcaide, there being present also Nicoláo Ferreira,<sup>1</sup> ambassador for the King of Ormuz, who had arrived in September<sup>2</sup> last from Portugal, bearing the king's reply to his mission.

And when all were met together, Afonso Dalboquerque shewed them that he had gathered together that fleet, made ready with all the provisions and munitions which he could procure, and as far as he could gather from the muster rolls of the land there were on board about fifteen hundred Portuguese and seven hundred Malabars; and the King Dom Manuel had written to him year after year that it would be to his service if they entered the Red Sea, and built a fortress in Adem, and that very year he had written a letter to him wherein he reminded him of the same duty; and also the King had signified to him how pleased he would be if the affairs of Ormuz were set on a proper footing; and that he had it for certain intelligence that the King of Ormuz, after the death of Cogear, had accepted the cap and prayer of the Xequé Ismael, which was a beginning of his coming in time to be lord of the kingdom, and this Nicoláo Ferreira, his ambassador, who was there present, knew better than he did. And, he continued, inasmuch as the King D. Manuel had written to him in a pressing manner upon these two points, he, on his part, desired to gather from them, which of the two enterprises would be most to the service of the country for the fleet to undertake, whether in fact to penetrate into the Red Sea and build a fortress in Adem, or to make sure of Ormuz in such a manner that the Xequé could not possibly maintain his footing in it.

<sup>1</sup> Of this man Correa gives the following notice:—"Veo n'estas naos (i.e., the fleet of Christovão de Brito) hum embaixador que ElRey d'Ormuz, e Cojatar, tinham mandado por terra a ElRey com suas cartas de vassalagem, pedindo a ElRey que lhe confirmasse sua paz pera sempre: que pagaria cad'anno, com fortaleza que daria, com condicão que nunca lhe mais pedissem outra nenhuma consa. O qual messigeiro era homem ganicero de nação, homem auisado, que deu a ElRey muy larga conta de todo o feito d'Ormuz, e d'outras muytos consas da Índia e Turquia, que ElRey lhe fez mercê e a rogo d'ElRey se fez Christão, e se chamou Nicoláo de Ferreira."—Lendas, pp. 386, 387.

<sup>2</sup> Correa gives the date of 22nd August.

When Afonso Dalboquerque had thus made an end of setting all these things before the meeting, there arose differences of opinion between the parties; for some thought it a better policy to penetrate into the straits [of the Red Sea] and to erect a fortress in Adem, while others thought it better to finish the fortress of Ormuz, which had already been commenced. And in order to avoid these differences, Afonso Dalboquerque desired, before any determination was arrived at, to learn the opinion of Nicoláo Ferreira, who declared that the King of Ormuz, his lord, who had sent him as ambassador to the King of Portugal was dead, and the present governor was a native of Persia, vassal of the Xequé Ismael, having under his command within the City of Ormuz seven or eight nephews who ordered everything, and these had it in their power, whenever they thought fit, to reigning king to death (just as indeed they had served the late king, his lord), and to deliver over the kingdom to the Xequé Ismael; and when once the Xequé was in possession it would be a difficult matter to put him out; therefore as this affair was in so serious a situation it was his opinion that the fleet ought rather to go to Ormuz and make sure of it, for by so doing the service of the King of Portugal would be better advanced.

When Nicoláo Ferreira had made an end of expressing his opinion, Afonso Dalboquerque declared that he on his part had no doubt that the shutting up of the straits was the most important undertaking that could be performed throughout the whole of India, followed by the destruction of the Grand Sultan and the temple of Méca, if a fortress were built in it; but this project must be put off until a time when the necessities of India were not so imperative as to compel the Portuguese to change their policy; and reinforcements could not be got from the mother country under two years' time. And, apart from this, the thing which, more than any other, compelled him to be on the alert to perform his obligations, was the information that the King of Ormuz had accepted the cap of the Xequé Ismael and his prayer, and that Reys Nordim,<sup>1</sup> his governor, was a Persian by birth, a covetous old man in whose power all the treasure and property of the king lay,—having as he had, on his side many sons, and also when he observed the ambassadors of the Xequé Ismael, who were continually traversing India, and the affairs which they were beginning to transact with the kings and lords of that country, and the presents which he used to send them, for it was owing to these proceedings and for many other reasons which he would not mention on that occasion, that in his opinion they ought to determine to go and make a final settlement of the affair of Ormuz, for in that city they would gain large sums not hold any further communication with him, but sent him off as soon as Nicoláo Ferreira returned.

<sup>1</sup> This name has hitherto been written "Rexnordim" in the text.

After Pero Dalpoem and Nicoláo Ferreira had related all that had passed, Afonso Dalboquerque asked them about Reys Hamed, what sort of a man he was. They told him he was a man of fair complexion, a young man of about thirty years of age, of good carriage, and a noble presence, and accounted to be a man of strength of mind, and a great lover of military things, and he always stood (they said) close beside the king's chair, holding a short sword, with one hand placed on his dagger, and that the king would never answer any more than what this man told him. Afonso Dalboquerque, who would not brook delay, and knew that Reys Hamed was determined to defend Ormuz, ordered the captains to be summoned to his ship, and declared to them that inasmuch as the King of Ormuz, by the letter which the King D. Manuel had written, had seen his determination to set to work at once to grapple with the affairs of Ormuz while they were yet in a pretty simple condition, let them therefore tell him how or in what way he should make a beginning with the king. And after discussing first one thing and then another, for some time, D. Garcia at length declared in the name of them all, that there really was no need of saying anything in the matter, for since the fortress which had been left after its commencement was still lying in the same condition there, and in the whole of the city there was not any other position more suitable than it was for the king's service; therefore one ought to claim to be allowed to complete it, rather than undertake other new enterprises, for they would take a long time to achieve; and therefore he ought to send and beg the king to grant a lodging-place, in the city, for the captains and men needed to be left on shore, to be a guard for the workmen who would be told off to perform the work.

The captains therefore, having come to this determination,

Persia. At this news which the rulers gave him, Afonso Dalboquerque became somewhat disconcerted, because it seemed to him that the affairs of Ormuz were not so easy to arrange as he had thought, particularly when he bore in mind he had written to the King D. Manuel that he would take in hand and finish the affairs of Ormuz, for it was now like to be lost if he did not hasten up and save the city.

---

CHAPTER XXXI.

How the great Afonso Dalboquerque set out from Mascate and reached Ormuz; and of the messages which he sent to the king, and of the rest which took place.

After the great Afonso Dalboquerque had been informed by the Rulers of Mascate of all these affairs which I have mentioned, he ordered that some pieces of stuff which he had brought with him should be given to them, and having taken in water and supplies, he took his leave of them and sailed away direct to Ormuz without touching at any other place. On arrival he ordered that a salute should be fired in honour of the city, with all the artillery. Reys Hamed became so alarmed at the sight of the fleet and the soldiers on board the shipping, that he lost no time in sending Hacem Ale to pay a formal visit, on the part of the king, with a present of provisions; and in company with this personage came Miguel Ferreira, whom Afonso Dalboquerque had sent as ambassador to the Xequé Ismael, as I have already related. This Miguel had been staying there for some days, as well as an ambassador of the Xequé Ismael, who had accompanied him, waiting for favourable weather to make the passage to India; and after Miguel Ferreira had given a detailed account of his journey, Afonso Dalboquerque asked him how affairs were going on at Ormuz, and

he corroborated all that the Governor of Muscate had told him, and that Reys Hamed, as soon as he caught sight of the Portuguese ships in the harbour, had given the king more liberty and set free Reys Nordim and his sons from the prison in which they had been confined by his orders; and that only a few days back there had arrived at Ormuz Abraham Beque, one of the principal captains of the Xequé Ismael, accompanied by six or seven serving men, leaving the rest of his party and his horses on the other side of the land; and on enquiring of the ambassador of the Xequé Ismael wherefore this his captain had come, he had declared that it was with the intention of sending from that port a messenger with twenty horses and some letters to the king of Cambay.

Afonso Dalboquerque stored up in his memory this artfully planned arrival of Abraham Beque. Like a prudent commander he was not careless of what it behoved him to perform, but sent orders secretly to keep guard all round the Island with the galleys and brigantines which he had in the fleet, in order that no stranger should get into Ormuz, and he told Miguel Ferreira to return to shore and stay with the Xequé Ismael's ambassador, until he should send him word what he was to do. Having thus dismissed Miguel Ferreira, Afonso Dalboquerque called for Hacem Ale and sent him to the shore, accompanied by Duarte Vaz, a servant of the King D. Manuel, very well conversant with the native tongue, bearing a message to the king and to Reys Nordim, wherein there was no mention of Reys Hamed. Duarte Vaz had an interview with the king, and declared to him, on the part of Afonso Dalboquerque, that the ambassador, whom King Ceifadim, his brother, had sent to the King of Portugal, was there with the Portuguese, bearing letters and a reply to his mission; but inasmuch as he had returned to the religion in which he had been brought up, and had arrived only to find the king and Cogear dead who had formerly sent him, he dared not come to land unless they first sent the son or nephew of Reys Nordim to him to remain in his hands as a hostage, and then he would send him his ambassador to give him the message with which he was charged; and he hoped to be excused for asking for hostages, because the King of Portugal, his lord, had so ordered him to act; and also, in order to avoid trouble he had commanded a watch to be set upon the island, so that no armed force might get into the city; and therefore he desired that this fact might be announced by public crier, because every fighting man who was found there without permission would be put to death by decapitation, and this he had done for the good and quiet of the land; and as for the other things which he had to discuss with him, he would send word about these after he had received the message which the ambassador had brought for him from the king, his lord.

The king replied to Duarte Vaz, that he was greatly delighted with the return of his ambassador, but as for the man's having turned Christian without permission, he could not pronounce any opinion until he had consulted with his governors, but he would send them without delay an answer of what they decided about it; and on the next day he sent one of the sons of Reys Nordim, a youth, as a hostage to the ship; and when the youth had arrived, Afonso Dalboquerque sent Nicoláo Ferreira, with a very imposing company, and Pero Dalpoem, secretary for India, with him, and Alexander de Ataíde, the interpreter; and when Nicoláo Ferreira had gone through the ceremony of giving the king the letters which he brought, and the reply of Portugal to the mission, he returned to the ship. During the space of time which the youth was awaiting the return of Nicoláo Ferreira, Afonso Dalboquerque asked him how the affair of Reys Hamed was progressing. The boy was so dispirited, and in so great a fright, that he did not dare to say a word; and seeing him thus so terrified, Afonso Dalboquerque would to pay their necessary expenses, and a set-off for the men's wages, and when this were once carried out to a successful issue, from that time forward he would get more ease and opportunity for penetrating the Red Sea and destroying the fleet of the Sultan, and temple of Méca.

And inasmuch as the rest of the captains were of the same opinion, Afonso Dalboquerque ordered a formal document of assent to be drawn up, which was signed by every one; and after João Déssa, captain of the city [of Goa] had taken his leave, on the following day, which was Ash Wednesday, the twenty-first of the said month of February, Afonso Dalboquerque set sail with all his fleet, and on the day [of the Annunciation] of Our Lady in March, they were over against Curiate<sup>1</sup> and there they found a fleet belonging to the King of Ormuz, which was cruising about to guard the coast of the Nautagues, and this, when it perceived our fleet, stood off on the other tack. But Afonso Dalboquerque kept on his course direct to Mascate<sup>2</sup> and cast anchor there, to take in supplies and water. The rulers of the land, when they saw our fleet, remembered the lesson they had learned<sup>3</sup> and came down at once to pay him a visit, with a fine present. He asked them for news from Ormuz, and they told him that about a month or two back, Reys Hamed, a Persian Moor, nephew of Reys Nordim, who was governor of the kingdom, had risen up in rebellion, and seized the fortress and the king's palace, and made the king a prisoner, together with Reys Nordim and his sons, and was now in absolute possession of the land; and that certain letters which had reached that port, had come already under seal of the new ruler, who had in Ormuz five hundred Persian archers and his three brothers as well; and as for nephews and cousins-german there would be in Ormuz as many as five-and-twenty families, whom he had caused to come and live there from

<sup>1</sup> See vol. i, p. 67.

<sup>2</sup> See vol. i, p. 72.

<sup>3</sup> See vol. i, chap. xxiii.

name of the King of Portugal to keep the contract which he had made, and he on his part would also swear to maintain it in the name of the King of Ormuz. Then Afonso Dalboquerque laid his hand on a book, and swore to perform everything that was mentioned in the contract, and Reys Nordim took out another from his breast, a little one, written in Arabic letters, gilded on the top, and in his king's name he swore to be always in obedience to the King of Portugal and his governors.

When the taking of these oaths was over, Afonso Dalboquerque ordered that a robe (cabaia) of brocade, with gold buttons, and a spray of very large beads of gold, should be given to Reys Nordim, and to Reys Mudafar another of crimson satin with gold buttons, and through Nicoláo Ferreira he sent to the king a very rich collar of gold and enamel, begging his pardon very earnestly for not sending so valuable a present as his royal personage really deserved. And he made a gift to Hacem Ale of fifty cruzados, and five ells (covados) of scarlet stuff; and he told Reys Nordim to acquaint the king that he begged him earnestly of his goodness to give orders immediately to close up the door of the fortress which led into the palace, and to open out another which led to the shore, and to grant him lodgings in the city for his people until the completion of the fortress; and as sign of peace and friendship let him command that a flag should be run up over his palace, which he there and then delivered to him, bearing the arms of Portugal, that it might be known to every one that it was in obedience to the King of Portugal.

Reys Nordim told him that all he wished should be carried out, and desired him to give a safe-conduct in order that the Moors might come from the mainland with provisions and merchandise to the city; and this he granted them on condition that there should not come in company with them any fighting men, for if such should be found he would not

to pay their necessary expenses, and a set-off for the men's wages, and when this were once carried out to a successful issue, from that time forward he would get more ease and opportunity for penetrating the Red Sea and destroying the fleet of the Sultan, and temple of Méca.

And inasmuch as the rest of the captains were of the same opinion, Afonso Dalboquerque ordered a formal document of assent to be drawn up, which was signed by every one; and after João Déssa, captain of the city [of Goa] had taken his leave, on the following day, which was Ash Wednesday, the twenty-first of the said month of February, Afonso Dalboquerque set sail with all his fleet, and on the day [of the Annunciation] of Our Lady in March, they were over against Curiate<sup>1</sup> and there they found a fleet belonging to the King of Ormuz, which was cruising about to guard the coast of the Nautagues, and this, when it perceived our fleet, stood off on the other tack. But Afonso Dalboquerque kept on his course direct to Mascate<sup>2</sup> and cast anchor there, to take in supplies and water. The rulers of the land, when they saw our fleet, remembered the lesson they had learned<sup>3</sup> and came down at once to pay him a visit, with a fine present. He asked them for news from Ormuz, and they told him that about a month or two back, Reys Hamed, a Persian Moor, nephew of Reys Nordim, who was governor of the kingdom, had risen up in rebellion, and seized the fortress and the king's palace, and made the king a prisoner, together with Reys Nordim and his sons, and was now in absolute possession of the land; and that certain letters which had reached that port, had come already under seal of the new ruler, who had in Ormuz five hundred Persian archers and his three brothers as well; and as for nephews and cousins-german there would be in Ormuz as many as five-and-twenty families, whom he had caused to come and live there from

<sup>1</sup> See vol. i, p. 67.

<sup>2</sup> See vol. i, p. 72.

<sup>3</sup> See vol. i, chap. xxiii.

Persia. At this news which the rulers gave him, Afonso Dalboquerque became somewhat disconcerted, because it seemed to him that the affairs of Ormuz were not so easy to arrange as he had thought, particularly when he bore in mind he had written to the King D. Manuel that he would take in hand and finish the affairs of Ormuz, for it was now like to be lost if he did not hasten up and save the city.

---

CHAPTER XXXI.

How the great Afonso Dalboquerque set out from Mascate and reached Ormuz; and of the messages which he sent to the king, and of the rest which took place.

After the great Afonso Dalboquerque had been informed by the Rulers of Mascate of all these affairs which I have mentioned, he ordered that some pieces of stuff which he had brought with him should be given to them, and having taken in water and supplies, he took his leave of them and sailed away direct to Ormuz without touching at any other place. On arrival he ordered that a salute should be fired in honour of the city, with all the artillery. Reys Hamed became so alarmed at the sight of the fleet and the soldiers on board the shipping, that he lost no time in sending Hacem Ale to pay a formal visit, on the part of the king, with a present of provisions; and in company with this personage came Miguel Ferreira, whom Afonso Dalboquerque had sent as ambassador to the Xequé Ismael, as I have already related. This Miguel had been staying there for some days, as well as an ambassador of the Xequé Ismael, who had accompanied him, waiting for favourable weather to make the passage to India; and after Miguel Ferreira had given a detailed account of his journey, Afonso Dalboquerque asked him how affairs were going on at Ormuz, and

he corroborated all that the Governor of Muscate had told him, and that Reys Hamed, as soon as he caught sight of the Portuguese ships in the harbour, had given the king more liberty and set free Reys Nordim and his sons from the prison in which they had been confined by his orders; and that only a few days back there had arrived at Ormuz Abraham Beque, one of the principal captains of the Xequé Ismael, accompanied by six or seven serving men, leaving the rest of his party and his horses on the other side of the land; and on enquiring of the ambassador of the Xequé Ismael wherefore this his captain had come, he had declared that it was with the intention of sending from that port a messenger with twenty horses and some letters to the king of Cambay.

Afonso Dalboquerque stored up in his memory this artfully planned arrival of Abraham Beque. Like a prudent commander he was not careless of what it behoved him to perform, but sent orders secretly to keep guard all round the Island with the galleys and brigantines which he had in the fleet, in order that no stranger should get into Ormuz, and he told Miguel Ferreira to return to shore and stay with the Xequé Ismael's ambassador, until he should send him word what he was to do. Having thus dismissed Miguel Ferreira, Afonso Dalboquerque called for Hacem Ale and sent him to the shore, accompanied by Duarte Vaz, a servant of the King D. Manuel, very well conversant with the native tongue, bearing a message to the king and to Reys Nordim, wherein there was no mention of Reys Hamed. Duarte Vaz had an interview with the king, and declared to him, on the part of Afonso Dalboquerque, that the ambassador, whom King Ceifadim, his brother, had sent to the King of Portugal, was there with the Portuguese, bearing letters and a reply to his mission; but inasmuch as he had returned to the religion in which he had been brought up, and had arrived only to find the king and Cogear dead who had formerly sent him in order not to come in until unless they first sent the son of Reyys Nordim to him to remain in his hands as a hostage, and then he would send him his ambassador to give him the message with which he was charged; and he urged to be excused for asking for hostages, because the King of Portugal his lord had so ordered him to act; and also in order to avoid trouble he had commanded a watch to be set upon the island so that no armed force might get into the city; and therefore he desired that this fact might be announced by public crier, because every fighting man who was found there without permission would be put to death by decapitation, and this he had done for the good and quiet of the land; and as for the other things which he had to discuss with him, he would send word about these after he had received the message which the ambassador had brought for him from the king, his lord.

The king replied to Duarte Vaz, that he was greatly delighted with the return of his ambassador, but as for the man's having turned Christian without permission, he could not pronounce any opinion until he had consulted with his governors, but he would send them without delay an answer of what they decided about it; and on the next day he sent one of the sons of Reyys Nordim, a youth, as a hostage to the ship; and when the youth had arrived, Afonso Dalboquerque sent Nicoláo Ferreira, with a very imposing company, and Pero Dalpoem, secretary for India, with him, and Alexander de Ataíde, the interpreter; and when Nicoláo Ferreira had gone through the ceremony of giving the king the letters which he brought, and the reply of Portugal to the mission, he returned to the ship. During the space of time which the youth was awaiting the return of Nicoláo Ferroira, Afonso Dalboquerque asked him how the affair of Reyys Hamed was progressing. The boy was so dispirited, and in so great a fright, that he did not dare to say a word; and seeing him thus so terrified, Afonso Dalboquerque would conversation upon this matter, agreed that they would waive the claim to the fortress, on condition that the king would give them as hostages for the performance of his promises two of the sons of Reys Nordim ; and with these terms of reply Afonso Dalboquerque sent to shore Pero Dalpoem, Manoel da Costa, and Alexander de Ataíde, interpreter, who always accompanied the parties sent with messages. The king replied that in order to comply with the demand of Afonso Dalboquerque for hostages, it would be necessary in the first case to know the place whereon he desired to build the new fortress ; and with them came Hacem Ale to learn the intentions of Afonso Dalboquerque, and he told him, speaking somewhat angrily, to declare to the king and his governors that he could not understand their way of conducting business, for they had sent word to say that if the fortress were suffered to remain in the king's possession, they would give him any other site that he chose, and then, when he asks for hostages to ensure the performance of this condition, the reply is made that he must first specify the position of the place, and then the hostages would be given ; therefore let him tell the king that he had made a contract with his brother and with Cogeatâr, his governor, and according to the terms of it he intended to stand ; therefore let him send Reys Nordim to discuss matters with them, and bring the text of the contract with him, as he intended to carry it out to the very letter ; for he did not want his houses nor his mosque, but only that which had been begun at the cost of the King D.Manuel, his lord ; and he might rest certain that if this were not surrendered he would destroy Ormuz, and on this issue he and all the Portuguese who were there were prepared to risk their lives.

---

CHAPTER XXXII.

How the King of Ormuz sent Reys Nordim to parley with the great Afonso Dalboquerque concerning the surrender of the fortress : and of what took place about this matter.

Hacem Ale reached the shore, and related to the king and his governors all that had passed with the great Afonso Dalboquerque, and the reply which he had received, where-with the king and all of them were much astonished, when they perceived the determination of the Portuguese. And the king lost no time in sending Hacem Ale back again with a message, begging him not to be angry, for he would send Reys Nordim, his governor, immediately, to consult with him, and would agree to everything in accordance with the wishes of his lordship ; but as Reys Nordim was an old man and subject to gout, and would be unable to get up into the ship, he would desire him of his goodness to be pleased to come and see him in a galley, and send some Portuguese hostages to remain on shore.

On the following day, therefore, in the morning, Afonso Dalboquerque embarked on board the great galley, Captain Silvestre Corço, accompanied by all the captains, and stood close into shore, and ordered Lopo Vaz de Sampayo, Simão de Andrade, Aires da Silva, Pero Dalboquerque, Duarte de Melo, and Vasco Fernandez Coutinho, to take their boats to shore and convey Reys Nordim to the galley, taking with them Diogo Fernandez de Béja, who had been selected to remain behind as a hostage. When the captain reached land, Diogo Fernandez was delivered up to a captain of the King of Ormuz, and Reys Nordim went up into the boat which Lopo Vaz de Sampayo had brought, and with him went Reys Mudafar, brother of Reys Hamed, and two servants Nordim, and thus they went altogether to the galley

Afonso Dalboquerque was, and when he caught sight of Reys Nordim he embraced him and shewed him great favour, and after they had been seated, they conversed for a while upon the matters which had taken place on the first occasion of his visit to Ormuz.

When this talk was over, Reys Nordim asked him if there must needs be a king in Ormuz? Afonso Dalboquerque replied in the affirmative, and added that the king must also be in obedience to the King D. Manuel, his lord, and adhere to the treaty which he had made. Reys Nordim thereupon told him that the king, who looked upon him as a father, as it were, had sent a message asking him to waive his claim to that building which had been erected close to the palace, and in order to show him consideration he had granted this request. Yet, because the additional materials necessary for the construction of another would be troublesome to collect in so short a time as he wished, therefore the king would be pleased, after all, to surrender him his fortress which had been commenced, and that he might finish it in a short space of time, for Ormuz, and all the kingdom belonged to the King of Portugal. And thus each of them in this business used this sort of diplomatic action, for Reys Nordim, being alarmed at Afonso Dalboquerque's demand for the hospital, which was a building of great veneration among them, preferred to give up the fortress which had been commenced, rather than the hostages which they demanded. And Afonso Dalboquerque in like manner demanded the hospital in order to compel them to give up the fortress; for it was situated in the best position in the city, and looked towards two of the principal harbours, the one on the east and the other on the west. And after having agreed upon this point, Reys Nordim told him that the King of Portugal, in the reply to the letters of the mission from Ormuz, had left everything to the Portuguese commander; therefore he begged him of his goodness, as this was so, that he would swear in the name of the King of Portugal to keep the contract which he had made, and he on his part would also swear to maintain it in the name of the King of Ormuz. Then Afonso Dalboquerque laid his hand on a book, and swore to perform everything that was mentioned in the contract, and Reys Nordim took out another from his breast, a little one, written in Arabic letters, gilded on the top, and in his king's name he swore to be always in obedience to the King of Portugal and his governors.

When the taking of these oaths was over, Afonso Dalboquerque ordered that a robe (cabaia) of brocade, with gold buttons, and a spray of very large beads of gold, should be given to Reys Nordim, and to Reys Mudafar another of crimson satin with gold buttons, and through Nicoláo Ferreira he sent to the king a very rich collar of gold and enamel, begging his pardon very earnestly for not sending so valuable a present as his royal personage really deserved. And he made a gift to Hacem Ale of fifty cruzados, and five ells (covados) of scarlet stuff; and he told Reys Nordim to acquaint the king that he begged him earnestly of his goodness to give orders immediately to close up the door of the fortress which led into the palace, and to open out another which led to the shore, and to grant him lodgings in the city for his people until the completion of the fortress; and as sign of peace and friendship let him command that a flag should be run up over his palace, which he there and then delivered to him, bearing the arms of Portugal, that it might be known to every one that it was in obedience to the King of Portugal.

Reys Nordim told him that all he wished should be carried out, and desired him to give a safe-conduct in order that the Moors might come from the mainland with provisions and merchandise to the city; and this he granted them on condition that there should not come in company with them any fighting men, for if such should be found he would not spare the life of a single one of them ; and as Reys Nordim was taking his leave, Afonso Dalboquerque was desirous of enquiring after the affairs of Reys Hamed, how his intrigue was progressing, but he had no opportunity, for Reys Mudafar would never give him the opportunity of speaking to him privately. Then Reys Nordim returned to shore, accompanied by all the captains, in the same way as he had come, and Diogo Fernandez returned to the Portuguese ships. And the king immediately commanded his people to fly the Portuguese flag from the loftiest pinnacle of his palace ; and when those on board the fleet caught sight of it they fired off a salute of all the artillery.

When Reys Nordim had made an end of giving the king an account of what had passed with Afonso Dalboquerque, the king ordered that the gate of the fortress which communicated with the palace should be closed, and that the other which led to the strand should be opened. And as soon as this had been carried out he sent word to Afonso Dalboquerque that the gate of the fortress was now open, therefore he might take possession of it whenever he chose. Then Afonso Dalboquerque ordered D. Alvaro de Castro and Lopo de Azevedo, with the train-bands, to go and take possession of the fortress ; and this took place on Palm Sunday, the last day of the month of March,<sup>1</sup> in the year one thousand five hundred and fifteen, with great demonstration of joy and a grand discharge of artillery. And when night fell, Afonso Dalboquerque, accompanied by D. Garcia, his nephew, and certain of the captains, proceeded to inspect the fortress, and at the entrance of the gate he fell down on his knees, and shedding many tears gave thanks to Our Lord for having given him his house without war and without loss of his men ; and on the following day he commanded them to make a palisading of fascines filled with earth, along the beach, and between them to arrange the artillery ; and he placed within the palisading certain wooden huts, in order that the gunners and the working parties and some men of the train-bands might withdraw into them for shelter. And when this was all settled, after the lapse of a few days, Afonso Dalboquerque came and lodged in the keep,<sup>1</sup> which was half finished, and ordered that the train-bands should be lodged in the hospital.

<sup>1</sup> Palm Sunday fell on the 1st of April in A.D. 1515.

---

CHAPTER XXXIII.

How Reys Nordim sent, through Alexandre de Ataíde the interpreter, an account of the intrigue of Reys Hamed, and of what passed thereupon.

When all these things were passed, the great Afonso Dalboquerque sent a message to Reys Nordim, through Alexandre de Ataíde the interpreter, saying he had learned that Reys Hamed, his nephew, was actually in possession of the king's palace, and of all his treasures, and held the king himself as it were in captivity; therefore he begged him earnestly to send word secretly as to the exact condition in which affairs stood. Reys Nordim, although out of fear of his nephew he dared not open his mouth, nevertheless, being, as it were, disconcerted at having his honour involved in the question, sent word to Afonso Dalboquerque, that after King Ceifadim was dead he had set up this king who was now reigning, and out of a desire for the safety of his estate he had placed over all the palace, from the gates inwards, his nephew Reys Hamed and his two brothers; and because he was left, as it were, chief of the household of the late king, after the death of Cogear, he was carrying on the government, for the present king was but a youth; and after one year . . . . . come to power, Reys Hamed had begged the king to bestow on him the post of the government which had been held by Cogear, as well as his houses which he used to inhabit; and the king had put him off several times, commanding him, in order to divert his mind from this object, to make ready certain atalaias, or watch boats, for it was his intention to send him out as captain of them, against the Nautagues; and after they were ready the king had paid the crews who were to go with him a month's wages beforehand, and then caused him to embark, but Reys Hamed, after going to sea, had disembarked, and returned with greater pride than ever to the king's palace; and one night, when it was raining, with the connivance of his brothers, who had their apartments within the palace, he effected an entrance with the crews, and penetrated to the very bedchamber where the king was sleeping with his wife, and catching hold of him by the hand, had drawn out a dagger, calling out and asking him if he recognised at length that he was in his power, and he could kill him.

The king, perceiving his enemy standing over him, in fear of his life, threw himself at his feet and begged him not to kill him, for he would do whatever he liked; and thereupon Reys Hamed had got power over all his household and his treasures, and being countenanced and assisted in this enterprise by his brothers, he had got him and his sons completely in his power; and on the same day that his lordship (Afonso Dalboquerque) had reached the ~~place~~ he had let the king go free, as indeed he could not ~~do so~~ ~~now~~ ~~do so~~ for he was in bed very ill with an attack of ~~the~~ ~~same~~. ~~As~~ ~~that~~ Reys Hamed, when once he had got the ~~king~~ ~~under~~ ~~his~~ ~~power~~, had never more let him go, carrying ~~him~~ ~~away~~ like a prisoner, not even allowing him to speak ~~with~~ ~~any~~ ~~one~~ except in his own presence, which caused the ~~king~~ ~~great~~ ~~sorrow~~, for he was unable to give away ~~any~~ ~~thing~~ to any one out of his own property, seeing that

Reys Hamed had the keys of all his treasury, only allowing him a hundred xerafins yearly, and spending all the rest just as he liked; and thus it was that the king was no longer in possession of his own kingdom, and he himself out of the government, and Reys Hamed lord of all.

Alexandre de Ataide repaired with this account to Afonso Dalboquerque, who became very much alarmed at the intelligence (for he had left Reys Nordim acting in concert with the late king), and sending back the messenger at once, he ordered him to declare to the king that the ambassador of the Xequé Ismael had sent to him to say that he wished to pay him (Afonso) a visit, but before having an audience with him it would be necessary for him to speak with Reys Nordim, and therefore he begged him of his goodness that he would come and converse with him there in the fortress; and he ordered Antonio Raposo, Nuno Martinz Raposo, and Pero Dalpoem, secretary, to go and bring him, and thus he came, accompanied by all the merchants and principal men of the land, and in his company came also Reys Mudafar, brother of Reys Hamed.

Afonso Dalboquerque showed every one great honour and courtesy, and administered to each one the oath that they would always remain faithful vassals of the King of Ormuz, and if it were needful to spend their fortunes and even their lives for his service, that they would do so; and so, also, he made them swear that they would not recognise as governor on the part of the king and kingdom any other person than Reys Nordim, to whom he had delivered the government of the other king who had just lately died; and he said that in like manner he, too, would swear to keep and maintain them in justice, and to defend the king from his enemies; and the same oath he administered to Reys Mudafar, who would not be obedient to the command of any other governor of the land than the king, unless he should be Reys Nordim; and for all that he desired to evade this oath, yet notwithstanding at last he performed that which Afonso Dalboquerque commanded him to do.

When this was concluded, Reys Nordim took his departure, and just as he was on the point of leaving, Afonso Dalboquerque drew him aside, by himself, to the far end of the house, with the secretary and Alexandre de Ataíde, the interpreter, and there Reys Nordim told him the same which he had already sent him word about, and begged him earnestly of his goodness to honour his white hairs and not permit that at the close of his old age he should be vexed and deprived of his honourable position, for he had always been loyal to the King Ceifadim, his lord, and to this one with whom he was now living. Afonso Dalboquerque bade him not to be troubled, for he would promise him he would very quickly put Reys Hamed out of Ormuz, and the king should become free again, and he himself in possession of all his honour which he had always enjoyed hitherto.

---

CHAPTER XXXIV.

How the ambassador of the Xequé Ismael went to pay a visit to the great Afonso Dalboquerque; and of the reception which he met with; and of the events which took place thereafter.

After the great Afonso Dalboquerque had been properly established in our fortress, the ambassador of the Xequé Ismael sent word to him, through Miguel Ferreira, that he desired to come and deliver the message which he had brought to him from his lord.

Afonso Dalboquerque sent back word to say to him that he could not see him on that day, for he had certain business that must be dispatched, but on the following day he would attend to his wishes. Then he gave immediate orders to make ready, in front of the fortress (which led directly on to one of the principal streets of the city), a large platform of timber with three stages, all carpeted over with carpets, and adorned round about with quantities of cloth stuff and a canopy of brocade, and some cushions of green velvet placed on the platform, and two chairs of the same colour, fringed with gold.

And he ordered the captains of the train-bands to make ready their men, with their arms, all in good order—to the number of about six hundred men—and the crossbow-men and musqueteers, and to draw up all this body of men along the beach; and he ordered all the other soldiers, carrying lances and targes, that they also should be there drawn up in order at a closer range to the platform, in such wise that they formed a very long passage; and beside this body of men whom he had all thus drawn up in array, there were many other bodies of men who went about disbanded, and all the populace of Ormuz—a wonderful sight to behold. And all the captains, Fidalgoes, and servants of the king had to be present on the platform with Afonso Dalboquerque, very smartly attired and accompanied by the pages, who carried their arms.

All being, therefore, arranged in this manner, on the following day, after partaking of some food, Afonso Dalboquerque sent D. Garcia de Noronha, his nephew, with all the captains, Fidalgoes, and cavaliers to go for the ambassador and bring him to him. The King of Ormuz was standing at a window of his palace which looked out on the sea-front, with all his governors, witnessing this triumphal ceremony; and when Dom Garcia arrived at the place where the ambassador was lodged, he showed them great courtesy, as was right should be shown to the ambassador of so great a prince, and then they began to form a procession in the following order.

In front of all came two Moors on horseback, hunters who used trained ounces, or panthers, each one with his ounce on the crupper; and after them came six horses in single file, saddled with their saddle-cloths of great richness, and head-gear of steel and caparisons of mail on their flanks; and behind these, twelve mounted Moors richly attired, carrying golden jewellery, pieces of silk stuff, and brocade in silver washhand basins; and immediately after these the trumpeters of Afonso Dalboquerque, and people playing drums, and all the captains and Fidalgoes following them in order, one row on one side and one on the other; and last of all came D. Garcia with the ambassador, and in this order they reached the place where Afonso Dalboquerque was waiting for them.

Our fleet, which was all bedecked with flags, as soon as the ambassador reached the fortress, fired off a salute of all the guns, and it seemed as if the whole world had blown up; and as he went up the last step of the platform, Afonso Dalboquerque rose up from the chair on which he was seated and went forward two or three steps. Then the ambassador made a courteous salutation according to his native fashion, and gave him a letter from the Xequé Ismael for the King of Portugal, and Afonso Dalboquerque took it, cap in hand, and he remained thus uncovered as long as he held it; and he gave him one in return for himself, which Afonso Dalboquerque handed over to Pero Dalpoem, secretary, who was standing close beside him. Having by this time made an end of giving him the letters, with some words which he made him, he presented him the gift which he brought, of which I do not here make mention, for I have already given an account of what it consisted.

Afonso Dalboquerque received the present with great demonstration of pleasure and satisfaction, and, after giving orders for it to be gathered together, he stood in conversation for a little space with the ambassador, inquiring of him about the Xequé Ismael, how he was, and where he was staying, and how he himself had borne the fatigues of the journey. And when this interview was over, Afonso Dalboquerque bade him go and recruit himself, and he would talk with him more at length on a future day. D. Garcia de Noronha then conducted him back again to his house with the same ceremony as that which had been observed at his coming, and there Afonso Dalboquerque ordered that he should be supplied in plentiful abundance with everything that he or his party required for their maintenance.

Two days afterwards, Afonso Dalboquerque ordered that the ambassador should be summoned before him, and in the conversation which took place between them he declared the desire of the Xequé Ismael to become personally acquainted with and be in close friendship with the King of Portugal, and of utility to his lordship; and offered his great thanks for the entertainment and good treatment which his ambassadors had received at the hands of the Portuguese in India, offering him certain places in his kingdom, if he would be pleased to accept them, and that he would be happy to make him a lord therein on account of the fame of his personal character which had reached him.

When this interview was over, the ambassador laid before him four points which he brought in the instructions of his mission.

The first was that the dues which were levied upon the merchandise coming from Persia to Ormuz should belong to the Xequé Ismael.

The second, that shipping should be supplied for the passage of his people to the land of Arabia, which is on the coast whereon lies Barein<sup>1</sup> and Catife.<sup>2</sup>

<sup>1</sup> See p. 114.

<sup>2</sup> Al-Katif, on the Arabian coast, an important town now, nine and a-half miles S.W. from Ras Tanureh. There is a minaret eighty to a hundred feet high in the south part of the fort, and the citadel in the north-west corner is said to have been built by the Portuguese. There is plenty of water in the neighbourhood.—Persian Gulf Pilot, 1870,

Afonso Dalboquerque was, and when he caught sight of Reys Nordim he embraced him and shewed him great favour, and after they had been seated, they conversed for a while upon the matters which had taken place on the first occasion of his visit to Ormuz.

When this talk was over, Reys Nordim asked him if there must needs be a king in Ormuz? Afonso Dalboquerque replied in the affirmative, and added that the king must also be in obedience to the King D. Manuel, his lord, and adhere to the treaty which he had made. Reys Nordim thereupon told him that the king, who looked upon him as a father, as it were, had sent a message asking him to waive his claim to that building which had been erected close to the palace, and in order to show him consideration he had granted this request. Yet, because the additional materials necessary for the construction of another would be troublesome to collect in so short a time as he wished, therefore the king would be pleased, after all, to surrender him his fortress which had been commenced, and that he might finish it in a short space of time, for Ormuz, and all the kingdom belonged to the King of Portugal. And thus each of them in this business used this sort of diplomatic action, for Reys Nordim, being alarmed at Afonso Dalboquerque's demand for the hospital, which was a building of great veneration among them, preferred to give up the fortress which had been commenced, rather than the hostages which they demanded. And Afonso Dalboquerque in like manner demanded the hospital in order to compel them to give up the fortress; for it was situated in the best position in the city, and looked towards two of the principal harbours, the one on the east and the other on the west. And after having agreed upon this point, Reys Nordim told him that the King of Portugal, in the reply to the letters of the mission from Ormuz, had left everything to the Portuguese commander; therefore he begged him of his goodness, as this was so, that he would swear in the name of the King of Portugal to keep the contract which he had made, and he on his part would also swear to maintain it in the name of the King of Ormuz. Then Afonso Dalboquerque laid his hand on a book, and swore to perform everything that was mentioned in the contract, and Reys Nordim took out another from his breast, a little one, written in Arabic letters, gilded on the top, and in his king's name he swore to be always in obedience to the King of Portugal and his governors.

When the taking of these oaths was over, Afonso Dalboquerque ordered that a robe (cabaia) of brocade, with gold buttons, and a spray of very large beads of gold, should be given to Reys Nordim, and to Reys Mudafar another of crimson satin with gold buttons, and through Nicoláo Ferreira he sent to the king a very rich collar of gold and enamel, begging his pardon very earnestly for not sending so valuable a present as his royal personage really deserved. And he made a gift to Hacem Ale of fifty cruzados, and five ells (covados) of scarlet stuff; and he told Reys Nordim to acquaint the king that he begged him earnestly of his goodness to give orders immediately to close up the door of the fortress which led into the palace, and to open out another which led to the shore, and to grant him lodgings in the city for his people until the completion of the fortress; and as sign of peace and friendship let him command that a flag should be run up over his palace, which he there and then delivered to him, bearing the arms of Portugal, that it might be known to every one that it was in obedience to the King of Portugal.

Reys Nordim told him that all he wished should be carried out, and desired him to give a safe-conduct in order that the Moors might come from the mainland with provisions and merchandise to the city; and this he granted them on condition that there should not come in company with them any fighting men, for if such should be found he would not

he corroborated all that the Governor of Muscate had told him, and that Reys Hamed, as soon as he caught sight of the Portuguese ships in the harbour, had given the king more liberty and set free Reys Nordim and his sons from the prison in which they had been confined by his orders; and that only a few days back there had arrived at Ormuz Abrahem Beque, one of the principal captains of the Xequé Ismael, accompanied by six or seven serving men, leaving the rest of his party and his horses on the other side of the land; and on enquiring of the ambassador of the Xequé Ismael wherefore this his captain had come, he had declared that it was with the intention of sending from that port a messenger with twenty horses and some letters to the king of Cambay.

Afonso Dalboquerque stored up in his memory this artfully planned arrival of Abrahem Beque. Like a prudent commander he was not careless of what it behoved him to perform, but sent orders secretly to keep guard all round the Island with the galleys and brigantines which he had in the fleet, in order that no stranger should get into Ormuz, and he told Miguel Ferreira to return to shore and stay with the Xequé Ismael's ambassador, until he should send him word what he was to do. Having thus dismissed Miguel Ferreira, Afonso Dalboquerque called for Hacem Ale and sent him to the shore, accompanied by Duarte Vaz, a servant of the King D. Manuel, very well conversant with the native tongue, bearing a message to the king and to Reys Nordim, wherein there was no mention of Reys Hamed. Duarte Vaz had an interview with the king, and declared to him, on the part of Afonso Dalboquerque, that the ambassador, whom King Ceifadim, his brother, had sent to the King of Portugal, was there with the Portuguese, bearing letters and a reply to his mission; but inasmuch as he had returned to the religion in which he had been brought up, and had arrived only to find the king and Cogeatâr dead who had formerly sent him, he dared not come to land unless they first sent the son or nephew of Reys Nordim to him to remain in his hands as a hostage, and then he would send him his ambassador to give him the message with which he was charged; and he hoped to be excused for asking for hostages, because the King of Portugal, his lord, had so ordered him to act; and also, in order to avoid trouble he had commanded a watch to be set upon the island, so that no armed force might get into the city; and therefore he desired that this fact might be announced by public crier, because every fighting man who was found there without permission would be put to death by decapitation, and this he had done for the good and quiet of the land; and as for the other things which he had to discuss with him, he would send word about these after he had received the message which the ambassador had brought for him from the king, his lord.

The king replied to Duarte Vaz, that he was greatly delighted with the return of his ambassador, but as for the man's having turned Christian without permission, he could not pronounce any opinion until he had consulted with his governors, but he would send them without delay an answer of what they decided about it; and on the next day he sent one of the sons of Reys Nordim, a youth, as a hostage to the ship; and when the youth had arrived, Afonso Dalboquerque sent Nicoláo Ferreira, with a very imposing company, and Pero Dalpoem, secretary for India, with him, and Alexander de Ataíde, the interpreter; and when Nicoláo Ferreira had gone through the ceremony of giving the king the letters which he brought, and the reply of Portugal to the mission, he returned to the ship. During the space of time which the youth was awaiting the return of Nicoláo Ferreira, Afonso Dalboquerque asked him how the affair of Reys Hamed was progressing. The boy was so dispirited, and in so great a fright, that he did not dare to say a word, and seeing him thus so terrified, Afonso Dalboquerque said not hold any further communication with him, but sent him off as soon as Nicoláo Ferreira returned.

After Pero Dalpoem and Nicoláo Ferreira had related all that had passed, Afonso Dalboquerque asked them about Reys Hamed, what sort of a man he was. They told him he was a man of fair complexion, a young man of about thirty years of age, of good carriage, and a noble presence, and accounted to be a man of strength of mind, and a great lover of military things, and he always stood (they said) close beside the king's chair, holding a short sword, with one hand placed on his dagger, and that the king would never answer any more than what this man told him. Afonso Dalboquerque, who would not brook delay, and knew that Reys Hamed was determined to defend Ormuz, ordered the captains to be summoned to his ship, and declared to them that inasmuch as the King of Ormuz, by the letter which the King D. Manuel had written, had seen his determination to set to work at once to grapple with the affairs of Ormuz while they were yet in a pretty simple condition, let them therefore tell him how or in what way he should make a beginning with the king. And after discussing first one thing and then another, for some time, D. Garcia at length declared in the name of them all, that there really was no need of saying anything in the matter, for since the fortress which had been left after its commencement was still lying in the same condition there, and in the whole of the city there was not any other position more suitable than it was for the king's service; therefore one ought to claim to be allowed to complete it, rather than undertake other new enterprises, for they would take a long time to achieve; and therefore he ought to send and beg the king to grant a lodging-place, in the city, for the captains and men needed to be left on shore, to be a guard for the workmen who would be told off to perform the work.

The captains therefore, having come to this determination,

Afonso Dalboquerque sent Diogo Fernandez de Béja, Pero Dalpoem, the secretary, and Alexandre de Ataíde, the interpreter, to shore, to tell the king that he would be pleased to parley with his governors, in order to arrange certain matters which would redound to his service; therefore he begged him of his goodness to order these governors to make their way to a parley with him, carrying with them the text of the contract which had been originally made with King Ceifadim and Cogeatar, for he was desirous of taking his part. When this message had been delivered to the king, Reys Nordim replied in the king's name—for Reys Hamed was so proud that he never would hold any conversation with, nor receive any message from, Afonso Dalboquerque—that the King of Ormuz considered himself to be, as it were, the son of the King of Portugal, and the city and all the rest of his kingdom to be in his hands, and he would do everything he desired; but that it would be necessary to give an account of this policy to his governors, which he would do that very night. And on the morrow morning he would send the answer to Afonso Dalboquerque. And when morning came, Hacem Ale came off to Afonso Dalboquerque's ship, and in the presence of all the captains declared to him that the king had discussed with his governors what answer should be sent to the Portuguese terms, and in truth he desired to show him all the service he could, and especially that which the King of Portugal had ordered him to do; and he was aware that to ask for the surrender of the fortress which had by this time been incorporated with the [king's] houses, was certainly forcing him to adhere strictly to the agreement which he had made, but nevertheless he must beg him earnestly of his goodness to let him keep it, and he would give him any other site he should select on which to make another fortress, and for this end there was no need of making any formal contract.

Afonso Dalboquerque and the captains, after holding some and was in possession of all his kingdom and treasures. This was all said with his cap in his hand, with many courteous expressions, which Afonso Dalboquerque on occasions such as these knew very well how to use.

The king thanked him very much for all that he had done, declaring to him that he looked upon him as a father, and that all he had done was very well done, and that he would acknowledge the receiving of the kingdom from his hand in the name of the King of Portugal.

---

CHAPTER XXXVI.

How Reys Mudafar and his brother, on hearing of Reys Hamed's death, set out with all their host to attack the king's palace, and fortified themselves therein; and of what further happened.

The brothers of Reys Hamed, who found themselves put out of the business, with their people (although what with the blowing of trumpets and beating drums incessantly, because they had been ordered so to do, they had perceived nothing of what had happened indoors), nevertheless, on account of the suspicions which they experienced, drew near with axes, intending to break the doors in, and force the entrance. But Afonso Dalboquerque, desirous of preventing this, ordered a gun to be fired. This was the signal which he had preconcerted with the captains of the train-bands; and as soon as they heard it, they made their way directly to the gate, and compelled Reys Hamed's brother and all his people to withdraw. And when they began to skirmish with these, Dom Garcia came up and bade them, on the behalf of Afonso Dalboquerque, to take care what they were about, for there were adherents of the king and of Reys Nordim mixed up with these Moors. Afonso Dalboquerque also, with the intention of pacifying all this

CHAPTER XXXII.

How the King of Ormuz sent Reys Nordim to parley with the great Afonso Dalboquerque concerning the surrender of the fortress: and of what took place about this matter.

Hacem Ale reached the shore, and related to the king and his governors all that had passed with the great Afonso Dalboquerque, and the reply which he had received, where-with the king and all of them were much astonished, when they perceived the determination of the Portuguese. And the king lost no time in sending Hacem Ale back again with a message, begging him not to be angry, for he would send Reys Nordim, his governor, immediately, to consult with him, and would agree to everything in accordance with the wishes of his lordship; but as Reys Nordim was an old man and subject to gout, and would be unable to get up into the ship, he would desire him of his goodness to be pleased to come and see him in a galley, and send some Portuguese hostages to remain on shore.

On the following day, therefore, in the morning, Afonso Dalboquerque embarked on board the great galley, Captain Silvestre Corço, accompanied by all the captains, and stood close into shore, and ordered Lopo Vaz de Sampayo, Simão de Andrade, Aires da Silva, Pero Dalboquerque, Duarte de Melo, and Vasco Fernandez Coutinho, to take their boats to shore and convey Reys Nordim to the galley, taking with them Diogo Fernandez de Béja, who had been selected to remain behind as a hostage. When the captain reached land, Diogo Fernandez was delivered up to a captain of the King of Ormuz, and Reys Nordim went up into the boat which Lopo Vaz de Sampayo had brought, and with him went Reys Mudafar, brother of Reys Hamed, and two servants of Reys Nordim, and thus they went altogether to the galley, where Mulás (i.e., Molahs), who went backwards and forwards twice without coming to any determination.

When Afonso Dalboquerque perceived that he should never come to any practical end if he went on in this way, he sent word for Abraham Beque, captain of the Xaque Ismael, and his ambassador, and through them he sent a message that unless by sundown every one had gone out of the fortress and embarked for the mainland, they might rest assured that he would not spare the life of one of them. Abraham Beque, who was the chief instigator of this uproar, spoke with the rebels, and easily persuaded them to evacuate the palace and retire to the furthest point of the city, and then to send and beg of Afonso Dalboquerque the body of Reys Hamed, their brother, with the intention of carrying it away for interment in his own land, and a vessel to enable them to pass over to terra firma with their wives and people, for there were in all about seven hundred fighting men. This request Afonso Dalboquerque granted; but as for the body of Reys Hamed, he said he could not grant it, for those who were traitors to their lords ought not to have sepulture of a certainty where they could be laid.

That very night every man of the party embarked and crossed over to the opposite side; and when there was yet the space of an hour to sundown, Afonso Dalboquerque rode out, accompanied by the king and all our people, and made his way through the midst of the city as far as the palace, taking along with them in advance the trainbands, with all the trumpeters and drummers, while Dom Garcia and Reys Nordim came along in the rear with all the captains and noblemen of the fleet on foot. Great was the delight in the city when the bystanders beheld their king, and still greater was the gratification every one felt to find himself freed from the thraldom of Reys Hamed, and boundless the praises given to Afonso Dalboquerque; and this name of the King of Portugal to keep the contract which he had made, and he on his part would also swear to maintain it in the name of the King of Ormuz. Then Afonso Dalboquerque laid his hand on a book, and swore to perform everything that was mentioned in the contract, and Reys Nordim took out another from his breast, a little one, written in Arabic letters, gilded on the top, and in his king's name he swore to be always in obedience to the King of Portugal and his governors.

When the taking of these oaths was over, Afonso Dalboquerque ordered that a robe (cabaia) of brocade, with gold buttons, and a spray of very large beads of gold, should be given to Reys Nordim, and to Reys Mudafar another of crimson satin with gold buttons, and through Nicoláo Ferreira he sent to the king a very rich collar of gold and enamel, begging his pardon very earnestly for not sending so valuable a present as his royal personage really deserved. And he made a gift to Hacem Ale of fifty cruzados, and five ells (covados) of scarlet stuff; and he told Reys Nordim to acquaint the king that he begged him earnestly of his goodness to give orders immediately to close up the door of the fortress which led into the palace, and to open out another which led to the shore, and to grant him lodgings in the city for his people until the completion of the fortress; and as sign of peace and friendship let him command that a flag should be run up over his palace, which he there and then delivered to him, bearing the arms of Portugal, that it might be known to every one that it was in obedience to the King of Portugal.

Reys Nordim told him that all he wished should be carried out, and desired him to give a safe-conduct in order that the Moors might come from the mainland with provisions and merchandise to the city; and this he granted them condition that there should not come in company with t any fighting men, for if such should be found he would

because of the events which had then arisen. Afonso Dalboquerque replied that it was a great favour and honour which he was showing him in thus desiring to visit him ; but as it was his wish, let him come and pay him a visit in the building where he had been delivered from the power of the traitor. Reys Nordim returned with this reply, carrying with him to the king a sword richly ornamented with gold, a present from Afonso Dalboquerque.

On the Tuesday fixed by the king for the interview, the trumpeters and drummers of Afonso Dalboquerque went out to form an escort for the king, who came on horseback, accompanied by Reys Nordim and all the lords and governors of the land on foot, bringing a present, according to the native custom, carried in advance.

Afonso Dalboquerque, with all the captains, awaited the royal arrival in that building richly adorned with tapestry ; a canopy and two silk-covered chairs being set for themselves, and a circle of cushioned benches set around for the captains and the people who accompanied the king. As soon as the king arrived, Afonso Dalboquerque proceeded to the entrance with all his captains to receive him ; and, after the exchange of mutual courtesies, the king declared that the favour he had received at the hands of Afonso Dalboquerque in being delivered from the thralldom of that bad man would always remind him of his duty, and that he would remain in obedience to the King of Portugal, for it was in his name that he held the kingdom of Ormuz. Afonso Dalboquerque replied that he was his servant, and would never fail to assist in maintaining him in his position ; and so he recommended the king to all his men who stood by, that they should always serve him and risk their lives and property for him, as they were in duty bound to do. And after spending some considerable space of time thus in conversing of the disorders which Reys Hamed had wrought in the kingdom, Afonso Dalboquerque, who was placed within the palisading certain wooden huts, in order that the gunners and the working parties and some men of the train-bands might withdraw into them for shelter. And when this was all settled, after the lapse of a few days, Afonso Dalboquerque came and lodged in the keep,<sup>1</sup> which was half finished, and ordered that the train-bands should be lodged in the hospital.

---

CHAPTER XXXIII.

How Reys Nordim sent, through Alexandre de Ataíde the interpreter, an account of the intrigue of Reys Hamed, and of what passed thereupon.

When all these things were passed, the great Afonso Dalboquerque sent a message to Reys Nordim, through Alexandre de Ataíde the interpreter, saying he had learned that Reys Hamed, his nephew, was actually in possession of the king's palace, and of all his treasures, and held the king himself as it were in captivity; therefore he begged him earnestly to send word secretly as to the exact condition in which affairs stood. Reys Nordim, although out of fear of his nephew he dared not open his mouth, nevertheless, being, as it were, disconcerted at having his honour involved in the question, sent word to Afonso Dalboquerque, that after King Ceifadim was dead he had set up this was now reigning, and out of a desire for the estate he had placed over all the palace, from wards, his nephew Reys Hamed and his two brothers because he was left, as it were, chief of the house late king, after the death of Cogear, he was at the government, for the present king was but a year after one year had elapsed since he had come to morning of seven Portuguese and a negro in a small boat ; but when he endeavoured to lay hands on them, they had set themselves in an attitude of self-defence with the matchlocks which they carried, and as they were Portuguese he had forbidden his men to kill them. Afonso Dalboquerque made inquiry respecting the flight of these men, and learned that a certain Antonio Fernandez, called De Alvito, who had lived a long time in Persia, being a Moor, had prevailed on them to accompany him, and was taking them to the Xequé Ismael. Having gained knowledge of this, he sent back word to the king, begging him of his goodness to lose no time in sending off a party of men to seek them and to bring them back to him, dead or alive, as well as the boat which they had taken with them. The king sent out letters to all his captains ordering them to strain every nerve to capture the fugitives, declaring that if they failed to do so he would cut off their heads. And besides this action of the king, Afonso Dalboquerque fitted out Jeronymo de Sousa in a galley with an armed force, and sent them to the mainland ; and also Nicoláo Ferreira in a paraó, for he knew the native language, in order to get hold of the fugitives.

<sup>1</sup> Torre de menagem.

The king's captains, as soon as the royal message reached them, sent out a large body of searchers in different directions to look for them, and at length they fell in with them at a distance of fourteen leagues up in the interior country, accompanying a caravan which was travelling to Persia, and had taken the clothing of the fugitives from them ; so they were all taken, except one, a Gallician, whom they killed because he would not surrender himself. And just as they had been captured, with the weapons that had been taken from them, so they were delivered up to Jeronymo de Sousa, who returned with them to the city.

As soon as they arrived, Afonso Dalboquerque gave notice to the ouvidor, to take proper proceedings in this

Reys Hamed had the keys of all his treasury, only allowing him a hundred xerafins yearly, and spending all the rest just as he liked ; and thus it was that the king was no longer in possession of his own kingdom, and he himself out of the government, and Reys Hamed lord of all.

Alexandre de Ataide repaired with this account to Afonso Dalboquerque, who became very much alarmed at the intelligence (for he had left Reys Nordim acting in concert with the late king), and sending back the messenger at once, he ordered him to declare to the king that the ambassador of the Xequé Ismael had sent to him to say that he wished to pay him (Afonso) a visit, but before having an audience with him it would be necessary for him to speak with Reys Nordim, and therefore he begged him of his goodness that he would come and converse with him there in the fortress ; and he ordered Antonio Raposo, Nuno Martinz Raposo, and Pero Dalpoem, secretary, to go and bring him, and thus he came, accompanied by all the merchants and principal men of the land, and in his company came also Reys Mudafar, brother of Reys Hamed.

Afonso Dalboquerque showed every one great honour and courtesy, and administered to each one the oath that they would always remain faithful vassals of the King of Ormuz, and if it were needful to spend their fortunes and even their lives for his service, that they would do so ; and so, also, he made them swear that they would not recognise as governor on the part of the king and kingdom any other person than Reys Nordim, to whom he had delivered the government of the other king who had just lately died ; and he said that in like manner he, too, would swear to keep and maintain them in justice, and to defend the king from his enemies ; and the same oath he administered to Reys Mudafar, that he would not be obedient to the commands of any other governor of the land than the king, unless it were to Reyr Nordim ; and for all that he desired to evade the tal and as for all the captains and adherents of Reys Hamed, who were at present engaged in a fleet against the Nautagues, and scattered up and down throughout the towns and villages of the kingdom, he must order them to be forthwith discharged and cast out of the country.

The king replied that he would send out thither his Muluás, or religious men, and if these could not prevail upon the persons objected to that they should quit the kingdom, then he would do as Afonso Dalboquerque desired, and he would also take care for the future to have no dealings with them. Reys Hamed's brother, on receiving the king's message, replied that if the sum of twenty thousand xerafins were paid to him, he would yield up the fortress; and after a long course of negotiation upon this point, finally he declared that he would accept four thousand xerafins to go away. The king, to save himself trouble, ordered that this sum should be paid, and the captain surrendered the fortress and went away.

When Afonso Dalboquerque found out that the king had given this sum of money to Reys Hamed's brother for the surrender of the fortress, he sent a message to Reys Nordim to make immediate reprisals on two of their ships which had arrived from India laden with merchandise, so as to thereby repay himself the money of which he had thus been deprived, and Reys Nordim did so. And when this had been done, the king issued letters throughout all his kingdom to his captains, to the effect that all the soldiery who were found in the fortress belonging to Reys Hamed should be stripped and banished, and never more set foot in the kingdom, under penalty of death; and he ordered the fleet to be recalled from its cruise against the Nautagues, and dismissed the captains and men of Reys Hamed who were serving in it. By these active measures it was that Afonso Dalboquerque caused the country to be pacified from the numerous uproars and robberies that used to take place therein.

And as, also, he had been informed that there was a public place of prostitution of men<sup>1</sup> in the city, he sent word to Reys Nordim to order that such persons should be immediately banished throughout the kingdom, for he would not dare to remain in a land where a sin so heinous against God was so publicly practised; and he declared that if from henceforth any persons were found guilty of such crimes he would order every one of them to be burned alive in the middle of the market square. Reys Nordim ordered these persons to be driven out, and none dared to return, with the dread of this punishment hanging over them.

When all these matters had been arranged, Afonso Dalboquerque took in hand the affairs of the merchants, and granted them a safe-conduct for their shipping, to make the voyage to India to take in merchandise, and permitted the caravans to come from India to Ormuz, and gave them such privileges and powers that friends and enemies alike were delighted to come to Ormuz with their merchandise, as in former times, for they placed confidence in his words, and if anyone had received any injury at the hands of the Portuguese, the offenders were severely punished; and on account of these measures and others which were put in force, many merchants came from abroad to settle in Ormuz, which now began to grow great on a noble scale. But with the person of the king, and in the government of the kingdom, Afonso Dalboquerque would not meddle (leaving everything to him and his governors), but he treated the king always with the greatest consideration and deference, and this went a great way towards effecting the pacification of the country.

When all these matters had been set at rest, Abraham Beque, captain of the Xequé Ismael, who was in Ormuz, as I have already mentioned, perceiving all his plans were defeated by the death of Reys Hamed, begged permission of Afonso Dalboquerque to retire to his own lands, which were situated upon the borders of the Persian Sea, and this was granted. And as Afonso Dalboquerque always dissembled his affairs, for he did not wish to be at variance with the man, because he was the principal captain of the Xequé Ismael, and a neighbour to the territory of Ormuz, he showed him much kindness in the name of the king, whereat he was greatly pleased, and when he reached his own lands he wrote an account of the greatness of Afonso Dalboquerque, and specially a relation of the affair of Reys Hamed, to the Xequé Ismael.

<sup>1</sup> Mancebia publica de homens.

As soon as Abraham Beque had set out, Afonso Dalboquerque ordered that representations of his needs should be made to the king and Reys Nordim, his governor, and also that the protests should be shown to them which had formerly been made to King Ceifadim and to Cogear, respecting the fortress which had been commenced, but taken from him by them when he visited Ormuz for the first time—and in this enterprise he had laid out a large sum of money and lost much property, not to mention other losses occasioned by the rebellion of their officials on land—therefore it was that he begged them earnestly to look well into this matter, and give orders that payment should be made in ready money of all that was found to be due to him, for he was in need of money for the completion of the fortress and for the expenses of his fleet.

After some time had been spent in several messages from one to the other on this matter, the king at length sent word that he would be very happy to pay everything that was due, provided that a set-off was made in the account for five thousand ærafins which the Viceroy D. Francisco Dalmeida had received from his brother; and that as for the property, which, it was alleged, had been taken from him, Reys Nordim had already restored a great part of it to Pero Dalboquerque when that commander visited Ormuz in the past year, and he had the papers to verify the fact ; and as for the balance of the account, let them discuss it with Reys Nordim, and all that was due should be paid. On the following day, in order to lose no time, Afonso Dalboquerque sent Pero Dalpoem, Alexandre de Ataide, the interpreter, and Manuel da Costa, the factor, to Reys Nordim's house, and after examining the accounts, it was found that there was a sum of one hundred and twenty thousand xerafins due, and this the king ordered to be paid by days, wherewith the fabric of the fortress was made, and the other expenses settled. Thus was at length terminated the grumbling of the captains at the time when Afonso Dalboquerque ordered this claim to be made upon Cogear, as I have already related.

---

CHAPTER XXXIX.

How the great Afonso Dalboquerque, on account of the news which he received concerning the coming of the Rumes, sent to beg the king to lend him his artillery, and what passed thereupon ; and how, after having obtained possession of it, he paid the king a visit in his house.

The affairs of Ormuz being now in the state and quiet which I have described, and the fortress being already advanced to a considerable height, there arrived a Moor from Calayate with news for the great Afonso Dalboquerque, informing him that when he left that port, news had just come in from Adem that the Rumes were making themselves ready in Suez with a large fleet, to come up against Ormuz ; and although it seemed to him that this news had been circulated by the brothers of Reys Hamed, out of a desire to set the country in an uproar, Afonso Dalboquerque turned it to a good advantage in making it serve the purpose which he had for days past been desirous of effecting, which was to get the whole of the king's artillery into his hands by some means which should not cause any scandal. And, in order to give a better air of importance to the matter, he ordered Dom Garcia de Noronha, his nephew, to go with a message to the king, accompanied by certain of the captains and an escort of men-at-arms—for this was the fashion at Ormuz—and give him an account of the news which had arrived concerning the coming of the Rumes, and to acquaint him with the determination of the Portuguese to attack them on the seas, and therefore he begged the king of his kindness to sanction the lending of all his artillery, in order to mount it in the fortress, for his own was required for furnishing his fleet, and was not sufficient for both of these requirements.

When D. Garcia reached the palace with this message, he found the king in company with Reys Nordim and other principal Moors; and as Afonso Dalboquerque had instructed him to take up a dominant position in the palace immediately upon entering it—for if the artillery were not delivered up to him he must take it by force—as soon as he had gone in he stationed a captain with some soldiers on guard at each portal, making show of doing so out of politeness, to avoid bringing armed men to the place where the king was; and when he came up with the king, D. Garcia delivered him the message with which Afonso Dalboquerque had entrusted him.

Reys Nordim replied to the effect that the king looked upon the Portuguese commander as a father, and would do everything that was required of him, and that there was no need of so great a personage as D. Garcia coming upon such a business, when the least person of his household would have sufficed to convey the message, and the king would send him all the artillery for the fortress. Now, whereas D. Garcia had been instructed by his uncle not to return without first bringing the artillery before him, he replied to Reys Nordim, that seeing that the king would willingly grant that service to Afonso Dalboquerque, let him therefore be so good as to order the immediate delivery of it, for Afonso Dalboquerque had made arrangement for getting ready the fleet that very night, so that if the Rumes were to come, they should not be taken unprepared.

Now Reys Nordim regretted that he had assented to the request of D. Garcia, and became anxious to see him return and take away with him from the palace the armed escort, so that when they had gone he might have time to reflect and consider what to do; therefore he began to temporise, and declared that the man who kept the keys of the magazine had gone out. But Dom Garcia, who was determined not to quit the palace without taking the artillery with him, told him that in matters which were likely to be imperilled by being put off, it was not right that there should be any delay, for he did not intend to go away without the artillery. Reys Nordim, therefore, perceiving that he would gain nothing by his pretended artifices, made a virtue of necessity, and gave orders for taking the fastenings from the doors of the storehouses where it was, and the bombardiers, with their gunners, forthwith began to set up the guns on carriages; and it was about three hours after nightfall when at length all had been put out on the shore (and a beautiful sight it made); and on the next day Reys Nordim wrote the captains of Mascate and Calayate to send him all that they had in their charge; so that by June a galley and a brigantine arrived with it on board, and Afonso Dalboquerque ordered that all should be gathered together and mounted on the walls of the fortress, and thus he secured for himself all the artillery of Ormuz. In this turned out that if the news brought by the Moor of the coming of the Prince was pretended, at any rate it cost him little.

Two days after the conclusion of this affair, Afonso Dalboquerque thought it well to go and see the king, to put him into a good humour; and when he reached the palace, D. Nuno came forward to receive him on a large terrace, from which they both proceeded to an audience with the king; and on arriving at the door of the chamber, D. Nuno's chief officer of the king's guard, came up to speak with him, and declared that it was Afonso Dalboquerque to whom he owed the enjoyment of that office, and that he was there as a slave to serve him; and while this talk was going on the king came to the door.

As soon as Afonso Dalboquerque caught sight of him, he went up to him, cap in hand, and desired to kiss his hand. The king would not give him his hand, but embraced him and kissed his head—an honour customarily reserved for persons of great dignity—and having thus embraced one another, they went into a chamber built with a carved ceiling, and stood up with a desk on which were two chairs, one covered with china silk stuff, for the king, the other, of crimson velvet, for Afonso Dalboquerque, and two cushions of the same stuff, on which they placed their feet. And as soon as they seated themselves, they talked for a while upon friendly business, and the king declared that it was the happiest day of his life; and Afonso Dalboquerque replied that it would give him the greatest pleasure and happiness to do any service to those whom he could benefit, and he begged the king to send for the sons of King Ceifadim that he might see them, for they were two youths, each about eight or nine years old, to whom he showed great respect remembering whose sons they were, and begged the king and Reys Nordin to bring them up very carefully. When the conversation was over, Afonso Dalboquerque took his leave of the king and Reys Nordin and returned him as far as the gate of the fortress, and then re-

CHAPTER XL.

How the great Afonso Dalboquerque despatched the Ambassador of the Xequé Ismael, and sent Fernão Gomez de Lemos to go in his company ; and the present which was sent to that prince through him.

At this juncture, the ambassador of the Xequé Ismael, perceiving that Afonso Dalboquerque was making preparations to fight the Rumes, begged that he might receive permission to return, for he had been waiting there for several days ; so Afonso Dalboquerque lost no time in despatching him, and caused Fernão Gomez de Lemos, brother of Duarte de Lemos da Trofa, to get ready, for he intended to send him in the party as ambassador to the Xequé Ismael ; and Gil Simões, page of the King D. Manuel, as scrivener of the embassy, and fitted him out with eight saddle horses to accompany him, all of them caparisoned with silk after our fashion ; and also made ready to send to the Xequé, as a present, several things, namely, two cuirass-bodies, one of crimson velvet, the other of brocade ; a head-piece and chin-piece, ornamented with gold ; a suit of harness embroidered with all its parts ; four bracelets of gold and rubies ; very rich rings and other very rich jewellery of gold and precious stones ; and a short cannon (berço), and a gun (cão) of metal ; and half a dozen matchlocks, and as many cross-bows ; and sent him copper, tin, and a small quantity of all the spices of India. And it was to be intimated to the Xequé that he could make use of all that kind of thing whenever he desired, but as he (Afonso Dalboquerque) was always at sea, and brought nothing with him except arms and provisions, therefore he had not sent him a specimen of many other things which there were in Portugal, but of the products of India he had sent that collection, with which he hoped he would be pleased.

And the instructions which were sent were to the effect that he was to declare to the Xequé Ismael, that if he desired to maintain useful and friendly relations with the King of Portugal his lord, he must send his ambassadors to Portugal, for by means of the Portuguese he would be enabled to destroy the Grand Sultan and the house of Méca; and if the King of Portugal's sanction were given to the fleet, he (Afonso Dalboquerque) would be very well able to help him, for he had now settled himself in Ormuz. But if the Xequé Ismael should be unwilling to send his ambassadors, on the pretext of the great distance (as he had said to Miguel Ferreira), the Portuguese ambassador was instructed to point out, that if the Xequé had need of the friendship of the King of Portugal, he ought not to fear the trouble which the journey would cost one man, who would be taken great care of and well entertained in the vessels going to Portugal. He was also to describe to the Xequé the grandeur of the King and Queen of Portugal, and the incessant wars which they waged against the Moors of Africa and of India, as well as against the Turk and Sultan of Cairo.

When Fernão Gomez was quite prepared to start, Afonso Dalboquerque caused the ambassador to be summoned before him, and told him that in respect of the four things demanded of the Portuguese on behalf of the Xequé Ismael he had looked to them.

As for the first, demanding the dues upon merchandise coming from Persia, payable at Ormuz, they must be his; for the expenses that the King of Ormuz was compelled to spend upon his army and fleet, for the maintenance of his kingdom, were so great (besides the tribute-money paid to the King of Portugal his lord), that were it not for the dues upon the merchandise coming from Persia and other parts, the King of Ormuz could not support himself, for all the remainder of the revenue of his kingdom was but little (as the Xequé knew very well), therefore he could not surrender this part of the revenue to the Xequé.

As for the second, which was a demand of a water-passage for the conveyance of his people to the land of Arabia, he would be very much pleased to accede to this, and give him all the vessels he stood in need of, provided that the Xequé Ismael would give sufficient security to the King of Ormuz that no untoward event should be perpetrated in his lands nor in the island of Barem.<sup>1</sup>

As for the third article of the demands, that, namely, of help by means of men and fleet against the King of Maçaram (who was his vassal, and had revolted against him in the city of Guardaré), he would help the Xequé with all the fleet and forces of the King of Portugal (who had ordered him thus to act), but this would have to be associated with one condition, that the merchandise coming from Persia to Ormuz be not conveyed away thence.

As for the fourth, which consisted in the request of a port in India where the merchants of Persia might carry on their trade, and have permission to establish a factory-house in Ormuz, to this request Afonso Dalboquerque would be exceedingly pleased to assent, but the selected port of India must be Goa, and the entry at Ormuz; for in every other district of India wherein merchants from Persia should be found, they should lose their merchandise and be made subject to the greatest penalties which he could inflict.

And having thus replied to the demands of the ambassador, Afonso Dalboquerque desired him to declare to the Xequé Ismael that he ought to look upon the lands which were thus offered for him to accept as a valuable gift, and to gladly receive the desire of the Portuguese to make him a great lord in his country, on condition that he would preserve it and defend it against its enemies, for he (Afonso) had gained many territories in those parts for the King of Portugal his lord, and hoped yet to subject many others to Portuguese power, and all for the sake of doing the Xequé

<sup>1</sup> See p. 114.

a good turn ; and as for the friendship and good assistance which Afonso Dalboquerque desired to proffer him, he was glad to do so to so great a prince ; and also he would be highly pleased to order all the soldiers of the Xequé's own faith, who were to be found in India, to be sent to him to enter his service, in accordance with his express desire ; and he hoped in God very soon to return to Ormuz, wherein he looked to have leisure to meet him in some one or other of his towns on the coast of the Persian Sea ; and to this end he had sent in his company a Fidalgo, one of the chief personages of the household of the king his lord, as ambassador to the Xequé Ismael, and begged he might be well received there.

When these interviews were over, Afonso Dalboquerque made him a present of jewels, and dresses, and pepper, for which he asked, and wherewith he was very much pleased. And now, having everything in readiness, the party set out together on the tenth of August in the year fifteen hundred and fifteen. But I do not make any relation of what happened to Fernão Gomez in his embassy, for he did not return until after the death of Afonso Dalboquerque.

---

CHAPTER XLI.

How the kings of all parts sent their ambassadors to visit the great Afonso Dalboquerque : and how D. Garcia de Noronha begged permission to return to the kingdom of Portugal, and the rest that happened.

After the setting out of these ambassadors to the Xequé Ismael, D. Garcia de Noronha, perceiving that there was but little work yet remaining to be done upon the fortress, begged permission of the great Afonso Dalboquerque, his uncle, to go to Portugal, but as Afonso Dalboquerque found himself indisposed with a very weary illness, and also because he felt the great value of his personal assistance and service, he was unwilling to accede to the request; nevertheless, D. Garcia, being very greatly desirous of returning, urged his suit so strongly that at length it was granted, but very unwillingly. So he dispatched him on the twenty-ninth day of August of the said year [1515], furnishing him with all authority to load his vessel, and with him he sent to the king D. Manuel a basin, cup, and drinking vessel, and a belt and dagger of solid gold, which had formed part of the present sent to him by the Xequé Ismael, and some caparisons for a horse, made of crimson plates, with the head-piece ornamented with gold inlaying-work, and a saddle ornamented with silver, and a skirt of mail, and a piece of felting cut out and coloured, which although of little price was a fine thing to look at; and in his company he sent fifteen blind kings who were in Ormuz with their wives, children, and servants, with orders to deliver them up at Goa to the captain, who was to keep them under safe guard, giving them everything they required for their maintenance. Afonso Dalboquerque did this with intention of putting an end to the line of kings of Ormuz, and preventing them from being scattered over many parts and so in future times causing troubles to the kingdom.

And he dispatched Antonio de Afonseca, with ten thousand xerafins, as factor, and Aires de Magalhães for his scrivener, to make ready for him in Goa a large quantity of provisions and munitions of war, and to repair the vessels that might be in India, and complete the fitting out of the galleys which had been begun when he left Goa, and he wrote to Duarte Barbosa to take care that the two galleys of Calicut should be ready finished for his use, for he had made up his mind that in the following spring he would fit out a large fleet to take Adem and fortify himself in that place, and force the entry of the Red Sea Straits, and make a settlement in the land of the Preste João.

But God ordered all this according to his own wish, for, when Afonso Dalboquerque reached Goa, he died (as I shall proceed to relate); and if he had not died, Lopo Soarez was on his way to be Governor of India, so that these his wishes could not have been accomplished. And D. Garcia sailed away in the ship Belém, and reached Cochim, where, as he was getting ready to sail to Portugal, Lopo Soarez arrived, and some differences arose between them.

As soon as D. Garcia had set out, Afonso Dalboquerque began to feel a little better of his illness; and just at this moment there arrived certain ambassadors from the kings neighbouring upon the kingdom of Ormuz, to visit him, namely, the King of Lara, bringing him a horse for a present, and a letter making a great show of offering him everything that there might be in his country. Lara is three leagues from Ormuz; it is a very large city, situated in Persia, and under the sovereignty of the Xequé Ismael. Afonso Dalboquerque replied to the letter, and caused a visit to be made to him by Fernão Martinz Evangelho, whom he charged with the purchase of horses, for there are many in that land.

After this ambassador there came another from Mirbuzaca, captain of the Xequé Ismael, who lived at Raxel, on the Persian shore of the sea, as I have already related, and he also brought for Afonso Dalboquerque a horse, and a letter of grand offers, begging him to be so kind as to help him by sea to capture the ports and islands lying in the straits of the Persian Sea, then he would be a faithful adherent of the King of Portugal, and pay him tribute for these conquests, and give him all the horses and supplies that he required.

Afonso Dalboquerque would have nothing to do with this request of Mirbuzaca, for he intended to write to the king an account of it, and to act in the matter in accordance with his wishes, but he wrote in reply a great many thanks for these offers, putting off any movement in the business until his return to Ormuz. And of all the kings and lords of that Persian coast, ambassadors were in waiting, whom Afonso Dalboquerque dispatched with copious expressions of thanks, and presents, which he sent to them, as also to the Moors of Persia and Tartary; and from all the parts of the interior country so many were they who came daily into the fortress in order to look upon Afonso Dalboquerque, that our people could not keep them back; and although his illness prevented him from going out very often, they begged those who were on guard at the doorway of the fortress to at least permit them to get sight of him, for they had come from their own country for this sole purpose. And if at any time he rode on horseback, so large a crowd of people followed after him along the streets, that he could hardly make his way through them; and as the fame of his person, and his greatness, was the topic of all those parts, and in consequence of the news which the ambassadors whom the Xequé Ismael had sent to him had circulated, they sent their servants to him with orders to draw his portrait to the life.

---

CHAPTER XLII.

How a Captain of the Xequé Ismael came to Ormuz to see the great Afonso Dalboquerque, and the news which he gave him, and the rest that took place.

A few days after D. Garcia de Noronha had set out on his voyage, there arrived from Persia a caravan with many merchants from Tartary, and Russia, and all that part of the world, with their merchandise, whereby the city began to grow very much ennobled ; and in company with them came a captain from the Xequé Ismael, who had set out from the Court with the object of seeing the great Afonso Dalboquerque, on account of the great reputation which he had there, whereat he was highly delighted.

And because it was but a little time past since the Xequé Ismael had had a fierce battle with the Turk, in which this captain had taken part, he asked him all about the engagement ; and he told him that the Turks came down with thirty thousand horse, and a large force of infantry, to attack a pass in the mountain range, so as to be enabled to pass through it to Tauriz,<sup>1</sup> and the captains of the Xequé Ismael who were in the van first reached the mountain, and took up a commanding position on it and withstood the passage of the enemy. But when the Xequé himself came up he was angry that they had not allowed the Turk to pass through, and ordered his captains to abandon the pass. When the Turk saw that the pass was no longer threatened, he crossed the mountain and, resting his rear upon it, fortified himself there with a large number of gun carriages chained together, by which means he had encircled the whole of his camp and fifteen thousand musketeers all drawn up in battle array, with determination of there awaiting the attack of the Xequé Ismael, for he had not ventured to go and attack him where he was ; and the Turks kept so good a look out in their camp that the Xequé Ismael could never learn in what condition it was ; so, like a man who made no account of the Turks, he fell upon them with twenty thousand cavalry. The Turks divided their army into two battalions and came out of the fort that they had constructed, to wait for the onset. When the Xequé Ismael fell upon the Turks, he put them at once to flight, and followed up hotly the pursuit after them until he entered into the camp itself ; but as he did not know anything about the artillery, nor how it was mounted, nor in what position it commanded, he strove very gallantly to get in along with his adversaries. When the Turk perceived that the Persians were in confusion, he gave the word for firing the artillery, which on the one flank, and the musketeers on the other, made so great a havoc that the Xequé Ismael seeing that he was beaten and a large part of his army killed, retreated rapidly to Tauriz, which lies distant about twenty leagues; and the Turks followed him up rapidly, and, meeting with no resistance, entered the city of Tauriz, and took all the treasure of the Xequé Ismael that there was in it. And while he lay there with the determination of fortifying himself in the city, news was brought to him that the Christians were already on their way to besiege Constantinople, and on this account he abandoned the undertaking and returned in great haste, and the Xequé Ismael reorganised his forces and returned to Tauriz. But certain captains whom the Turk had left behind in the city, as soon as they were apprised of his return, deserted the city and fled away, and when the Xequé Ismael arrived there, he ordered punishment to be inflicted upon all the chief men of the land, because they had allowed the Turks to enter the city without a struggle.

<sup>1</sup> See p. 86.

When Afonso Dalboquerque heard all this news he declared (one day when the captains were conversing with him about the enmity which the Xequé Ismael had towards the Turk and the Grand Sultan, concerning differences of their law) that the Xequé Ismael had been a thunderbolt sent down by God upon the sect of Mahomet for the preservation of India, although the Xequé himself was not aware of it; for when he was but a youth of eight years of age, and not holding any influential position, or having any distinction in the kingdom, he had risen up in rebellion, in the year that the admiral<sup>1</sup> discovered India, and being favoured by the assistance of his uncle had gained possession of Turcomania, Persia, the kingdom of Khorassan, Camarcand, a city of the Tartars, the kingdom of Aquilam,<sup>1</sup> and all Lower Armenia, and many other provinces of the Turks and Tartars, burning all the Moorish mosques, but sparing the Christian churches; and doing all this when only eight years old, what would he not have effected when now twenty-four years old, if God had not ordained that he should have two such powerful enemies as the Turks and the Grand Sultan of Cairo?

<sup>1</sup> See vol. i, Pref., pp. xv et seq.

And as Afonso Dalboquerque was a great conqueror, and very successful in his method of performing great deeds, he wrote many times to the King D. Manuel to concert with all the Christian Powers that they should be on terms of friendship with the Xequé Ismael, for if he were on their side, they would have no difficulty in ruining the power of the Turk and the Grand Sultan; and to ask the permission of the Pope to send him master workers to make guns for him, for this was the only thing wanting to enable the Xequé to destroy his enemies. The captain of the Xequé Ismael, who had now spent several days in Ormuz, having come simply for the sake of seeing Afonso Dalboquerque, begged permission to return, and Afonso Dalboquerque made him a present of many very valuable lumps of gold, and commanded his people to show him all the artillery that there was in Ormuz, and told him to declare to the Xequé Ismael that by means of that, and much more in Portugal, he would serve him in the name of the King of Portugal against his enemies in any way most convenient to him.

---

<sup>1</sup> Cf. Gilan, p. 186. Ghilan, or Gilán, a province of Persia, on the South shore of the Caspian Sea. The initial letter A here is only the Portuguese feminine article.

CHAPTER XLIII.

Of the situation of the city of Ormuz and of its commerce.

There are three places in India which serve as marts of all the commerce of merchantable wares in that part of the world, and the principal keys of it.

The first is Malaca,<sup>1</sup> which lies in three degrees [N. lat.] at the entry and exit of the Straits of Singapara, of which I have already made mention.<sup>2</sup> The second is Adem, which is situate in the twenty-first degree of [N.] latitude, in the entry and exit of the Straits of the Red Sea, and of this place I have related all that has come to my knowledge.<sup>3</sup> The third is Ormuz, which is in fifteen degrees [N. lat.], and at the entry and exit of the Straits of the Persian Sea. This city of Ormuz is, according to my idea, the most important of them all. And if the King of Portugal had made himself master of Adem, with a good fortress, such as those of Ormuz and Malaca, and so held the sway over these three Straits which I have specified, he might well have been called the lord of all the world—as did Alexander when he penetrated to the Ganges—for with these three keys in his hands he might shut the doors against all comers. And well do I believe that if death had not cut off Afonso Dalboquerque, all these would have been in his hands. There is much which I could write upon this point, but as it is not my intention to point out the mistakes of others, I must revert to the thread of my narration.

Ormuz is a very ancient place, and by reason of its commerce and navigable position is very much renowned throughout the whole world; but I could not learn the history of its foundation, for it is impossible to believe that it sprang from a band of robbers who scoured the seas for their prey (just as Corinth began its history), for it is an island of three leagues, all consisting of rock salt, very deficient of water, and dependent on the mainland for all its water-supply. If, on the other hand, it is considered that it was built in the first instance by fishermen who resorted thither in pursuit of their occupation (as was the case with Malacca,<sup>1</sup> this also cannot be the fact, on account of the want of water; which I have just shown. But be this as it may, and let each one attribute to its foundation whatever origin he pleases, nevertheless, the Moors hold Ormuz to be such an important place that they say, "The world is a ring, and the jewel in it is Ormuz"; and so it may well be, for thither pour in all the merchantable commodities of Tartary, Turcomania, the kingdom of Gilam,<sup>2</sup> of Bagadâ,<sup>3</sup> and Cairo, and of all the parts of India; and in Ormuz can be obtained every desired kind of merchandise.

<sup>1</sup> See vol. iii, pp. 71 et seq.

<sup>2</sup> See vol. iii, p. 73.

<sup>3</sup> See the early chapters of this volume.

There is no country in that part of the world better supplied with provisions, although none whatever are produced in it. In the market of Ormuz may be found every kind of fruit, dried or fresh, just as in Spain. Ormuz, indeed, is so exacting in these things, that at the time when Afonso Dalboquerque was there, the people used to bring snow for sale from a distance of thirty leagues into the interior of Persia. From Ormuz are carried many horses to India, of great price, for they are of the best breed of all. The Straits of the Persian Sea are thickly populated with villages and islands on both sides, chiefly on the Arabian side, where stands the city of Baçora,<sup>4</sup> at which a river rising at the distance of two days' journey from Méca debouches, and divides the whole of the land; and on the Persian side is the Province of Raxel,<sup>5</sup> which contains many

<sup>1</sup> See vol. iii, p. 74.

<sup>2</sup> See note, p. 184.

<sup>3</sup> Bagdad.

<sup>4</sup> Basrah Town, the port of Mesopotamia. The entrance lies in 30 deg. 32 min. N. lat.; 47 deg. 51 min. E. long.

the map at vol. i, p. 80 (Reril). Cf. vol. iv, p. 115.

villages and fortresses along the sea, engaged in a flourishing trade, and accustomed to import all kinds of Persian merchandise; and at the head of all this strait lies the city of Bagadá,<sup>1</sup> which used to belong to the lords of Armenia, but the Xequé Ismael took it from him, and now the Turk is lord of it. Three great rivers<sup>2</sup> unite into one there; one is called Euphrates, the other Tigris, and the third Fizam; and it is said that they come from a great lake lying in the interior of Persia, and at the spot where this enters the sea the Moors call it Xerdebaudá, and the water has an immense force.

From this city of Bagadá, there used in the ancient days to come various merchantable wares to Ormuz, but this trade is now forbidden by the King of Portugal. The Straits also contain an island called Barem,<sup>3</sup> noted for its large breeding of horses, its barley crops, and the variety of its fruits. And all around it are the fishing grounds of seed pearls, and of pearls, which are sent to these realms of Portugal, for they are better and more lasting than any that are found in any other of these parts. Besides these principal places the whole shore on the Persian side of the sea is filled with numerous little villages having a small trade, and, indeed, the whole sea is overrun with small vessels of light draught on account of the frequent shallows: and all these places supply Ormuz with a great quantity of silk, which is exported to India. The greater number of the inhabitants of this island are Persians, and the language which is most commonly employed there is the Persian. This island, <sup>1</sup> Baghdad.

<sup>2</sup> At Kurnah, to the N. of Basrah, or Bassorah, is the meeting of the three great rivers, Euphrates or El Frát, Tigris or El Imarah, and Kerkhan or Hawiza. To the S. of Basrah, on the W. side, is the River Karun. After passing Basrah the stream is called Basrah River or Shatt El Arab. See Gen. F. R. Cheaney's Narrative of the Euphrates Expedition, 1835-7. London: 1868 (Map).

<sup>3</sup> See p. 114.

...and in the summer ...
...of the ...
...the end of the ...

CHAPTER XLIV

How ...
...with regard to the ...
...and what was agreed upon ...

How ... as the great ...
...by day or by night ...
...of the ...
...and he himself ...
...of ...
...for eleven days ...
...had any one seen him ...
...friends. But as it was thought ...
...had not seen him, it began to be ...
...of the Moors ...
...of the captains to see ...
...that it would scarcely ...
...and felt so weak ...
...of the month of ...
...his house, and ...
...declared to ...
...with an illness ...
...Nevertheless,

...to the ...
...on the ...

because, if it were not Lord's will that his career should be finished, he was desirous of leaving the affairs of the kingdom in proper order and the fortress that he was engaged upon finished to the advantage of the king his lord's service, therefore he desired them of his goodness to give him their oaths of fealty that they would obey that person to whom he before his death should designate his powers, until the king D. Manuel could make provision in this case in accordance with his own desires.

The captains answered him with many tears saying that our Lord would grant him that good health which every one desired him to enjoy, and that it was proper for the preservation of the King of Portugal's estate in that part of the world that he should do what he pleased, for they would all be very happy to do his bidding, and to obey him to whom he should entrust his authority. Afonso Dalboquerque, with many kindly words gave them many thanks for their good wishes for his health, and received from every one an oath of allegiance, which they made at his hands, that they would submit themselves in the king's name to him whom he should nominate; and of this proceeding he ordered Pero Dalpoem the secretary to draw up a record, which was signed by every one.

When this was over, Afonso Dalboquerque finding himself daily growing more seriously ill, made his will, and turned his attention to religious matters. And after having thus put himself right in the sight of God, confessed, and communicated, and performed all the acts of a Christian, on the twentieth day of the month of October he called Pero Dalboquerque his nephew, son of Jorge Dalboquerque his cousin-german, and told him that as he was of such a character that the men would be glad to remain in the fortress with him; and also because the King of Ormuz had always evinced a great regard for him, and expressed a wish that he should always remain there; and, further, as he deserved it by reason of his knightly prowess and nobility of birth, he would appoint him to the charge over the fortress in the name of the King of Portugal, with four hundred thousand reis and two hundred quintals of pepper as well, for salary every year; and from that time forward he must give his attention to the construction of the fortress, for he had no longer any desire, either of body or mind, to interest himself in any other thing except only the account which he must render to God for the bad services that he had rendered; let him therefore order the artillery to be mounted in the appointed places, for the fortress had already reached a height sufficient to enable its defence to be maintained, and call it Nossa Senhora da Conceição, "Our Lady of the Conception," and give orders for the collection of all the supplies that were outside in the house of the Almoxarife, or receiver of customs. And he told him that he would leave Nicoláo Ferreira as chief guard of the King of Ormuz, and would strongly recommend him to a favourable reception; and then he ordered the two sons of King Ceifadim to be brought before him, and delivered them up into the care of Pero Dalboquerque, telling him that he begged him earnestly to look to their care, and keep them with him as a curb upon the king, whom indeed he was leaving in Ormuz against his will, for he had killed his brother, King Ceifadim, and risen up and usurped his kingdom, but he (Afonso Dalboquerque) had dissembled with him thus far because these two youths were not sufficiently old to conduct the government.

Pero Dalboquerque, after kissing his hands in token of thanks for the gift he had made to him of the fortress, told him that he would rather that he would select from among so many captains, fidalgos, and cavaliers, some other one for that position (for everyone of them deserved it more than he did), but whatever benefit could arise to him from being the commander of the fortress, in all things he would act in obedience to his commands. As soon as it was known that Pero Dalboquerque was appointed captain of the fortress, many became discontented, for each one of the captains thought himself would be chosen; but they were unreasonable, for he was a man of rare qualities and showed his spirit well in the account he gave of himself during the time that he held that position. And from that time forward he busied himself on the erection of the fortress and preparation of all that was required. Afonso Dalboquerque then appointed as factor, Manuel da Costa, son of Master Afonso, chief physician of the king D. Manuel; and as scribes of the factory, Manuel de Sequeira, page of the Duchess of Braganza, and Diogo Dandrade, page of the Royal Chamber.

And when all this had been arranged he ceased to trouble himself with any other business, and would not be consulted upon any other affairs; and ordered Diogo Fernandez de Béja to get the ship Flor da Rosa, of which he was the captain, ready for him, that he might sail away to India, with all the ships which were to go in his company. And thus having settled the manner of his departure, he sent word to the King of Ormuz by Pero Dalpoem and Alexander de Ataide, that he was desirous of going away, for it was absolutely necessary for him (dead or alive) to go and set the affairs of India in order; therefore he begged him earnestly to forgive his not having taken a personal farewell, for his illness had increased to so great a degree that it gave him no opportunity of doing so, but he trusted in God that he would be able very soon to return and visit him; and that he would leave Pero Dalboquerque his nephew as captain of the fortress, and he was assured that that commander would serve him very well. The king replied to Pero Dalpoem that he must declare to his father how grieved he was at his departure, but he would be supported by the hope of speedily seeing him again.

Thereupon Afonso Dalboquerque, being so eagerly desirous of setting out on the way to India, took his leave of Pero Dalboquerque, and the captains who were to remain behind, and went on board on Thursday the eighth day of the month of November of the same year [1515], about six o'clock, that no one might take notice of him, and immediately set sail and brought up again at anchor about a league's distance from the city, and there he remained waiting for the two great galleys and the caravela of João Gomez, and the brigantine Sanctiago which were to accompany him in the passage. And on Saturday morning Hacem Ali arrived with two native war-boats (terradas) laden with refreshments sent to him by the king; so he ordered him to be brought into the chamber where he was. And after Hacem Ali had delivered the king's message, Afonso Dalboquerque replied, thanking him very much for his visit, and saying that he had felt better after he had got out to sea; and that now he was no longer present in Ormuz, he begged the king would pay better attention to the work of the fortress, for it was the best thing he could have in the kingdom for the preservation of his state; and then he bade him farewell, giving him thirty xerafins, and to the Moors who navigated the terradas forty, and a good supply of wine to drink, which pleased them more than the money did. And as soon as they were gone he set sail and steered away direct to India.

---

CHAPTER XLV.

How the great Afonso Dalboquerque, by means of a war-boat which he captured on the way coming from Diu, learned that Lopo Soarez had come as Governor of India ; and how he died on reaching the bar of Goa.

Directly that Hacem Ali had taken his leave, the great Afonso Dalboquerque bade Diogo Fernandez de Béja to clap on all sail, and having now got clear out of the throat of the Straits of Ormuz, as far advanced as Calayate,<sup>1</sup> one day in the morning a Moorish terrada or native war-boat hove in sight, under full sail ; and as Afonso Dalboquerque was very desirous of knowing some news from India, he told Diogo Fernandez, captain of the ship, to send the brigantine Sanctiago after her, who chased her so close that she struck sail. And after he had gone on board, Diogo Fernandez enquired of them whence they came ? The Moors replied that they came from Diu. Afonso Dalboquerque thereupon ordered that the captain, master, and pilot should be brought before him ; and when they were there, he commanded Alexandre de Ataíde, the interpreter, upon his oath, to conceal nothing from him that these Moors should reveal, nor any of the news of India that they might give. The Moors craved pardon of Afonso Dalboquerque because they had not struck sail immediately the brigantine bore down upon them, alleging as an excuse that they did not know that he himself was in the ship. But as the disease with which he was suffering was hastening him to his end, and the mere act of conversation wearied him, he desired Alexandre de Ataíde to make very searching inquiries of them concerning Indian news, and to what port they were bound.

The captain of the terrada confessed that Cide Ale, and an ambassador of the Xequé Ismael who was at Diu, had dispatched him with letters for his lordship (Afonso Dalboquerque), and in these they might see for themselves the news of India. Then Afonso Dalboquerque ordered Alexandre de Ataíde to read the letters at once. That written by Cide Ale stated that twelve<sup>1</sup> ships had come from Portugal, and with them Lopo Soarez as captain major of India, and Diogo Mendez as captain of the fortress of Cochim, and other captains for all the other fortresses, as they were therein named, and that Miliqueaz had not written to him because he was very much offended at the king having ordered him to leave India.

<sup>1</sup> See vol. i, p. 213.

And in the letter sent by the ambassador of the Xequé Ismael to Afonso Dalboquerque it was written, that inas-

<sup>1</sup> The British Museum MS. 20,902, f. 18, gives the following account of the fleet of fifteen ships that sailed from Portugal to India in A.D. 1515:—

“LOPPO SOARES DE ALBERGARIA, Governador da India.

“Anno de 1515.

“15 Naôs, a 7 de Abril.

“O Governador Loppo Soares Capitão Mor de quinze Naos, partio a sete de Abril, Capitão Dom Guterre de Monroy, Castelhana, Simão da Silueyra, Alvaro telles, Diogo Mendes de Vasconcellos, Jorge de Brito, Copeiro mor del Rey, Fernão Peres de Andrade, Dom Aleixo de Menezes, Christouão de Tavora, Dom João da Silui<sup>a</sup>, Alvaro Barretto, Franco de Tavora, Simão dalçaçeva, Antonio lobbo falção, Jorge Mascarenhas, Dõ Aleixo foi por Capitão mór do Mar, Sobrinho do Governador e nas absençias tinha poderes de G[ouernad]or.”

“João de Barros diz, que foram somente treze naôs, e não conta mais, que os treze capitães seguintes nesta forma—D. Gutterre de Monroy Castelhana na Piedade = Simam da Silveira em S<sup>to</sup> Antonio = Christouão de Tavora = Alvaro Tellez Barreto em S. Gião = Fr<sup>co</sup> de Tavora em S. Christovão = D. João da Silveira em S<sup>to</sup> Maria da Serra = Jorge de Brito Copeiro Mór del Rey = Alvaro Barreto = Simão de Alçaçova = D. Aleixo de Menezes = Diogo Mendes de Vasconcellos Capam e Feytor de Cochim = Fernam Peres de Andrade.”

From this latter paragraph it appears that the number of ships, according to Barros, was thirteen. Correa says twelve naos and three navios, and gives his own list of captains, etc.—Lendas, ii, 463.

much as the King of Portugal so badly recognised his knightly deeds and his services, he advised him to take service with the Xequé Ismael, for he was sure the Xequé would appreciate his services by making him one of the greatest lords of his land; and he desired a safe-conduct to bring his merchandise to Ormuz and so take it to Persia.

When Afonso Dalboquerque learned that another governor had come out in his stead, and saw how his enemies were in favour with the king, he lifted up his hands, and gave thanks to Our Lord, and cried: "In bad repute with men because of the king, and in bad repute with the king because of the men. It were well that I were gone." And having said so he ordered that all the letters which the Moors were carrying to Ormuz should be taken from them, wherein it was advised that if a fortress had not already been given to Afonso Dalboquerque, that it should not be now granted, for another governor had been appointed who would do anything they wished. And in order that those letters should do no harm to the building of the fortress he caused them all to be burned, and bade the Moors begone, and remained alone with his secretary; and having already made his testament, wherein he expressed a desire to be interred in his chapel that he had built in Goa, which he had taken from the Moors, he added a codicil whereby he ordered that his bones, after the flesh had been consumed, should be carried to Portugal; and other matters not necessary to be written here.

And when this was done he wrote a letter to the king D. Manuel after the following words:—"Sire, I am writing this letter to Your Highness while I am suffering from a spasm which is a signal of my dissolution. In the kingdom of Portugal I have a son, and I beg Your Highness to ennoble him for my sake, as a reward for the services which I have performed for Your Highness in accordance with my condition of being your servant; for I command him on pain of forfeiting my blessing to ask this at your hands. And as for the affairs of India I say nothing, for they will speak for themselves and for me."

At this time he had become so weak that he could not stand, ever desiring Our Lord to take him to Goa, and there do with him as should be best for his service; and when the ship was yet distant three or four leagues from the bar, he ordered them to summon Fr. Domingos, the Vicar-General, and Master Afonso, the physician. And as he was so weak that he could not eat anything, he ordered his attendants to give him a little of the red wine which had been sent that year from Portugal. And when the brigantine had sailed away in advance to Goa, the vessel proceeded to cast anchor on the bar, on Saturday night, the fifteenth day of the month of December. When they told Afonso Dalboquerque that he was at the end of his voyage, he lifted up his hands and gave many thanks to Our Lord because he had vouchsafed to grant him that mercy which he had so earnestly desired, and thus he remained all through that night (with the Vicar-General, who had already come off from the shore to the ship, and Pero Dalpoem, Secretary of India, whom he constituted his executor), embracing the crucifix and continually talking; and he desired the Vicar-General, who was his confessor, to recite the Passion of Our Lord, written by St. John, to which he was always devoted, for in it, and in that Cross which was made in the likeness of that whereon Our Lord had suffered, and on his Wounds, he rested all the hope of his salvation: and he commanded them to attire him in the habit of Sanctiago, whereof he was a "Commendador", that he might die in it; and on the Sunday, one hour before the morning, he rendered up his soul to God; and there finished all his troubles without seeing any satisfaction of them. And we may well believe that one who thus finished his life could not have so many errors of commission laid to his charge that the king whom he had served very loyally should command him to return to Portugal without rewarding his services ; but whereas Afonso Dalboquerque had enemies in the King's Council who were envious of his greatness and of the glorious victories which Our Lord had granted him in those countries, they prevailed upon the king D. Manuel to command his return, and they did not fail to allege reasons for this according to their intent, and to send Lopo Soarez as Governor of India. But when the king perceived his mistake, and the need he had of Afonso Dalboquerque's personal presence in India, he wrote a letter to Lopo Soarez, which I have given further on in my work, having ordered it to be transcribed from the original which I found among my papers.

---

CHAPTER XLVI.

How the body of the great Afonso Dalboquerque was carried to burial in his chapel, and the great mourning which was made for him ; and of his life and manners.

Now that the great Afonso Dalboquerque had expired, before any one came from the city he was immediately enshrouded and clothed in the habit of Sanctiago, with some buskins on his legs, and spurs on the boots, and a sword in his belt—after the customary manner of burying the Commendadors—and on his head was placed a velvet cap, and at his neck a stole of the same. And when the body had been thus attired, Pero Dalpoem gave orders to lay down carpets on the quarterdeck of the ship, and there they set out the body upon a bier covered with a pall of black velvet, with a cushion of the same material at the head. And Diogo Fernandez de Béja, who was the captain, ordered a boat to be made ready wherein the body was to be conveyed to land ; and when morning came, the people of the city began to assemble in boats with a great outcry to accompany him, but when they heard that he was dead, so great was the crying and weeping on all sides that it seemed as if the very river of Goa was being poured out; and because the people were in a great throng he was immediately put into the boat and so carried to the city.

And when the quay was reached where D. Goterres,<sup>1</sup> captain of the city, and all the Fidalgoes and Cavaliers, and all the populace and clerks and friars were waiting, the body was taken out of the boat to the land on the biers on which it had rested, and thereupon arose another fresh outbreak of lamentations. And after praying for him, which the clerks and friars could not do without weeping, the Fidalgoes who were standing by took up the bier on their shoulders and beneath the pall bore him to his chapel of "Our Lady of the Conception", where he was interred, while there accompanied the procession all the people of the city, not only Christians but Hindoos and Moors, who filled the streets, demonstrating by the profusion of their tears the great sorrow they felt at his death. As for the Hindoos, when they beheld his body stretched upon the bier, with his long beard reaching down to his waist and his eyes half open, they declared, after their heathen notions, that it could not be that he was dead, but that God had need of him for some war and had therefore sent for him. And thus, after this order and with these lamentations and outcries, all arrived with the body at the chapel which he had founded over against the city gate, where he entered when he took the city from the Moors, and there were performed the last rites of the Church over him with a sermon of which I could gladly say much. And for the support of this chapel, he left in Goa an ample revenue in ground rents of houses to be paid for the performance of daily Services, and the remainder to be given away for alms every

<sup>1</sup> D. Goterre de Monroy; Correa.

Friday to orphan boys, sons of Portuguese parents. And when his son Afonso Dalboquerque desired to remove his bones to Portugal he obtained permission by a Papal Bull to sell the property, and built a hospital for pilgrims in Azeitão and a church adjoining it with the money, leaving in Goa property which renders forty thousand reis for a daily mass in the said chapel, in accordance with the express provision of the Pope's Bull.

When the funeral ceremonies were over, Pero Dalpoem caused a monument of three steps covered over with black velvet to be placed over the grave, and the chapel to be hung with black cloth; and he ordered to be suspended over the grave the royal flag which Afonso Dalboquerque always carried before him to battle, for it had been sent to him by the king D. Manuel from Abrantes (for the plague was ripe at Lisbon) to the port of Belem, when he was on the point of departure. This is now preserved in the principal chapel of Our Lady of Grace where his bones are interred.

This great captain was a man of middle stature, with a long face, fresh coloured, the nose somewhat large. He was a prudent man, and a Latin scholar, and spoke in elegant phrases; his conversation and writings showed his excellent education. He was of ready words, very authoritative in his commands, very circumspect in his dealings with the Moors, and greatly feared yet greatly loved by all, a quality rarely found united in one captain. He was very valiant and favoured by fortune. The king D. Fernando [II], King of Castile, said to Pero Correa, when he was Portuguese ambassador to the court, that it was a very astonishing thing that the king D. Manuel his son should have ordered Afonso Dalboquerque to return from India, seeing that he was so great a captain and so fortunate in his wars. He always gained the victory in his battles, both at sea and on land, against the Moors, sometimes indeed being wounded, for the places where he was posted were not very secure. He was very prompt in the performance of any undertaking when he had once determined upon it, and his name and his successes are so celebrated among all the kings and princes of Europe and Asia, that the Grand Turk when conversing with D. Alvaro de Sande, captain of the Emperor Charles V. whom he held in captivity concerning the state of India, had his hand on his breast and said that Afonso Dalboquerque had been a very remarkable captain. He was a man of the strictest veracity, and so pure in the justice he administered that the Hindoos and Moors after his death, whenever they received any affronts from the Governors of India used to go to Goa to his tomb, and make offerings of choice flowers, and of oil for his lamp, praying him to do them justice. He was very charitable to the poor, and settled many women in marriage in Goa. For he was of such a generous disposition that all the presents and gifts which the kings of India bestowed on him—and they were numerous and of great value—he divided among the captains and Fidalgoes who had assisted him in obtaining them. He was very honourable in his manner of life, and so careful over his language, that the greatest oath which he ever took when he was very much enraged was this: "I abhor the life that I live." He died at the age of seventy-three years, having governed India for ten years.

---

CHAPTER XLVII.

How the king D. Manuel repented of having ordered the return of Afonso Dalboquerque from India and sent word that he was not to come back: and of the letter which he wrote thereupon to Lopo Soares the Governor of India.

Lopo Soares having set sail for India in the capacity of Governor during the month of March in the year 1515, in the following August news reached the king D. Manuel by way of Venice (for he always received news from that city of the movements of the Grand Sultan and from his ambassador at Rome), that the Grand Sultan of Cairo, annoyed at the Portuguese having entered the Straits of the Red Sea, had caused a large fleet of galleys and galleons to be made ready at Suez, with a large body of fighting men and artillery to proceed to India, principally to the kingdom of Ormuz, to prevent Afonso Dalboquerque from getting possession of it. The king, disappointed at this intelligence, and sorry at having recalled him, made up his mind to act vigorously in the way of supporting his Indian forces as quickly as he could, and ordered the immediate preparation of a fleet, so as to be able in March of the year 1516 to draft a large body of them to India; and he wrote to Lopo Soarez the following letter, telling him all this news which had come to hand of the projected fleet of the Sultan, and telling him what to do to confine himself to his proper sphere of duty if he had already entered upon his office in India:—

“Lopo Soarez, friend, we, the king, send you our hearty greeting. Because not many days past news has reached us that the Grand Sultan is preparing a fleet in Suez for his service in India, we hereby acquaint you of the manner in which you must proceed in case the fleet of the Sultan shall have passed into Indian waters, though we trust in Our Lord that this is not the case; for we ought to provide against and counteract a thing so prejudicial to our service, and one calculated, as we fear, to bring about the complete subversion of Portuguese influence in that part of the world. And in consideration of that which should result in the greatest security, and give the best grounds of success, it has seemed best for our service, in case the said fleet of the Sultan shall have entered into Indian seas and Afonso Dalboquerque still be there, to order him not to make any new arrangements for his return to these kingdoms as we had ordered him, but to remain with you in our service, and that you—because Cochim and Calicut are places of such great and manifest importance, and inseparably bound up with the preservation of our estate in India—remain therein (in India) as captain major and governor, Malaca being also subject to your command ; and that you take command of four hundred of the men who went out with you, choosing those whom you prefer, to keep them with you, over and above those going on service in the said fortresses, and all the fleet on duty at Malaca and Cochim, and that you take up residence in whichever of the said fortresses of Cochim and Calicut that you prefer, and in which you perceive it most advantageous to the security and good of our service. And we hold it good that the lading of the vessels going to India every year, and returning with spices, be under your control without the intervention of any one therein except only the factor and officers of the factory.

“ And we will that all the other fortresses, soldiers, fleets, and forces, as well of sea as of land, remain under the command of Afonso Dalboquerque for our service and in expectation of eventualities, and in order to render aid by reinforcements when required at any place where difficulties may arise in respect of the said fleet of the Sultan ; and he is to labour to destroy it (as we trust in the Lord he will destroy it) ; and we have written to him at length to this effect.

“ And although we repose entire confidence in you, that you will serve us in this business with the great bravery and with the knightly deeds which you are accustomed to perform, yet in an affair so new and untried, and of so great a need, it does not appear to us that you would be able to cope with it unassisted, if the Sultan's fleet were once to gain an entry into India ; for it is impossible that you should be endowed with qualities such as we know are possessed by Afonso Dalboquerque, for the advancement and security of our state in those parts of the world, because of his experience during many years, and because of his acquaintance with the kings and lords who are our true friends and servants, and also because of his knowledge of those who are not so, but opposed to us, and of his knowing the heart and disposition of each one, having been so long among them, and had dealings with them and made trial of them, and also because of the matters in which he can exercise his care, and his ability to destroy those combinations in which he dare not hope to find perfect fidelity of action towards our service, so as thereby to prevent the enemy from combining with one another against us. And for all these reasons and others which may arise, it is expedient that we take advantage of the especial as well as of the general experience which he possesses not only in naval but also in military matters ; and principally we regard the great victories with which Our Lord has ever favoured him in those parts, in all the things to which he has set his hand and which he has undertaken : for we trust in His mercy that He will give him the victory even in this enterprise ; for albeit that many men are available for many things, and in him we ought to have entire confidence, as we have in you, not only for this matter but even greater matters, (although it may turn out to be nothing after all but an idle rumour), by making use of his services, whom Our Lord has already assisted in these very enterprises, it seems likely that the business may thereby be better carried and completed, especially when one knows the method of carrying them on as Afonso Dalboquerque does.

“And because this is a matter which so closely appertains to, and is involved in, our service, honour, and estate, as you will easily perceive, we recommend you and command you by especial orders in no wise to resist this which we desire you to do, but to assist us in the manner herein described.

“And because the military operations which ensue upon the entry of the Sultan’s fleet into India will undoubtedly entail upon us considerable expenditure, we command the officials of Cochim, Calicut, and Malaca, in case Afonso Dalboquerque requires any money or supplies from our stores, to send them to him immediately without the least delay in accordance with the provision which we have on this behalf dispatched to the said Afonso Dalboquerque. We do also notify this to you that you may know in what way we order it, and that you may not prevent it, but rather we desire you heartily to exercise in this matter all the attention possible, in order that all that Afonso Dalboquerque may require in respect of this matter may be thoroughly performed.

“Done at Almeirim, the twentieth day of March, in the year 1516.”

---

CHAPTER XLVIII.

The state in which the great Afonso Dalboquerque left India at the time of his death.

The great Afonso Dalboquerque perceiving the desires of the king D. Manuel for universal peace in India, which he had indeed frequently expressed in his letters, for if a perpetual warfare were maintained it could not be well prosecuted because of the great expenses which it produced, laboured earnestly as long as he lived to maintain peace with all the kings and Hindoo lords of those parts, maintaining with them a constant intercourse, sending his messengers to them and offering to place at their disposal the fleets of the King of Portugal for the destruction of the Moors, and the casting them out of the country, which indeed they had wrested from the native rulers, especially the King of Narsinga, to whom not once but many times he sent Portuguese ambassadors, desirous of procuring his friendship and begging him to turn his attention to operations calculated to crush the Hidalcão and the King of Decam; and with all the other Hindoo kings from the Cape of Comorim up into the interior country, not only along the sea-shore, but also into the midland tracts, he also held friendly relations with a view of attracting them to be on peaceable terms with the King of Portugal, sending ambassadors to them in that king's name, and offering them his fleets and his forces.

This policy was carried out so consistently, that everyone endeavoured to be on terms of the greatest friendship with Afonso Dalboquerque; some showed it by their obedience, which they sent to assure him of by their messengers; others by the tribute which they rendered to him out of their revenues; others listened to the kind and peaceable expressions which he employed when he negotiated with them; and others again were attracted by the jewels and presents which he sent to them on the part of the king D. Manuel; others also offered him sites in their harbours for the erection of fortresses, actuated by a desire to maintain trade and friendship with the Portuguese, for they looked upon them at this time like Indian neighbours. And if death had not carried him off, the magnanimity of his spirit was such, that the King of Portugal would have become, by his assistance, lord of the whole of India; for, putting aside all thought of the Hindoos (whom he knew very well how to manage), the Moors feared him so greatly (because in his manner of conducting wars he was so fierce and dashing), that the Hidalcão, great lord as he was, and at the head of a large force, occupying a commanding position over against Goa which Afonso Dalboquerque had forcibly dispossessed him of, frequently made overtures of friendship to him, fearing lest he should invade his territories. And indeed it would not have been very difficult to carry out such an invasion, if the King of Narsinga had operated in conjunction with him on the interior border, as he had often sent word he would do if required, and sent him many messengers and presents; and even his mother, whose influence was paramount in that country, interposed as a mediator towards the settlement of this friendship, offering him all her forces against anyone whom he wished to attack.

At the time of Afonso Dalboquerque's death peace was universal from Ormuz to Ceylon; and all the kingdom of Cambay, Chaul, Dabul, Goa, Onor, Batalá to Mount De Deli, Cananor, Cochim, Caicoulão to the Cape of Comorim,—all the kings, lords, and marine merchants,—and the interior lands he left so quiet and well-ordered that there was never a nation left so completely conquered and subdued by force of arms as this was. And the land had by this time become so pacified, that the Portuguese used to carry on their merchant business in every place, without being robbed of anything, or being taken captive; and they used to navigate the whole of the Indian sea in their ships, vessels, small and large zambucos, and used to cross the sea in safety from one part to the other; and the natives on their part used to visit Goa with their wares without any molestation being offered to them. And from the Cape of Comorim eastward Afonso Dalboquerque left the kings of those countries in perfect peace and friendship with the King of Portugal, sending to them ambassadors bearing presents in his name, and they sent similarly to him. Among these I may name the King of Pegú, the King of Bengála, the King of Pedir, the King of Siam, the King of Pacé, and the fortress of Malaca in repose. He remained also in the closest terms of peace with the King of China, and the King of Java, the King of Maluco, with the Gores, and all the other neighbouring princes were kept by him in a state of submission and tranquillity.

The principal means by which India was tranquillized, and the spirit of its kings and lords tamed, was that they perceived the intimate relations which the great Afonso

Dalboquerque held with the Xequé Ismael, with intention of overcoming the house of Méca and destroying the Grand Sultan, and all the Moors, sending his ambassadors to them with presents; and also with the Preste João, desiring him to cut through a range of hills and divert the course of the Nile into another bed so as to ruin Cairo; and that they saw him also erecting powerful fortresses in India; they saw him provided with plenty of artillery, plenty of shipping vessels and galleys; they saw him surrounded with numerous Portuguese households, youths and girls born in their land; they saw houses of stone and mortar erected; orchards planted; arable lands cultivated, and the increase of all kinds of stock; they saw his commerce flourishing both on sea and on land; they saw everywhere around them order and justice and good government prevailing, and many other matters of civilization belonging to the people who were settling in the land and intended to establish their progress therein.

The fame of this ran through all the lands of India, Persia, Cairo, and Turkey. The Grand Sultan used to enquire if there were many families established in India, and the Hidalcão how many young men and girls there were in Goa, for they were not afraid of any hurt the Portuguese could do them on the sea, but only of the colonization which this people desired to effect in the land. And when the Moors beheld the [apparently] limited power of fleets and fighting men belonging to the King of Portugal in India, they looked upon all these conquests and successes as nothing less than miracles. Afonso Dalboquerque, with that greatness of spirit which always characterised him, frequently used to say, that he trusted in Our Lord for taking Adem and establishing the Portuguese therein, so as to be thereby enabled to close the Straits with a powerful fortress, to the end that the Grand Sultan should finally abandon his hope of becoming chief lord of India; and when this had been successfully carried out then only to return again to Portugal for a short rest, to lean a little while on the handle of the sword. But Our Lord in his divine providence cut all this short when he took him to himself.

At the time of Alfonso Dalboquerque's death he left in Malaca—twice captured by his arms from the Moors—a very strongly fortified fortress, with ample supplies of artillery and plenty of men to keep it. He left another in Ormuz, completed, and furnished with a large body of soldiers and great quantity of guns, and all that kingdom under the obedience of the King of Portugal—this, too, he had captured on two occasions from the Moors. He left a fortress in Calicut, of great defensive strength, provided with men and guns. He left the fortress of Cochim finished and in the same condition as it now stands—he had commenced to build it on the occasion of his first visit to India—furnished with seven very large elephants employed in the ship-yard on the beach. He rebuilt the fortress of Cananor with stone and mortar, for up to that time it was built with mud.<sup>2</sup> He left fleets attached to all these fortresses for their protection and maintenance. He left the City of Goa fortified with many castles set around the island for its safety ;—this too had been taken twice under his assault from the Moors. He left therein many Portuguese families, many Hindoos converted to Christianity, and a large body of mounted men. He left many armourers, and officers employed in the setting of jewels and precious stones, saddlemakers, buckler-makers, blacksmiths, stone-masons, gun-founders, master-workmen skilled in the manufacture of matchlocks, ships' carpenters, caulkers ; and the greater part of these Portuguese, the rest native Christians, as true vassals and subjects of the King of Portugal as though they were natives of Portugal.

<sup>1</sup> A repouzar hum pouco sobre o cabo da expression.

†ently a proverbial
<sup>2</sup> Taija.

He left the magazines of Goa supplied with large quantities of weapons, many caparisons for horses, many saddles, much store of gunpowder, cannon balls, and all other kinds of necessary munitions of war. He left in the harbour a fleet of fifty sail, counting vessels, ships, and galleys, and fustas—a large assembly for those days—besides the paráos and merchant vessels not taken into consideration in this estimate. He ordered money to be struck at Goa and Malaca in the name of the King of Portugal; and this was current throughout the whole of India. He was the first captain of the King of Portugal who penetrated the Straits of the Red Sea. “Y quien mas hiziere passe a delante”, “And let him who does more than all this take precedence of him,” which is the inscription that the Count Fernão Gonçalves ordered to be set up on his sepulchre, which stands at the entry of the door of the monastery church where he lies buried.

---

CHAPTER XLIX.

How the bones of the great Afonso Dalboquerque were conveyed to Portugal: and how they were carried to [the church of] Our Lady of Grace.

The great Afonso Dalboquerque having made and ratified his testament, wherein he left orders that he should be interred in his chapel of Our Lady which he had built in Goa, on the occasion of returning from the conquest of the Kingdom of Ormuz, and leaving behind a fortress built in that city, as has been already related, he added a codicil to it, in these words: “I declare, that in case of my death in these parts of India—which may Our Lord of His mercy not permit—for certain just causes which move me to this end, and for the rest of my soul, I command that after the flesh a testament, my bones be conveyed to Portugal and interred in the church of Our Lady of Grace, of the Order of St. Augustine, where my ancestors lie.' A matter thus necessarily desired by Afonso Dalboquerque, the conveying of his bones to Portugal, as is shewn by these words in the original, it would have been unnecessary on the part of his son to let fifty-one years pass away without fulfilment: but as this duty was incumbent upon Pero Correa, and being executed he was bound to perform it, the son remains excused, for this very Pero Correa frequently desired the king D. Manuel to give him permission to get them conveyed away, but the king never would consent, declaring that as long as he had the bones of Afonso Dalboquerque safe in Goa, India was secure. But on the death of Pero Correa, this duty devolved upon his son as his heir, who strove hard with King John the Third to obtain this permission; nevertheless it was always denied him by reason of the constant representations made to the king by the inhabitants of Goa, and indeed, of all India, not to yield in the matter. When this king died however, and Queen Dora Catharina<sup>1</sup> our Lady was ruling these kingdoms for the king D. Sebastian: her grandson,<sup>2</sup> he renewed his endeavours to obtain his desire, but several years passed without attaining his wishes, for it was necessary to obtain a Papal bull, couched in terms of greater excommunication against the inhabitants of Goa, to prevent their hindering him. It seemed, indeed, that the fitting opportunity had not even then arrived. At length, having succeeded in getting the necessary permission from the Queen our Lady—for there was now no longer any one there to prevent their carrying out the design.—and on the timely arrival of D. Antão de Noronha<sup>3</sup> in India as Viceroy, who did all in his power to expedite the business, the removal to Lisbon was carried out, and the remains reached the port on the sixth day of the month of April 1566. They were then taken out of the ship in which they had been brought, and carried to the Casa da Misericórdia, or House of Mercy, under the directions of Ruy Lourenço de Tavora, Provedor, or chief officer, accompanied by a large body of Fidalgoes; and there they remained for several days, the funeral car being draped with cloth of crimson velvet, in charge of many of the clergy, who accompanied the body, and these sang mass daily for his soul, while the order was being drawn up for the removal to the principal chapel of Our Lady of Grace, which his son endowed with a competent rental for the interment of the remains.

<sup>1</sup> Daughter of Philip I of Austria: Regent of Portugal, A.D. 1557.

<sup>2</sup> Posthumous son of John, King of Portugal, born A.D. 1554.

<sup>3</sup> See British Museum Lib. MS. 21,902, p. 67; MS. Sloane 197, fol. 56, portrait and life.

When all matters had been put in readiness, on a Sunday, the nineteenth day of the month of May, all the lords and fidalgoes in the court assembled in the Casa da Misericórdia to accompany the remains; and from that place they set out in procession, preceded by the flag of the Misericórdia, and all the brotherhood behind this, the Franciscan friars and the Austin friars, and all the clergy of the city, each one with a torch in his hand; and at the close of the procession the Chapter of the See on the one side, and D. Afonso Anriques, Adaião<sup>1</sup> of the king, and all the staff of the chapel on the other side, and behind these the bier on which were the bones, carried by the brethren, covered over with a large pall of cloth of gold; and in front of the coffin went the provedor, with his wand in hand, and Afonso Dalboquerque, son of the departed Viceroy, on the one side, clad in a mourning cloak, with bare head, and on the other side André Dalboquerque, his nephew, in similar guise; and behind the bier the Duke of Aveiro and his sons and brothers, and all the rest of the lords and fidalgoes and prelates who were in attendance at the court at the time. The crowd of people was so great that the streets would not hold them, and in this order the procession made its way; and as each church was passed the bells that were being rung redoubled their peals, until at length the chapel of Our Lady of Grace was reached. And in the High Chapel there had been prepared a lofty platform with two tiers of steps, which took up almost all the floor, enclosed on all four sides, set with numberless torches, and draped with many carpetings, and thereon they deposited the coffin in which the bones had been laid, bordered with gold tissue, surrounded with a company of his servants, every one dressed in mourning. And over this coffin were hung three flags of the colours and devices of the three kingdoms which the great Afonso Dalboquerque had gained from the Moors in India. Over these flags floated the royal flag which the king D. Manuel had sent to him, as I have already narrated, now very much torn and ragged, for it had been delivered to him on the sixth day of the month of April, in the year 1506. And thus, sixty years after he had set out on his journey, his bones were at length brought back to the monastery of Our Lady of Grace, of the order of St. Augustine, replete with many victories which he had gained in India under that very symbol of the Cross, in the reign of the king D. Sebastião our lord. And when all was quiet Master Fr. Sebastião Toscano<sup>1</sup> began his preaching, of which I say nothing in these commentaries, not only so as not to increase the bulk of my volume, but also because it is already printed.

<sup>1</sup> The Adaião is probably the same as the Adail, already described. See Glossary.

---

<sup>1</sup> See Barbosa Machado, Bibliotheca Lusitana, vol. i, p. 702, for an account of Fr. Sebastião Toscano, and the title of the oration here mentioned, which was printed in Lisbon, 1566. †

CHAPTER L.

Of the pedigree of this excellent Captain Afonso Dalboquerque, his origin, and parentage, and an account of the way in which he spent his youth, until his first voyage to India.

Inasmuch as I have written an ample discourse, collected from the Chronicles and genealogical works of Portugal and Castile, concerning the genealogy of the Alboquerque, their antiquity, and the origin and derivation of the name, which descends by the direct line of the kings of Portugal, Leon, and Castile, for the information of those who are descended from the family, I will not say here more than is necessary for the understanding briefly whence this great Afonso Dalboquerque is descended, and whose son he was.

It is in this way that the pedigree stands.<sup>1</sup> The King D. Dinis,<sup>2</sup> King of Portugal, had by Dona Aldonsa de Sousa, a court lady of high quality,<sup>3</sup> native of Galicia, a natural son, who was called D. Afonso Sanches, and married Dona Tareja Martinz, granddaughter of the king D. Sancho of Castile,<sup>4</sup> surnamed the Brave, and had with her for her dowry the town called Villa de Conde, in Portugal, and many lands in Castile, and Castle Dalboquerque, which he rebuilt, and laid the foundation of the town below it, surrounding it with a wall, tower, barbican, and moat, and peopled it with Portuguese and Castilian families; and then he took up his abode, and over the principal gateway of the town he placed a shield of his arms, which are here figured.

<sup>1</sup> See Appendix for further particulars of the pedigree.

<sup>2</sup> A.D. 1279-1325.

<sup>3</sup> Infançoa, for Infançoa, a feminine form of Infanção, a royal page.

<sup>4</sup> Saicho III, A.D. 1157-1158; or Saicho IV, A.D. 12

These are the arms that the Alboquerque descended from him ought to bear, and not those which they do bear.<sup>1</sup>

On the same door he put up the following inscription :—

EM NOME DE DEOS SEJA TUDO . AMEN . EU DOM APONSO SANCHES SENHOR DESTA CASTELLO DALBOQUERQUE COME-CEI ESTE LAVOR FERIA QUARTA AOS QUATRO DIAS DO
MEZ DE AGOSTO DA ERA DE . 1314 . O QUAL SEJA PERA SERVIÇO DE DEOS E DE SANCTA MARIA SUA MADRE SAL-VAMENTO DE MINHA HONRA ENDEREQAMENTO DA MINHA FAZENDA PORQUE AS COUSAS QUE A DEOS SÃO FEITAS
TOPAS ADIANTE HÃO DE IR . E AS QUE SEM ELLE SÃO TOPAS HÃO DE FENECER .

N UNKEM PRAZA A DIOS QUE HAJA BOA GLORIA O MES-TRE PROPRIO QUE FEZ ESTE CASTELLO .

<sup>1</sup> Via, those figured on the title-page of this edition of 1774. The arms figured in the text above are a very charming example of the herald's art as practised in Portugal, where the principal and eponymic charges of the Royal Houses, LEON and CASTILE, are arranged alternately

In God's name be everything. Amen. I, Dom Afonso Sanches, Lord of this Castle Dalboquerque, began this work on Wednesday, the fourth day of the month of August, in the year 1314 of the [Spanish] Era<sup>1</sup> [A.D. 1276]; and may it be to the service of God and of Saint Mary His Mother, the salvation of my soul, augmentation of my honour, and improvement of my estate, for all those things which are done to God's glory shall prosper, and all those things which are done without God must perish.

May it also please God that the Master Mason who built this Castle attain to the glory he merits.

This D. Afonso Sanches Lord Dalboquerque had a son by his wife, named D. João Afonso Dalboquerque, who inherited his estates and became a great lord in Castile, being the first who took this name of Dalboquerque. He built the Castle-keep [Torre de Menagem] of Codiceira, and over on a cross, cantoned with the ROYAL ARMS of PORTUGAL. The arms which are figured on this page, viz., those used by the son of this Afonso, are simply those of PORTUGAL and FRANCE (five fleurs-de-lis in saltire, by error for semé-de-lis).

<sup>1</sup> This Era is calculated from the Conquest of Spain by the Emperor Augustus, B.C. 38. It prevailed in Portugal as late as A.D. 1415, if not later. The fourth of August fell on Tuesday in A.D. 1276. Era is, however, occasionally used for anno, and may be so used perhaps in this passage. But the day of the week does not correspond.

it placed the shield of his arms, which are represented at the beginning of this book, mingling with the quinas<sup>1</sup> of Portugal, the fleurs-de-lis which were borne as the arms of his mother, who was descended from the Royal Family of France, and these the Albuquerque now bear.

From this D. João Afonso descends the great captain Afonso Dalboquerque, who was the second son of Gonçalo Dalboquerque, Lord of Villa Verde, and of Dona Leonor de Menezes, daughter of D. Alvaro Gonçalvez de Ataíde, first Count of Atouguia and of the Countess Dona Guiomar de Castro, his wife. When he was quite a lad, he was brought up in the household of D. Afonso the Fifth,<sup>2</sup> and when this king died, he went to Arzila,<sup>3</sup> and after a few years returned to the service of the king Dom João the Second, his son, and held the office of Estribeiro mór,<sup>4</sup> chief equerry to the king. When King João died,<sup>5</sup> Afonso Dalboquerque returned to Arzila, accompanied by his brother, who fell fighting against the Moors; and in consequence of this bereavement he returned to Portugal to the service of the king Dom Manuel,<sup>6</sup> and entered the royal body-guard. Then he accompanied the fleet that operated at Taranto, and took part in the capture of Graciosa,<sup>7</sup> and in fact was present in all the military actions that happened in his day in these kingdoms, up to the time of his first voyage to India.

<sup>1</sup> From quina, a cinque or quincunx, in reference to the five escutcheons in cross, each charged with five roundles in saltire, in the shield of arms of PORTUGAL, which are thus blazoned:—Argent, five escutcheons in cross azure, each charged with as many plates, on a border, gules, seven castles, or. See p. 215.

<sup>2</sup> A.D. 1438-1481.

<sup>3</sup> Arzila, or Acila, in Morocco, stormed and taken in A.D. 1471, by Alphonso V of Portugal, but retaken by the Moors, and again captured by the Portuguese.

<sup>4</sup> Called Estaleyro Mor in vol. i, p. x.

<sup>5</sup> A.D. 1495.

<sup>6</sup> A.D. 1495-1521.

<sup>7</sup> Island of Graciosa, off the west of Morocco.

Afonso Dalboquerque never married, but he had a natural son,<sup>1</sup> whom he appointed inheritor of all his property, as well as of the services which he had performed towards three kings of these kingdoms; and the king D. Manuel desired—because of the obligation he was under of making a formal acknowledgment of his father's merits—that his name should be changed to that of Afonso Dalboquerque, his father. This son married Dona Maria de Noronha, daughter of the Lord D. Antonio, first Count of Linhares, who was very well disposed towards him, and of the Countess Dona Joanna da Silva, daughter of D. Diogo da Silva, first Count of Portalegre. And after his marriage the king sent him in the fleet of Savoy as captain of a galleon, with the infante, Dona Beatriz, his daughter. And on his return from his voyage, hoping that the king D. Manuel would at length reward him out of satisfaction for the services done by his father, and in accordance with the promises that had been made to his father-in-law, the Count of Linhares, he found him dead, and thus he was left without the recompense that the services of his father richly merited, not only because of the little care his parent took to prosecute his own interests, but also because of the altered aspect of the times.

<sup>1</sup> See vol. i, pp. xlvii-1.

APPENDIX.

---

A.

TITLE-PAGE, DEDICATORY EPISTLE, AND COLOPHON OF THE FIRST EDITION OF THE COMMENTARIES, FROM THE UNIQUE COPY IN THE SUNDERLAND LIBRARY. SALE NO. 3657.

---

COMMENTARIOS de Afonso Dalboquerque capitão geral & governador da India, collegidos por seu filho Afonso Dalboquerque das proprias cartas que elle escreuia ao muyto poderoso Rey dõ Manuel o primeyro deste nome, em cujo tempo gouernou a India Vam repartidos em quatro partes segũdo os tempos de seus trabalhos.

Com Priv[i]legio Real.

* * * * *
Ao SERENISSIMO PRINCIPE | DE PORTUGAL DOM BASTIAM
NOSSE SENHOR

Duas rezões principalmête antre outras muytas me obrigarão (Serenissimo Principe) a copillar esta historia dos grandes feytos Dafonso Dalboquerq' capitã geral & governador da India: áqual pus nome Cômêtarios, polos colligir dos proprios originâes q' elle no meyo dos acõtecimêtos de seus trabalhos escreuia a el Rey dõ Manuel vosso visauoo, q' nosso Senhor tẽ na sua gloria. A primeyra, pera q' V. A. veja neste pequeno volume, cõ quanto sofrimento & trabalho de sua pessoa este seu capitã conquistou os reynos & senhorios da India (q' V. A. sucederã depois de largos annos de vida del Rey dõ Joam o terceyro nosso senhor vosso auó), & a obrigaçã que tem aos netos & parêtes daquelles q' nesta conquista acabarã seus dias. A outra foy, ver eu como os q' escreueram a historea da India (cõ tanto trabalho & louuor de seus engenhos) ou por terẽ hũa occupaçam geral em contar tudo o q' aconteceo aos Portugueses naquelles partes, des o principio de seu descobrimẽto, ou por falta das informações q' teneram, passará breuemente por muytas cousas q' Afonso Dalboquerq̃ passou nesta conquista. E nam deũe de ter menos credito & authoridade ante A. V. estes seus Cõmentarios polos eu colligir sendo seu filho, do q' Cesar tẽ polo mũdo escreuendo de sy mesmo ha tantos annos. E porq̃ tratar aqui de seus lououres (em q' auia muyto q' dizer) seria fazer outra obra mayor que a sua, nã direy mais q' aquelles q' vão semezados por este liuro, & o q' dizia hum Pero Gomez homẽ antigo na India, o qual sendo já muyto velho (vendo as desordẽs della depois de sua morte) se ya em Goa cõ hum páo na mão á sua sepultura, & dizia. O grande capitão, tu me fizeste quanto mal podeste, mas eu nam te posso negar que foste o mór cometedor & sofredor de trabalhos que ouue no mundo, aleuantate q' se perde o que tu ganhaste. V. A. azeite, de mym este pequeno seruiço q' lhe faço nesta sua primeyra jdade, pois jaa a não tenho palhe poder fazer outros, mayóres. E se o estillo da historea nã for tam elegante como sua grandeza merecia, desculpo (sic) o atreuimento q' tiueem lha offerecer cõ o pouco q' aprendi da reitorica, cõ escreuer ueste (fôr neste) estillo rudo a verdade do que passou.

*                     *                     *                     *                     *

Foram jmpressos estes Com- | mentarios Dafonso Dalboquerque capitam geral & go- | uernador da India na cidade de Lixboa, por Joam | de Barreyra jmpressor del Rey nosso senhor. | Acabaranse de jmpremir vespera de sam Se- | bastiã, dezanoue dias de mes de Ianeyro | da era de
mil & quinhentos & cinco- | enta & sete annos, em cujo dia | o Principe dõ Bastiam nosso | senhor a quem esta obra |
vay offerecida, fez |
tres annos. |

B.

PEDIGREE OF AFONSO DALBOQUERQUE, AND GENEALOGICAL NOTES OF THE FAMILY.

Lansdowne MS. 189, f. 55.

TITULO DOS ALBUQUERQUES SEGUNDO SE ACHA NO LIVRO ANTIGUO DAS LINHAGE'S E CHRONICA D'ELREY DOM DINIS.

§ El-Rey Dom Dinis de Portugal entre os filhos bastardos que teue, houue dous, de hũa Dona Chamada Mor Afonso.

§ Dom Afonso Sanchez, De que trataremos, e Martim Afonso Chichorro, segundo achamos em hũ liuro das lembranças da torre do tombo, por hũa carta que dise ser tirada dos Registros do año de 1439, E a carta no año de 1450.

§ Dom Afonso Sanchez foy o principal filho bastardo de todos os d'ElRey Dom Dinis, E mais estimado delle, foy Conde, e senhor d'Albuquerque, e de Codiçeyra, e de Villa de Conde e de outras terras, e mordomo mór d'ElRey seu Pay, e a quem o dito Rey quis grande bem, e lhe foy tão affeioado, que lhe assacarão, que o queria fazer Rey; E sobre isso, e por amor delle, teue ElRey grandes differenças, e guerras, e arroydos, e mortes de parte a parte, com o Infante seu filho herdeyro, que despois Reyno, e foy Rey Dom Afonso o 4º.=foy cosado com Dona Tareja mÿz filha do Conde Dom João Afonso telo de Meneses senhor d'Albuquerque, Polo qual casamento foy senhor d'Albuquerq' e lhe ficou por appellido de sua linhagem=Da qual Dona Tareja houue Dom João Afonso d'Albuquerque, que disserão o Bom, senhor d'Albuquerque, e de Medelim, e de outras muytas terras.

§ Este Dom Afonso Sanchez, e a Condessa Dona Tareja Miz sua molher, fizerão, e dotarão o Mosteyro de Sancta Clara de Villa de Conde; E a pouoa de Dom Martim, e

outros lugares, e muitas Rentas, e lugares, como se ve na Instituição, que fizerão, e ordenarão. O qual mosteyro edificarão no Castello, e Paços de sua morada; E assy estão sepultados na Capella que chamão dos Senhores, os quaes mudou da Galili, onde d'antes estauão sepultados para esta nobre Capella onde agora estão—Este Dom Afonso Sanchez se foy, e desnaturou para Castella com rreceo da má vontade do Infante seu Irmão Dom Afonso; De que Portugal ficou perdendo Albuquerque, e Codeseyra, e para sempre ficarão a Castella.

§ Don João Afonso o Bom, Senhor de Albuquerque, a que as Chronicas de Castella chamão o bom de Portugal, filho deste Dom Afonso Sanchez Senhor d'Albuquerque herdou, e foy Senhor da casa de seu Pay. Da parte que tinha em Castella, foy senhor d'Albuquerque, de Melinde, de SeyraZagala, e Alconchel, e outras muytas Villas, terras, e lugares, e foy hũ dos grandes Senhores de Castella em seu tempo. E foy Ayo, e Mordomo mor d'ElRey Dom Pedro o Cru. Este foy o que andou em tempo d'ElRey Dom P<sup>o</sup>. com os grandes de Castella, como se ve na dita Chronica, foy casado com Dona Isabel de Meneses filha de Dom Telo de Meneses, que foy filho do Infante Dom Afonso de Molina, e de Dona Maria filha do Infante Dom Manoel Irmão d'ElRey Dom Afonso o X<sup>o</sup>. E da Infanta Dona Costança d'Aragão filha d'ElRey, como se mostra no liuro das linhagês no tit<sup>o</sup>. 24, § 3<sup>o</sup>. e no tit<sup>o</sup>. 21, f<sup>as</sup>. 57. De que houue Dom Martim Gil d'Albuquerque Adiantado de Murçia, que ElRey Dom P<sup>o</sup>. o Cru mandou matar com poçonha, sendo moço, e estando em rrefêns, como se conta na Chronica do dito Rey de Castella no anno 4<sup>o</sup>. no cap<sup>o</sup>. 23. folh. 22.

§ E houue bastardos Dom Fernando d'Albuquerque, e a condessa Dona Britis de Albuquerque, molher que foy de Dom Afonso Telo de Meneses filho de Barcello, e da Raynha Dona Leonor, e Dom Martim Af

Meneses, o que matou ElRey Dom P<sup>o</sup>. de Castella em Touro, E a condessa Dona Maria d'Albuquerque molher de Dom Gonçalo telo de Meneses Conde de Neyua, e de Faria, e Senhor de Cantanhede.

§ Dom Fernando Afonso d'Albuquerque filho bastardo de Dom João Afonso o bom Senhor d'Albuquerque, e de Medelim se veo para Portugal, onde foy Mestre de Sanctiago.

---

Lansdowne MS. 189, f. 581b.

TITULO DOS ALBUQUEQ'S DE GOMIDE, QUE AGORA HA EM
PORTUGAL.

§ G<sup>co</sup>. L<sup>co</sup>. de Gomide foy f<sup>o</sup>. de Nuno Miz de Gomide natural de Portalegre, e este he o de Portalegre v<sup>e</sup> de dous Irmãos.

§ Foy hũ homẽ m<sup>to</sup>. honrrado em tempo d'ElRey Dom João o 1<sup>o</sup>, E seu Escriuão Da Puridade, e m<sup>to</sup> priuado foy sr. de Villa Verde, e outras heranças q' deixou em Morgado, e foy Alcayde Mor d'Obidos. foy casado cõ Jnes Leytoa f<sup>a</sup>. de Vasco Leytão ou de Gil frõ o farisen. De q' houue João Gl'z de Gomide, e M<sup>a</sup>. Gl'z molher de Lopo da Cunha Veedor do Infante Dom Anrrique f<sup>o</sup>. do dito Rey Dom João e Dona Isabel Leytoa molher de Ruy Mëz Cerneyra. O qual Gonçalo L<sup>co</sup>. Jaz sepultado no cap<sup>o</sup>. de nossa S<sup>ra</sup>. da Graça de Ls<sup>a</sup>. E este, ou hũ seu Irmão dizem que fez os Morgados dos L<sup>cos</sup>. de Miranda, de Guimarães, os quaes trazem por armas hũz gomiz q' trazião os Gomides. E dizẽ q' deixou este seu Morg<sup>do</sup>. a hũ sobr<sup>o</sup>. O qual denia ser G<sup>co</sup>. Caldre. q' foy Escriuão da Cam<sup>a</sup>. d'ElRey Dom João o 1<sup>o</sup>. E seruia pollo dito G<sup>co</sup>. L<sup>co</sup>. E este so soube o segredo Da tomada de Cepta, e no dia q' a tomarão chegou este G<sup>co</sup>. L<sup>co</sup>. com 400. homẽs de sua Libre, e a mor parte de sua Criação e pedio alli a ElRey o fizesse (como fee) caual<sup>o</sup>. sendo nisso o prim<sup>o</sup>.

§ João Gl'z de Gomide f<sup>o</sup>. deste G<sup>co</sup>. L<sup>co</sup>. foy senhor do Morgado de Villa Verde e foy casado com Leonor d'Albu-

querq̃ f<sup>a</sup>. de G<sup>co</sup>. Vaz de Mello o moço Sr. de Castanhr<sup>a</sup>. e Pouos. De q' houue G<sup>co</sup>. d'Albuquerque, e João d'Albuquerque-azeyte, e P<sup>o</sup>. d'Albuquerque azeyte, e Lopo d'Albuquerque dos Oliváes, e Dona Isabel molher de Fernão de Sousa Alcayde Mor de Leyria f<sup>o</sup>. de Diogo Lopez de Sousa o velho Mordomo Mor d'ElRey Dom———.<sup>1</sup>

CAUSA PORQ' OS GOMIDES SE CHAMÃO DE ALBUQUERQUE.

§ Estes se chamão d'Albuquerque polla may q' era neta de V<sup>co</sup>. Miz da Cunha o velho, e de Dona Tareja d'Albuquerque sua molher 2<sup>a</sup>. q' foy f<sup>a</sup>. do Mestre de S<sup>t</sup>.tiago Dõ Fernando A<sup>o</sup>. d'Albuquerque. O qual foy f<sup>o</sup>. de Dom João d'Albuquerque, como vereis no tit<sup>o</sup>. dos Albuquerquees.

§ G<sup>co</sup>. d'Albuquerque f<sup>o</sup>. de João Gl'z de Gomide foy sr. do Morgado de Villa Verde e foy casado com Dona Leonor de Mũs f<sup>a</sup>. de Dom Alu<sup>ro</sup>. Gl'z d'Atayde 1<sup>o</sup>. Conde de Atouguaia. De q' houue Fernão d'Albuquerque, e A<sup>o</sup>. d'Albuquerque, e Alu<sup>ro</sup>. Gl'z d'Atayde q' foy clerigo, e Prior de Villa Verde, e Martim Gl'z d'Atayde q' os Mouros matarão em Arzilla, e Dona Costança de Castro, molher de Dom Fernando de Noronha Guouernador q' foy da Ex<sup>a</sup>. Senhora e Dona Isabel d'Albuquerque molher de P<sup>o</sup>. da Silva Relle, Alcayde Mor de Porto de Mos, e outras freyras.

§ Fernão d'Albuquerque f<sup>o</sup>. 1<sup>o</sup>. deste G<sup>co</sup>. d'Albuquerque herdou o Morg<sup>do</sup>. de seu Pay e foy Vedor do Mestre de Sanctiago Dõ Jorge f<sup>o</sup>. bastardo d'ElRey Dom João o 2<sup>o</sup>. foy casado com Dona C<sup>na</sup>. da Silva f<sup>a</sup>. de Di<sup>o</sup>. da Silva thr<sup>o</sup>. Mor d'ElRey Dom A<sup>o</sup>. o 3<sup>o</sup>. e Irmão do dito P<sup>o</sup>. da Silva Relle. De q' houue Dona Guiomar d'Albuquerque molher de Dom Mart<sup>o</sup>. de Noronha, f<sup>o</sup>. de Dom P<sup>o</sup>. de Noronha Mordomo Mor d'ElRey, Dom Joãa o 2<sup>o</sup>. e Comen-

<sup>1</sup> Blank in the MS.

dador Mor de St. tiago, e Dona Joana d'Albuquerque molher de Jorge barreto de Crasto Comendador de Crasto Verde e por este casam<sup>to</sup>. veo este Morgado de Villa Verde aos Noronhas.

§ O Grande A<sup>o</sup>. d'Albuquerque f<sup>o</sup>. deste G<sup>co</sup>. d'Albuquerque, e Irmão deste Fernão d'Albuquerque, foy Estibr<sup>o</sup>. Mor d'ElRey Dom João o 2<sup>o</sup>. Capitão Mor, e Guouernador da India, onde tomou aos Mouros Ormuz, Goa, e Malaca, onde Jaz sepultado. E dahi o mandou trazer seu f<sup>o</sup>. E fez outras m<sup>tas</sup>. Cousas de q' estão os da India cheos, E o Liuro q' de seus feytos compos seu f<sup>o</sup>. bastardo A<sup>o</sup>. d'Albuquerque. E não foy casado.

§ A<sup>o</sup>. d'Albuquerque f<sup>o</sup>. natural deste grande A<sup>o</sup>. d'Albuquerque foy casado com Dona Ma. de Noronha f<sup>a</sup>. de Dom Ant<sup>o</sup>. de N<sup>ra</sup>. Conde de Linhares. De q' houue Ant<sup>o</sup>. d'Albuquerque, q' falleceo moço, E Dona Joana d'Albuquerque molher q' foy de Dom Fr<sup>co</sup>. de Castro o magro Capitão d'Evora e Comendador de ———<sup>1</sup>. E della não houue geração. E casou 2<sup>o</sup>. vez cõ Dona C<sup>na</sup>. de M<sup>ns</sup>. f<sup>a</sup>. de Dom M<sup>el</sup>. de M<sup>ns</sup>, q' viue em Almada Camareyro Mor q' foy de sr. Dom Dr<sup>te</sup>. Condestable de Portugal, e Duque de Guimarães. De q' não houue geracão, e houue bastardo João A<sup>o</sup>. d'Albuquerque.

§ P<sup>o</sup>. d'Albuquerque d'alcunha azeite f<sup>o</sup>. 2<sup>o</sup>. de João Glz' de Gomide, e Irmão de G<sup>co</sup>. d'Albuquerque foy casado com Dona Guiomar de St. Payo f<sup>a</sup>. de Amadis Vaz de St. Payo Juiz da Alfandega de Ls<sup>a</sup>. De q' houue Lopo d'Albuquerque azeyte, e Jorge d'Albuquerque, e Fran<sup>co</sup>. da Cunha, e Dona Leonor d'Albuquerque Prioressa do Saluador de Lisboa.

§ Lopo d'Albuquerque azeyte f<sup>o</sup>. 1<sup>o</sup>. deste P<sup>o</sup>. d'Albuquerque foy casado com Dona Isabel f<sup>a</sup>. de P<sup>o</sup>. Botelho Juiz da Alfandega de Lisboa. De q' houue V<sup>te</sup>. d'Albuquerque, Dona Joana, e Dona C<sup>na</sup>. Freyras no Mostr<sup>o</sup>. do Saluador.

<sup>1</sup> Blank in the MS.

§ V<sup>to</sup>. d'Albuquerque f<sup>o</sup>. deste Lopo d'Albuquerque azeyte andou na India em tpo do Grande A<sup>o</sup>. d'Albuquerque.

§ Jorge d'Albuquerque f<sup>o</sup>. 2<sup>o</sup>. de P<sup>o</sup>. d'Albuquerque azeite, e Irmão de Lopo d'Albuquerque foy casado com Dona C<sup>na</sup>. f<sup>a</sup>. de Jan Alz' (Alvarez) da Porta de Mancos de Santarem dalcunha Rabo d'ovelha hũ homẽ honrrado dó Campo. De q' houue P<sup>o</sup>. d'Albuquerque.

§ P<sup>o</sup>. d'Albuquerque f<sup>o</sup>. deste Jorge d'Albuquerque, foy o 1<sup>o</sup>. Capitão d'Ormuz, q' o fez A<sup>o</sup>. d'Albuquerque seu thio. Não casou. E houue bastardo Ant<sup>o</sup>. d'Albuquerque'.

* * * * *

---

C.

DESCRIPTION OF LOPO SOAREZ

(SUCCESSOR OF AFONSO DALBUQUERQUE).

FROM PEDRO BARRETTO DE BESENDE'S "LIVRO DO ESTADO DA INDIA ORIENTAL".

British Museum, Sloane MS. 197, f. 13b.

Lopo Soares de Albergaria filho do Chanseller Mor Rui Gomes daluarengua segundo Governador e Treseyro no governo do Estado da Jndia: Partio de Lisboa em sette de Abril de mil quinhentos e quinze e chegou a Goa em oÿto de Setr<sup>o</sup>. delle auendo tomado Mossambique=Guouernou tres Annos—foÿ em huma Armada ao Mar Roxo, destrohiu Zeyla Çidade de Mouros porq' lhe querião impedir a Agoa e Mantimentos: edificou as fortallezas de Coulã e Collumbo e fes ho Rey tributario—Em seu Tempo se descobrio a Enseada de Bengalla e a Costa de China athe a Çidade de Cantam q' he a prinsipal das provisias della por Fernão peres de Andrade tambem se descobrio o Reyno Sião e outras partes do Sul: Leou de Lisboa para a Yndia hum Embajxador do preito João q' Afonso De Albuquerque' auia mandado=Acabado o seu gouerno se foj para o Rejno em quinhento e desanoue. As Armadas q' em seu Tempo passarã de portugual ha Jndia se seguem :

ANNO DE 1515.

ARMADA 17<sup>a</sup>.

TREZE NAOS.

Em sete de Abril do Anno de Mil quinhentos e quinze despedio ElRej Dom Manoel Pera a Jndia huma Armada de Treze naos de q' forã por Capitãis: S<sup>r</sup>. Lopo Soares De Albergaria gouernador=Simã da Silueyra filho de Nuno Míz da Silu<sup>ra</sup>. S<sup>r</sup> de Gois=Dom Guterre de Monroj filho de Dom Afonso de Monroj Cauallejro q' foj da Ordem De Alcantara em Castella=Christouã de Tauora filho de Lourenso Piz de Tauora Alvaro Telles Barretto filho de João Telles=Fran<sup>co</sup>. de Tauora filho de P<sup>o</sup>. Lourenso de Tauora s<sup>r</sup>. do Moguadouro=Dom Joam da Silueyra filho de Dom Martinho da Silu<sup>ra</sup>. Jorge de Brito copeyro Mor delRej Dom Manoel filho de Artur de Brito Alcajde Mor De Beja=Alvaro Baretto de Montemor ho nouo=Simã de Alcasoua filho de P<sup>o</sup>. de Alcassoua em huma Nao de Mercadores em q' Fernã Peres de Andrade Auia de Ir por Capitão Ao descobrimento da China cõ quem Auião de Ir Jorge Mascarenhas filho de Joã gliz Montaãt=E Joanes Impolle Mercador Aos quais Lopo Soares auia de dar Nauios na India=Dom Alejxo de Menezes por Capitam mor do Mar da Jndia An<sup>to</sup>. Lobo Falcã=e Diogo Mendes de Vasconcellos=Embarcarã nestas naos M<sup>tos</sup>. fidalgos e Mil e quinhentos homẽs de gerra chegarã a Goa em oÿto de Set<sup>co</sup>. cõ hos dous Nauios q' ho Anno atras auia partido em demanda da Ylha de Sam Lourenso destas Naos ficarã Algumas na Jndia seruindo e as mais tomada Carga em Cochim derã a Vella para o Rejno em Jan<sup>ro</sup>. do anno de Mil quin<sup>tos</sup> e desaseis e nellas n de Noronha em falta d a quem ElRey mandava Jr nellas pera o Reyno, depois de Entregar ho gouerno a Lopo Soares: o qual era fallesido.

ANNO DE 1516.

ARMADA 18<sup>a</sup>.

SEIS NAOS.

Em Vinte e dous de Março do anno de Mil quinhentos e desaseis despedio ElRey Dom Manoel P. A Jndia huma Armada de seis Naos de q' erã capitães S<sup>r</sup>. Joam da Silueyra Capitam Mor q' foý ter a Quilloa cõ hos mastros quebrados—An<sup>to</sup>. de Lima q' se perdeo em Sam L<sup>ro</sup>.—Francisco de Souza Mansias em Nossa S<sup>ora</sup>. da Lus q' se perdeo mas saluou a gente Afonso Lopes da Costa Garsia da Costa seu yrmã—e Diogo de Vnhos A dar auizo da armada do Soldam do Caýro q' estaua em Sues As que nam se perderã forã a India em fim de Out<sup>ro</sup>. o Capitam Mor depois de consertar os Mastros foý no Anno seguinte a Yndia—os dous Jrmãos com a[s] suas naos e outras das q' Andauã no seruiso do Estado dos Annos atras Partirã para ho Reyno depois de tomarem Carga em Jan<sup>ro</sup>. de mil quinhentos e desasete: e com boa Viagem chegarã a saluamento—Diogo de Vnhos Capitam e pilloto de hum Nauio em q' foý dar Auizo da Armada do Soldam como fica dito: com partir des dias depois das naos teue tam bom tempo e fortuna q' chegou hum mes primeýro q' ellas a Jndia e em breue tempo tornou a Voltar ao Reyno.

ANNO DE 1517.

ARMADA 19<sup>a</sup>.

OYTO NAOS.

Em noue de Abril do anno de Mil quinhentos e desasete despedio ElRey Dom Manoel pera a Jndia huma Armada de Oyto naos em duas capitancias ou escoadras—Da prim<sup>ra</sup>. q' era de seis Naos erã Capitães S<sup>r</sup>. Pin<sup>to</sup>. de Saldanha Capitã Mor, em Nossa S<sup>ora</sup>. da Serra—Tristam de Menezes filho Bastardo de Dom Rodrigo de Menezes Afonso Enriq<sup>ue</sup> Sepulueda filho de Fernã de Sepulueda—M<sup>el</sup>. de L

em Sanctiago q' hia para Capitam de Calecut Fernã de Alcasoua q' foý o pr<sup>o</sup>. Veedor da faz<sup>da</sup>.—e P<sup>o</sup>. Correa : ou Coresma pera feýtor de Cochim.

E para Malluquo duas Naos e Capitãis dellas erã S<sup>r</sup>. Dom Nuno Manoel Capitã Mor—e Rafael Castanho—Esta Armada chegou a India em desasete de Set<sup>ro</sup>. o Capitam Mor An<sup>to</sup>. de Saldanha ficou nella pera servir de Capitã Mor do Estreyto de Meca como já outra Ves ho auia sido na era de mil quinhentos e quatro e as quatro naos q' auia de voltar depois de ýrem tomar carga a Cochim partirã pero ho Reyño em Jan<sup>ro</sup>. de mil quin<sup>tos</sup>. e desoyto Aonde chegarã a saluam<sup>to</sup>. Neste Anno foý a prim<sup>ra</sup>. Armada para a China e se leuantou hõ prim<sup>ro</sup>. Mouro Mallauar cosario a Roubar por mar cõ Nauios.

D.

ACCOUNT OF CURIATE.

British Museum, Sloane MS. 197, f. 115.

DESCRIPSAM DA FORTALLEZA DE CURIATE QUE HE A PRIMEYRA DO ESTREYTO DE ORMUS ANTES DE MASCATE.

A fortalleza de Curiate esta doze legoas Antes de Mascatte p<sup>a</sup>. o Cabo de Rosalgate sitta na Costa braua a Borda da Praýa Onde nã ha Rio nem enseada nenhuma mais q' hum Ilheo pegado e continuo com a terra q' he som<sup>to</sup>. Ilheo em lansar ao Mar hum Outeýro piqueno ho qual em Agoas Vivas fica em nado Neste lugar se abrigã Algumas Embarcasõis de pescadores do Sul e Sudueste porque pera grandes nã ha fundo ao longo delle : Esta neste Ilheo hum Balluarte Couza piquena do tamanho de huma Caza de dos passos andantes de prassa Em quadro que se fes pera jugar daquy
 'ilharia                      mpo e Mar : oje nã tem nenhuma= q' fallamos esta aborda da praýa

he Em coadro nam Prefeyto senã hum pouco mais comprida q' larga. Tera de Comprim<sup>to</sup>. nos dous Lansos de Muro q' vam da praya pera Terra sincoenta passos Andantes, e de Largura Trinta. O Muro he de Adobes Como todos os mais da Arabia q' fizerã Mouros como a estes de quatro brasos e mea de Altura e tres palmos de grosura, nã tem parapeytos mais q' seteyras. Tem quatro Balluartes nos q<sup>tro</sup>. quantos quadrados cõ des passos andantes de Vam cõ seus sobrados e hum delles serue de Viuenda do Capitam portuges q' nelle assiste: E os outros dos Lascaris q' nesta fortalleza e em outra mais Interior e no Balluarte do Ilheo estã q' são por todos oytenta=hã mais dentro nesta fortalleza hum Almazem para mantimentos; Outro para Munisõis: hum posso de Agoa sem mais Outra Couza=A fortalleza q' dizemos esta mais Interior desta fica hum tiro De falcã pella terra dentro entre hũs palmares para hos defender he em triangullo, Cada Lanso de Muro de des passos andantes de comprimento tres brasas e mea de Alto: e dous palmos e meio de grosso de Adobes sem parapeytos, e cõ seteyras. Estam duas poucasõis de Arabios e Balucos pella terra dentro quatrocentos passos distantes huma da Outra de Trezentos Moradores cada hũa pescadores e soldados q' tambem Acodem a defender As terras, Estão sercados cõ seus muros, e Balluartes pera se defenderem: forã estas fortallezas DelRey de Ormus onde elle Asistia depois de se perder Ormus quis Entregallas e por essa Cauza as mandou senhorear Ruý Freyre q' Ja nã pode ser sem gerra. He esta Terra de Coriate fresquissima com muytos palmares q' fazem quazi todo ho gasto de fortallezas, e se proue Mascate de muyta Verdura e Mantimentos=Nã hã aquy nenhuma Artilharia mais q' Espingardas dos Lascaris q' bastam pera os da terra e tambem em Auendo Gerra se manda logo Vir de Mascatte:— o gasto q' esta fortalleza fas a sua Mug<sup>de</sup>. he o seguinte:—

* * * * *

---

E.

DESCRIPTION OF ORMUS.

British Museum, Sloane MS. 197, f. 157.

Da fortalleza de Ormus nam tratey de fazer descripsão por não ser oye do Estado E somente lhe pus aquy a Planta<sup>1</sup> da forma q' era pera memoria, pera q' se algũ Dia D's premitir q' torne a ser do Estado se saber o q' Auia sido, porq' em nosso poder Nam teue Nunqua A Caua aberta de todo como agora tem comessada sÿ : mas como se Nam Cuydou q' lhe susedesse Nunqua tal nam tratarã .Nunqua de lhe abrir : porq' se lha tiuerã aberta Como o disse Afonso de Albuquerque' puderã dormir seguros Mas a Confiansa dos portuguezes he m<sup>tas</sup>. vezes Cauza, e seus descuydos, dos maos susesos q' ham tido : O persa lhe mandou Abrir a Caua e fazer ponte Leuadissa Com Balluartes na porta e pontes da Caua cõ que está seguros e sera Neessesario hum serco muy dillatado e sem elle se pode perder a esperansa de se tornar a tomar.

Dista Ormus de Mascate sesenta legoas em Altura de Vinte e sete graos : Tinha ElRey de Ormus nesta Ilha huma Çidade muy populloza Onde Elle Reyñia com hos seus fidalgos : Abitada de Christãos e Mouros q' por todos seriam Oyto Mil Almas = Era muy frequentada de Mercadores, Persios :—Turcos = Arabios :—Mogores = Armenios gentios = Tinha sua Mag<sup>de</sup>. nella huma Alfandega q' lhe Rendia cada anno duzentos mil pardoas e lhe pudera Render muyto mais se ouera ter conta cõ sua fazenda = Era huma dos boas fortallezas q' Auia no Estado, e muy bem Artilhada cõ dous engenhos de poluora e huma Ribeyra de fustas e galleottas pera as Armadas daquelle Estreyto = Auia na-

<sup>1</sup> See vol. i, p. 112.

quella fortalleza afora a See e a Mizericordia hum, Conuento de sancto Agost°. com vinte Rellegiozos = Ha Ilha Piquena nã tem mais em sÿ de comprido q' huma Legoa : e de Largo hum quarto de legoa nã tem mais em sÿ que sal, enxofre : e sisternas de Agoa da Chuua : e hum Cano de Agoa q' ElRey de Ormus Achou em Tambaque na põta da Ilha q' he muy sallobre : cõ tudo isto era muy prouida e abundante de tudo ho nessesario mais q' outra deste Oriente :— De fronte de Ormus na terra firme da Persia na fralda do mar q' era toda DelRey de Ormus estaua a fortalleza do Bandel do Comoram q' mais he huma Caza forte q' fortalleza Onde hiam Parar todas as Cafillas da Persia, de Larn, e outras Partes.

F.

DESCRIPTION OF BASSORA.

British Museum, Sloane MS. 197, f. 161.

DESCRIPSAM DE BASSORA E VIAGËIS Q' DE MASCATE SE FAZEM

A ELLA.

Fasse tambem Viagem de Mascate pera Basora em todo ho anno em a qual vão tomar huma Ilha q' chamão a da Carga q' esta çento e sincoenta Legoas de Mascate. E nesta Nauegassã se vam sempre Vendo as terra da Persia Prayas, ou Serras, pera se liurarem ãa forsa dos ventos Noroestes : Nem viuem Na dita Ylha da Carga mais q' pillotos que seruem de Leuar as embarcaõis a Bassora Onde se vay cõ ho prumo na mão athe entrar os Medõis q' he hum parsel de Lama de tres brasas de fundo : Brassos de Rios com que vẽ Ao Mar o Eufrates cõ Alguma distansia hũs dos Outros em q' hos mesmos pillottos se embarassem nam sabendo has vezes por q' Rio vam e susede Irem m<sup>tos</sup>. vezes seis e sete dias por hum Rio dentro e como nã Vem huma Balliza q' chamão as Bafras que os sertefica yrem Pello Rio de Basora tornão a desandar com o Corrente da Agoa a o Buscar he hã pillotos tam destros q' Pello Cheyro da Lama conhessem ho Rio de Bassora pello qual se vay doze Legoas athe a Cidade de Bassora a qual esta situada a borda do Rio cõ hum fortalleza muy fermoza e aberto hum Riacho a mão q' A serca q' chamão Sete Larobo dentro do qual se vay estendendo a Cidade m<sup>a</sup>. Populloza e grande em Numero de Cazas com algũs quinze mil Vezinhos q' viuem m<sup>to</sup>. juntos e pello Campo muytas tendas De Arabios das Cabildas da dezerta= He Este Reyno de Bassora do gram Turco porem O Xa q' hoye o gouerna lhe esta aleuantado cõ Elle Vam a Elle pataxos de athe mil candis porq' ho Rio he muyto fundo e todas as mais Embarcaõis piquenas athe Terradas: Leuasse pera Bassora ho mesmo que para a Persia e o q' la Val mais he todo o genero de Drogas, e a Roupa mais fina e presioza porq' se tratã todos muy custozos e o q' se tira he Muyta Tamara, Muyto Alyofar: e muyta Ruýua e toda a fazenda da Persia q' trazem alý os persas a vender aos portuguezes: Vem a Bassora grandes Cafillas de Alepo com m<sup>ta</sup>. fazenda de Europa de q' se tras grande soma pera a Yndia=A Cafilla q' vay de Mascate pera Bassora nã leua mais ordinariam<sup>to</sup>. q' hum soo nauio de Armada q' A gouerne porq' guarda não tem neseidade por nam passarem La os Enemigos de Europa; e na terra não hos Auer mais q' Niquillas que nam sam de momento pera poderem fazer mal hãs Embarcaõis dos portuguezes q' forem com Vigia=He tam grande a Escalla de Bassora q' si todas quantas Embarcaõis forem darão Carga e acharão Venda porem Ora cõ pouco ora com muyto ganho: como susede em couzas de Mercansia:—Sam hos Arabios De Bassora diferentes de todos os Outros da Arabia porq' sam muy Corpulentos, brãcos, e fracos, e puzillanimes:—Tem ho Baxa quatroçentos homẽs de sua guarda De Espingardas, Achas, e Machadas; Tem dous Mil Agãas q' sam os seus parentes e senhores da terra: Em seis Çentos Vinte

e Noue Vindo o Cam de Xiras sobre elle ajuntou quinze mil homẽs de Armas, porem os mais gente fraquissima E assy nam Acabou de tomar Bassora por Morrer o Xa : e a cauza porq' o nam tomara tam de Pressa he porq' Vindo ho Exersito do Xa por terra ha de Vir pella dezerta : e depois ao Longo do Rio por lhe nam faltar Agoa, e quando tornarse ho Turquo trazer seu Campo ha de Alcansallo no Caminho : e por Mar vindo em Terradas quatro Nauios nossos o podem destroyr=Sam hos Arabios de Bassora muy dados ao Nefando com terem as Molheres m<sup>to</sup>. fermozas posto q' Algum tanto as desfea pera cõ nosco as Arrecadas e ganchos De prata e ouro que trazem nas Narizes, e tambem algũs persas sam tocados deste Visio. He a terra de Bassora fresquissima de todas as fruytas de Portugual : e com grande Copia de Vinhos, de Mais e milhores Vuas q' as do Reyno : Trasse de lâ m<sup>ta</sup>. Marmellada pera a India : pellos Marmellos daly serem milhores q' hos da Persia : Estimão tanto a Algallia por ser o cheyro de q' mais vzão : as Molheres q' dam por hum gato de Algallia hum ginette ;

Estam pello Rio asima de Bassora tres Ilhas huma dellas muyto grande de seis legoas de Comprimento e mais de Legoa e Meia de Largura em Paragẽis Abitada de Bidũis Arabios muyto fresca e chea de muyta diuersidade de arnores donde vem a maýor parte da fruyta a Bassora chamase Quidre : as outras duas sam piquenas huma dellas de hũa legoa quazi, Alagadissima, e como he de Agoa dosse Viuem nella Moradores nos Altos : A outra esta a Vista De Sete Larabo Ilha mais piquena porem fertellissima de tudo ho q' nella se semea de seuada e Arros, e chea de Pumares= A forma da pas q' tem ho Baxa de Bassora Com ho Estado he de toda a boa Amizade, e a guarda muy bem, tirado q' as vezes obrigados das semRezõis q' nos lhe fizemos e forçados dellas nos fazem muytas Vexasõis : Ayudamos a este Baxa de Bassora cõ nossa Armada c<sup>ta</sup>. ho persa : Mas he gente tam puzillanime e Coytada q' nenhuma satisfassã da de considerasã ao muyto q' por elles fazem os soldados e Capitães de sua Mag<sup>de</sup>. = A Alfandega de Bassora he a mais fauorael pera os portuguezes q' outra nenhuma nem nas suas mesmas terras, em tanto q' leuã os Mercadores as fazendas pera sua Caza e La lhe vã abrir os fardos ; e depois quando se querem vir vão a alfandega e pagam, E alem do grande faor na<sup>1</sup> baxado porq' se vender a fazenda Descontã aos Mercadores e lhe dã huma pessa cõforme a contia do q' pagou há Alfandega = Temos em Bassora duas Igreiyas huma de Carmellitas, Outra de Agostinhos Exercitando os sacramentos cõ hos portuguezes e mercadores e passageyros de toda a nasã Christãos e cõ hos catiuos destes em q' fazem m<sup>to</sup>. seruico a D's pella acolheyta q' tem aquy depois de fogidos pera os Mouros : como vam m<sup>tas</sup>. vezes donde forçados cõ alguma nesessidade tornã pera nos achando nestes Padres tudo ho nesessario athe q' hos tornã A Entregar a seus Donos : Estã aquy m<sup>tos</sup>. Armenios Christãos q' se sogeytã a estes Padres Cuyas Molheres comungam Cada Domingo muytas dellas = Esta Vezinho a Este Reyno de Basora O Reyno de Bombareca Ja oye sogeito Ao Persa o qual posto q' ho Rey he Mouro os mais doz seus Vassallos sam Christãos de Sam João que seguem a Ley de Christo Nosso Sõr porem com m<sup>tos</sup>. Erros e particullarmente porq' ho Bautismo o fazem pello Rio dizendo dizendo<sup>1</sup> quando Lansã a Agoa sobre a Cabessa Eu te bautizo Assy Como Sam João Bautizou a Christo e não tem Missa nem nas nossas terras a Ouuem : Viuem muytos em Bassorã em bayres<sup>1</sup> Apartado dizem q' querem Vir para ho Estado da India obedesser a Igreja Romana sam muy soberbos com serem todos offissiais de Ouriues Carpentros. ferreyros e espadros. Sam As Molheres todas Castissimas mas particullarmente As Cazadas. O modo de cazarem he leuaremnos ao Rio despidos da sintura pera sima e pera bayxo quando muyto A Molher cõ hum pano branquo muy delgado e singello, e

<sup>1</sup> Sic, MS.

juntando os cachassos lhe dam com hum Caçadinho humas pancadinhas na cabessa cõ pallauras de seremonias e depois estam Ambos deuedidos hum do outro hum mes ao Cabo do qual tempo os tornã a leuar ao Rio Onde lhe dizem Outras pallauras sem se ajuntarem e depois se lhe consede o Ayuntamiento. Carnal: Serão todos trinta mil: ho Rey de Bombareca folga m<sup>to</sup>. q' se lhe vão de seu Reyno porq' por serem tantos se teme delles e os despede tomadolhe As Armas== Esta gente escreueo e mandou seus embayxadores Ao Conde do Linhares Vizorrey da India pera q' desse Ordem pera se podorem Vir pera este Estado a qual elle mandou logo a Mascatte e com ella Veo logo huma pouca desta gente e parte delles ficarã em hũa das fortallezas do Estreyto q' ho Conde lhe mandou dar pera elles a pouoarem e Viuerem nella: E a outra passou a India e o Conde os mandou a Çeylam e a outras partes do estado pera Verem as terras determinando de hos passar qua todos pera ter gente pera as gerras e Armadas porq' he boa gente de Armas: e sera de prestimo na India==De Bassora ha hum Brasso de Rio q' chamã ho Rio de Catifa q' sem sayr ao Mar vay dar A esta Çidade q' esta situada ao Longo de hum Riacho q' no fundo he lamarã e neste Lama tẽ de pedra mea Legoa como Ilha: Ao Longo do Mar La fora de Ordinario Carregam e descarregam as Embarcaçõis grandes pera Vazias poderem entrar pelo Riacho, e nelle ficarem em seco em cima da dita Lama a Ilha de fora tem hum forte Couza piquena q' se chama Tanora==Catifa esta na Arabia Felix de fronte dos bayxos de Verde, q' estã ao Sul antes de Basora Mais de oytãta Legoas==He esta Escalla de Catifa mediana de fazendas porq' dous Nauios q' Vam de portuguezes a euchem aonde he so mercador o Baxa e seus dous filhos per onde fica ho trato muÿto Roim e nã ha mercador q' compre duas corças de panos saluo estes, ou outros q' vem de fora q' sempre andam atemorizados e escordados porq' em sabendo tem Alguma Couza Logo lha apanham o Baxa e :

As fazendas q' se leuam sam Roupas prettas do Sinde e de Cambaÿa poucas fazendas e poucas sortes dellas : As que se tirã sam muytos e muy fermozos ginetes os Milhores de Todo Oriente q' nam passa o Milhor de duz<sup>tas</sup>. Pataquas e dalý para bayxo muytos athe sinq<sup>tas</sup>. e sesenta pataquas : muyto e innumeravel Alyofar grosso e meudo quazi todo o de Barem q' Aly passa em Rezam dos pescadores q' ho vam pescar serem destas prayas : Esta hê a sustansia Da fazenda q' Aly se vay buscar em q' se trazem empregados m<sup>tos</sup>. Mil Cruzados q' por se não poderem leuar todos em fazenda pella terra a nã guastar hos leuam em dinheyro de Pratta de Laris e Abessis de q' atras fallamos : Tras-se tãobẽ Tamara de q' ha na terra Abundansia mas não tam boa como a de Bassora : fas-se tambem Congo q' he a Tamara tanto q' comessa a picar de Vermelho a tirão e cozem no fogo em grandes Caldeyras de Agoa e depois a Lansã na praya a enxugar nos Areas athe q' fica muy dura : e dura m<sup>to</sup>. tempo desta sorte e se tras a India e se pode Leuar ao Cabo do Mundo he este Congo de Catiffa mais meudo, e mais duro, Vermelho e mais dosse q' ho de Mascate e de mais duro= Ha grandes Cabildas de Arabios pella terra dentro q' he a dezerta onde viuem separados com seus capitãis=Ha huma fortalleza pella terra dentro a q' chamã Lassa de donde saem os prefeitos ginetes de q' se atras falla : O modo dos Casam<sup>tos</sup>. dos Naturais da terra a dentro hê deste modo= qualquer homem q' tem filha e he Requerido per Algum mansebo solteyro q' lha de em Cazam<sup>to</sup>. por molher o pay sae cõ ella Ao Campo Onde a poem em hũa tenda e sae o q' a Requere tambem ao Campo, e se poem em som de Batalha ; e de ordinario tem Competidores q' lhe contradizem ho tal Cazam<sup>to</sup>. Ou pella quererẽ tãobẽ ou por lhe acharem a elle defeytos E assy se desafiam e se poem em pees sobre Camellos Ligeÿros e com seus Cayados nas mãos trauã battalha da qual sae vensedor o que mais forte, ou de ou teue melhor fortuna esse leua a Noÿua saluo ouuer outro q' lhe contradiga porq' ha de venser athe nã ter contradissã E assy fica Onrrado e Rico porq' lhe ficão hos despoços de todos q' venseo :—O Baxa de Catifa obedesse ao Turco porq' ho he de Nassam, Mas não se fia delle, nem lhe vay pessoalm<sup>te</sup>. obedesser senão manda filho ou quem lhe paresse dar a obediensia.

G.

DESCRIPTION OF SINDE.

British Museum, Sloane MS. 197, f. 167b.

NAUEGASÕIS E VIAGËIS DO SINDE E SUA DESCRIPSAM.

De Mascate se fas Viagem pera O Sinde desde Outubro athe quinze de Março com Ventos Vestes, e Noroestes e Suis: q' sam çento e Trinta Legoas Esta O Sinde na Costa da Persia=A Barra do Rio Indo q' por aquy desemboca Ao Mar de Marca ao Nordeste Sudueste por entre hum banco cõ a boca da Barra de fundo de duas brasas e mea de Baxamar e de preamar sinquo e de Largo hum Oytavo de Legoa e daquy se vay estendendo este banco pera ho Leste athe A Restinga de Doba tam nomeada o parsel sera de tres athe sete Brasas de fundo, tanto q' entra Março he hum Ynferno neste Banco cõ hos trauesõis mas aynda Assy se sae da Barra, e entra athe Junho=Tem outra boca este Rio Yndo q' vem a hũas Ilhas q' chamã As Monaras tres legoas da outra para o Noroeste a qual esta oye entupida Mas Nã Pera Embarcasõis piquenas—Nem pera surgirem em enseadas as Embarcasõis grandes mas nam pera yrem dentro=A causa de se entupir a dita barra foý por os portuguezes entrarem por ella a dar hum grande asoute em huma Çidade mas com Embarcasõis piquenas podem yr dentro a fazer Resgate.

Tem ho Rio jndo outro brasso por onde entra no mar oÿto legoas do Sinde Pero Ho Leste a q' chamão Daraya. Esta barra esta na cabessa da Restinga de Debâ Tem hum grande Parsel a boca do Rio de mais de tres quartos de Legoa na Entrada de huma brassa e quarto de fundo per onde he muy difficultozo entrarem embarcaõis saluo forem fustas e essas muyto piquenas porq' he de Area muy Perigozo—Hâ Nauegassã deste Rio pera a Entrada de Cacha e Nagana em Nauios piquenos q' chamã Cotias muy frequente e de proueyto por este se vay tambem ao Reyno do Sinde—O grande e prinsipal de q' tratamos fas seis ou sete voltas q' fazem quatro legoas athe chegar cõ Ban Ar Bandel aonde esta a Alfandega em q' hos nossos Nauios vam Anchorar e Lansar, e tomar Carga : Vam a este porto muytas embarcaõis de toda a costa da India desde a ponta do proprio Sinde athe o Cabo de Comorim ; deste Bandel onde hã hũa Pouoassã muyto grande e estendida e huma fortalleza piquena fraca e cayda, Ao Reyno do Sinde ha doze Legoas de Caminho por terra em q' tem tres Passagẽis de proprio Rio Indo q' em Coracol vim correndo por Estas terras onde hã muytas Aldeas de considerassão : pello Rio asima se nauega em embarcaõis piquenas q' leuam estas fazendas ao dito Reyno pera La se guastarem. O Reyno he huma Çidade m<sup>to</sup>. grande com mais de çento e sincoenta mil vezinhos de Cazas meudas de pedra e cal com grandes terrados ; mas o ordinario he serem todas de Varichas cubertas de Barro podre amassado cõ palha q' ho fas muy duro : Viuẽ muy juntos q' se ouuerão de Abitar como os portuguezes nem sinquo tanto do campo da dita Çidade lhe bastaria : He gente muy fraca dellicioza, e superstisioza e Mentiroza : Mouros e gentios Viuem todos misturados—Foy o Reyno antigam<sup>te</sup>. de hum Rey gentio, de cuio ospissio e emparo se veo valler o Rey Mogor antigamente e depois pello tempo adiante lhe fez traysã, e tomou ho Reyno cuio oÿe hê : e por elle he gouernado com seu Nababo Mogor cõ muytos capitães Mogores e he o Reyno do Sinde em s̄y tam rico q' vem a elle capitam q' vense de quartel quinze mil pataquas e dalý para bayxo athe oýto, e quatro : e destes Muytos : He hum Cano o Sinde por onde se enche o Reyno do Mogor de muyto Alyofre e perolas de Barem ; e de grande Cantidade de ouro e de prata : Muytas drogas do Sul : muyta Tamara, Congo ; Cocos ; Copre e Algodam q' lhe leuam os portuguezes e as mais nasõis q' la uã : porq' tyrã somente Roupas ; Anil, Asucar : e Anfião :—

A terra he muy fertil de mantim<sup>tos</sup>. Trigo : Arros : gerzelim ; Milho ; Mango ; Seuada, e todas as carnes tirado porco : m<sup>tos</sup>. Carn<sup>ros</sup>. e muy boñs : Mas nã da ho Reyno do Sinde Bastante Algodam pera hos m<sup>tos</sup>. offissiais q' tem : porq' so na Çidade Referida hã trinta mil Teares, e dahý pera sima e assy se val do Algodam de Cache e Nagana : E he tam grande o trato desta terra q' a quantos Nanios e Embarcasõis forem a ella a todas dara Carga cõ auer nauio de Portuguezes q' leua em pratta, ouro, e Alyofre quatroçentos mil pataquas de Cabedal, e destes hã m<sup>tos</sup>. : E athe da moeda se paga direyτος cõ grandes tiranias na Alfandega a tres e meio por çento q' A uallia em dobro e aynda mais da Vallia das fazendas. Com q' vem a pagar a sette e mais por çento=Mas como os Mogores q' aquý assistem sam muy leuados do Interesse cõ qualquer couza se lhe tapa a boca nos grãdes descaminhos q' hos portuguezes lhe fazem do q' leuã=

Vam aquý nas Monsõis muytas Embarcasõis de portuguezes e se juntarão em seisc<sup>tos</sup>. trinta e tres vinte e huma embarcasõis entre galleotas pataxos fustas cõ algũs duzentos portuguezes porq' como pera estas partes, e pera ho estreyto nã hã Ladrões Mallauares nem dos naturais, andam cõ muy poucos soldados : Tem ha dita Çidade grande do Sinde huma Igreiýa dos padres Carmelitas descalços muy bem ornada e consertada : q' posto q' se nã fassa Christã nenhum natural porq' nenhũ se fas Christã na terra, senã

quando os leuamos fora della porq' entã he muy fassyl, cõ tudo he muy grande auxillio p<sup>a</sup>. os portuguezes e mais christaõs : porq' viuerã ja e viuem portuguezes cazados na dita Cidade, e de ordinario Jnuernã em quanto se nã fas nauegassã algũs portuguezes em sima e embayxo na qual ygreiã ha de ordinario dous padres Carmellitas q' se sustentã das Esmollas dos portuguezes cõ q' viuem muy bem= e na Era de seis Çentos Trinta e quatro emfadados os Mouros do tanger do sino desta igreiã a derrubarã e tomarã tudo ho q' nella auia de ornamentos e mais fabrica : Mas depois tornarã a dar tudo e a fazer a igreiã=—

Como ho dito Rio he muy caudalozzo e vay tanto pella terra a dentro Nauegam por ella asima m<sup>tas</sup>. embarcaõis de quatroç<sup>tos</sup>. Candis com todas estas Fazendas pera os Reynos do Mogor pondo muyto tempo a yda pellas grandes Correntes, e muy pouca a Vinda. He gente esta q' em hum Cazamento de hum gentio gastã quatro e sinquo Mil Rupias : e cada Rupia tem M<sup>a</sup>. [i.e., meia] Pataqua ; e has vezes quarenta e sinq<sup>ta</sup>. mil conforme os cabeduis andando em perpetuos Banquetes, e deyxam perder grandissimos contratos por hũa festa a q' chamã Tamaxa, comendo muyto e muy porcamente e tanto he assy q' m<sup>tos</sup>. perdem as Mõsõis da Embarcassã e nauegassã por se Darem a suas festas : Vem as ditas embarcaõis do Rio carregados de m<sup>to</sup> anil Asuqueres e Jagra e gasta a terra todos os annos mais de des mil Candis de Manteygaa= :

No bandol de Bayxo temos onde esta a Alfandega huma Ygreiã em q' viuem dous Rellegiozos Agostinhos A quem paga sua Mag<sup>de</sup>. mas ho seu sustento prinsipal he das Esmollas dos portuguezes posto q' lhas nam Dam com tanta Largueza, como aos Carmellitas : Viuem Ao Redor da Igreiã hos Portuguezes em cazas de Aluger : ondi tambem viuem as Molheres publicas, e hum tiro de falcã pera a Terra dentro esta a pouoassã de Mouros e gentios Todos misturados : Sam aquy tratados os Portuguezes muyto mal com

nos mesmos Balluartes os quais estam na forma seguinte= Ho Balluarte Sam Pedro q' cabe sobre ho Rio tem hum Camello de Marca mayor pedreÿro q' tira balla de desoyto Liuras—O Balluarte Sancta Crus q' se segue a este nã tem nenhuma Artilharia e esta por entulhar=O Balluarte Sam Paulo q' vay cõtinuando estão (sic) bem por entulhar e sem Nenhuma Artilharia=O Balluarte Sanctiago q' se segue a este tem duas pessas s<sup>r</sup>. (i.e., saber) hum Canhão Reforsado q' tira balla de sesenta e sinquo Liuras=e hum Camello q' tira desaseis de pillouro de pedra=Tem hum Reues este Balluarte aonde esta huma pessa de ferro=No Balluarte q' esta De fronte de Sam Paulo esta hũa pessa de Bronze por dentro ferrada de ferro Collebrina Joga desaseis Libras de balla= Este Balluarte tem dous Reuezes hum tira para ho Balluarte Sanctiago cõ duas bombardeÿras em huma dellas esta huma pessa de bronze=O Balluarte Sam Denis q' se vay seguindo a este nã tem nenhuma Artilharia : No Reues q' tem q' cae pera a praÿa esta hum Pedreÿro de ferro de Catorze Liuras =O Balluarte Sam Fran<sup>co</sup>. q' fica sobre o mar pera A Costa braua tem tres pessas de Metal. S<sup>r</sup>. huma Aguia q' tira quarenta Liuras De Balla : hum Canhão Reforsado q' tira sinq<sup>ta</sup>. Liuras : hum Leão q' tira outras sinq<sup>ta</sup>. todas de Pillouro de ferro=O Balluarte Sam Domingos q' se vay seguindo a este nã tem pessa Alguma=O Balluarte q' esta sobre a porta dos Cazados tem hum Canhã de Metal que joga balla de Vinte e quatro Liuras de ferro=No Cais junto ha see estão duas pessas de Metal, huma he Canhão de catorze Liuras de pillouro, e a outra da mesma forma=Toda esta Artilharia q' sam treze pessas estão em seus Repayros : porem bẽ claro se vee quam falta esteÿa esta Çidade de Artilharia estando m<sup>tos</sup>. Balluartes e Reuezes sem ella e auendo tambem mister os q' A tem alguma Mais := —

A Altura destes Muros hẽ muy Varia porq' pella banda de terra pel<sup>l</sup> ra q' por ella costuma ter são muyto mais Alto r e Rio : e a<sup>u</sup> ~ m quatro Brassas

e m<sup>a</sup>: athe sinquo: de des palmos Cada brassa e pella do mar e Rio tres brassas athe tres e m<sup>a</sup>: cõ seus parapeyços de sinquo athe seis e sete palmos: A grossura destes Muros hê des palmos na Rais e vem Acabar em seis: Nam tem entulho nenhum pella banda de dentro, nem Caua pella de fora porq' nesta Çidade sam hos Arrabaldes m<sup>to</sup>. largos e quando ha gerra se defendem todos=Os Balluartes sam de diferentes formas e não estam ayuda prefeytos nem no Entulho nem na Altura Cuyas obras estam Remetidas por ordem de sua Mag<sup>de</sup>. Aos padres da Companhia=O Capitam Viue dentro dos Muros em huma serca de Ladrilho como a de Bassaym aonde esta o Tronquo=A gente q' mora dos Muros a dentro desta Çidade sam duzentos Cazados portuguezes em Cazas muy boas todas de pedra e Cal: e sinq<sup>ta</sup>. pretos Christãos da Terra q' hũs e outros tem cada hum seu Escrauo que possa tomar Armas q' sãõ as prinsipais espingardas e toda a mais sorte dellas. E a cauza de serem os Escrauos tam poucos he por fogirem todos pera a Terra firme dos Mouros=E Viuem alem destes nos Arrabaldes Referidos e em muytos palmares e ortas dos portuguezes q' estãõ pouqua distansia da Çidade e quazi debayxo da Artilharia de seus Muros quinhentos homẽs cazados pretos Christãos e Gentios, e os mais delles offissiays de offissios mecânicos, e athe os chaudarıs q' sam os q' sobem hãs palmeyras a Colher os Cocos e fruyto delles nos servirã ja na gerra cõtra os mesmos Mouros naturais, e senhores da Terra=

Ha nesta Çidade dous almazẽis hum de sua Mag<sup>de</sup>. outro da Çidade os quais estam prouidos Bastantemente de poluora e Monisõis e petrechos pera qualquer ocasiã de gerra athe se prover de Goa: como sam todas as fortallezas e Çidades do estado nas gerras e couzas extra Ordinarias=Ha nesta Çidade de Chaul dos Muros a dentro seis Igreiyas. S[abe]r. A see:=Mizericordia=Sam Paulo q' he Conuçto dos Padres da Companhia=Hum Most<sup>ro</sup>. de Sam Domingos=Outro de Sam Fran<sup>co</sup>. =outro de Sancto Agostinho os quais sustenta

Sua Mag<sup>de</sup>. pagando a Cadahum e ao Capitam e mais officiais o q' se Vera nas cōtas adiante=A barra desta Çidade de Chaul he a mais Bem guardada q' hã neste Estado pella Courasa do Morro q' Atras dissemos fica sobre ella Com q' nam pode entrar nem sayr nenhuma couza senã por bayxo das pessos da misma Courassa. Tem a barra hum Banco de Area q' a atrassessa pello M<sup>o</sup>. do qual fica o Canal q' demora ao sueste de bayxamar nã tem fundo mais q' oÿto, e noue palmos: e em agoas Viuas tem tres brassas=E em entrando da barra pera dentro fica ho Rio mas largo e cõ fundo bastante pera Estarem nelle m<sup>tas</sup>. Embarcasõis sem auer couza q' lhe fassa dano=A Costa desta fortalleza Corre Ao mesmo Rumo q' a de Damã de Norte a Sul mais alguma couza para o Sueste=As Correntes sam tambem as mesmas tirado q' como fica mais afastado Da Enseada de Cambaÿa não sam as Mares cõ tanta furia como as q' temos Referido=E as Monsõis de Ventos sam tambem as mesmas=

As Viagçis q' se fazem deste porto de Chaul sam m<sup>tas</sup>. e pera m<sup>tas</sup>. partes porq' como Estes Moradores nam tem fazendas de q' possam viuer, Como os de Damã e Bassaym dãose mais ha mercansia: E viuem puram<sup>te</sup>. do trato e Nauegassam=Fasse Viagem de Chaul pera Cambaÿa em Nauios de Remo: e posto q' podem Ir e Vir em Todo ho Tempo não Andão senã em Cafillas em Companhia da Armada q' lhe da guarda a Respeÿto dos m<sup>tos</sup>. paros de q' Aquella Costa anda sempre chea pello Verão: E assy nam fazcm mais q' Duas Viagçis em Verão: Ho q' leuã sam ao maÿor parte Cocos, Areca, Canilha, Pimenta, e todas as mais Drogas do Sul: Crauo, Nos Masta; e tambem as do China como Pao, Lousa, Tutunaga, o q' trazem sã Roupas, Anfiam, e Anil=Fasse tambem Viagem de Chaul pera Mascate e dalÿ pera Bassora; Leuando ho prinsipal Arros, e Roupas de Cambaÿa Cocos e Copra q' sã hos mesmos cocos passados ao Sol: de q' se Vza m<sup>to</sup>. neste Oriente, e mais q' atras fica Referido=A jornada he nos ter

temos apontado nas descripções de Damã E Bassaym As embarcações sam pataxos e galleotas: o q' se tras de la também fica ja atras Referido=Naugasse tambem de Chaul pera Mossambique pera onde vay hos mais dos Annos hum pataxo cõ Lisensa do dono da Viagem em Janeyro athe os prim<sup>ros</sup>. de Feu<sup>ro</sup>.=Leua Roupas de Cambaía das q' serue pera os Cafres q' são Canequís pretos a q' chamão Serqueyra e muyta contaria q' lhe vem de Ballagatte q' sao hūas Continhas de Vidro q' costumã trazer os Cafres em q' hã m<sup>to</sup>. grande ganho por cujo Resp<sup>to</sup>. he Esta Viagem so do Capitam; ho q' de la se tras he Marfim, Ouro, e Cafres=Vam tambem embarcações de Chaul pera Manilla e Chyna leuão pera a China algumas Roupas de Cambaía e de Norte como Canequís e Teadas e algūas couzas de Mascatte como amendoas passas de Vuas, Ensenso; pucho q' he hum pao q' vem de Cambaía e serue pera Lã=e o mesmo pera Manilla Acresentando Muytas farinhas de trigo, Anchoras, e ferro: de q' ja se dise q' em Chaul auia Muyto q' lhe vinha da terra adentro do Ballagatte de q' tambem se fazem falcões de ferro Batido: partem pera Estas Viagēis desde fim de Março athe todo Mayo=He este ferro de Chaul alguntanto grosso e assy ho mais pera q' serue he pera Estas obras grossas de Anchoras e falcões: não deyxando tã bem de seruir pera pregadura. Chaul de sima q' dizemos paga Vinte mil Larís de pareas he hūa pouoassã de Mouros q' esta hum quarto de Legoa da nossa Cidade pera a banda de Leste q' he a do Sertão em q' viuẽ m<sup>tos</sup>. offisiaes Tessilões de sedas q' se fazem na dita pouoassã de toda sorte e Marseneyros de obras de Escritorios e Marchetaria de q' também hã m<sup>ta</sup>. abundãsia e outros offissiais e também hã m<sup>tos</sup>. Mouros de gerra e sera a dita pouoassã de tres mil Vezinhos mas sem Muro nem fortalleza alguma.

---

I.

DESCRIPTION OF THE FORTRESS OF ONOR.

British Museum, Sloane MS. 197, f. 285.

DESCRIPSAM DA FORTALLEZA DE ONOR.

A fortalleza de Onor Esta na terra firme do Concani do Ballagatte desoyto legoas de Goa para o sul Em Altura de Catorze graos e vinte e noue Minutos foý conquistada e feýta pello Vizorrey Dom Luis d'Atayde que depois foý Conde da Atouguia, No Anno de quinhentos sesenta e oýto=Esta plantada esta fortalleza hum quarto de Legoa da Barra de hum Rio de Agoa salgada q' Vem sayr ao Mar, em Síma de huma Rocha toda sercada do Muro de tres Brassas de Altura e quatro palmos de Largura cõ seus parapeýtos : Tem em Roda quatro ç<sup>tas</sup>. Brassas : dentro dos quais Muros fica a pouoassã dos Cazados e Moradores q' sam Trinta Branquos=Tem esta Pouoassã e Muros Onze Balluartes em Roda feýtos em forma Redonda e são estes Balluartes por sima cubertos de Telha em hos quais está Repartidas quatro pessos de Artilharia Tres de Bronze e hũa de ferro—Huma de doze e outra de des e outra de seis liuras de Pillouro de ferro : e hum Camello pedreyro de desoyto Libras de pillouro de pedra=Tem mais oýto falcõis=dous Bersos, e hum Canhão tudo de Metal : que para a copia dos ditos Balluartes e grandeza delles pairesse Couza Muý desconforme porem como esta preuensã não foý feýta pera os Enemigos de Europa de q' oýe mais nos tememos, ouueram que bastaua para os da Terra : hum dos ditos Balluartes he Caualleyro a todos os outros=He esta fortalleza de Onor muý fresca sadia e de Bons Ares, e tem muýto boas Agoas de Maneýra q' se tem pella melhor nestas Couzas q' hã neste Estado porq' dos Muros a dentro tem os Cazados Napulle piqueno destrito muýtas ortas em suas Cazas q' lhe dam Muý boas Vuas e fruyta de Espinho exsellente=Não ha Alfamdega em Onor porq' nam tem nenhũ Comersio, e so viuem aquelles Cazados dos quarteis de Sua Mag<sup>de</sup>. e de Algumas Terras De Arros q' semeão fora dos Muros : e Palmares q' tem : porq' A terra como fica dito he muy fertil : e so lhe vem de fora algumas gundras das Ilhas de Maldia com Caurim cayro, e Cocos : Tirase desta fortalleza e suas terras algum Arros : m<sup>to</sup>. menos q' de nenhuma outra fortalleza do Canara, alguma madeyra de Mastros e Vergas de q' Abunda o Mato da Terra dentro mas cõ Lisensa do Rey della sobre q' nam deýxa de auer algũs incõuenientes, Alguma Aleca e Cato e Algumas Beatilhas q' se fazem pella Terra dentro= o q' mais se tira desta fortalleza e Terras Vezinhas he m<sup>ta</sup>. pimenta a melhor q' hã na India q' se compra por Contrato a o Rey da Terra o qual he de Nassão gentio chamado o Rey do Equerý, ou Canara como se ýntitulla Esta provinsia de q' he sör e por Nome proprio Vira Bador nayque o qual todos os Reynos de q' he sör na dita prouinsia erdou ha seis annos de seu Avoo Vintapa nayque q' hã trinta e dous Annos as cõquistou Desde o Rio de Merizeu athe o Canharotto q' sam trinta e seis Legoas de Costa tomando os aos Reys cujos erão e os tizouros fazendolhe m<sup>tas</sup>. Tirantias com q' tinha ayuntado grandissimas Riquezas= E hã seis annos q' por morte de seu Auo se lhe leuantarã Todos os Ditos Reis com quem tiue m<sup>tas</sup>. Batalhas e Encõtros ora de perda ora de ganho athe q' hũ seu Tio foý leuuntado por Rey chamado Virapa nayque o qual estando ja em posse do Reyno Morreo em breue dizem q' por negoseasã deste Virabadar nayque o qual tornando a tomar posse do Reyno foý conquistando seus Enemigos athe q' hã dous Annos os acabou de Venser e fazer se sör de tudo o q' lhe deýxou seu Auô= Tem o estado asentado pas cõ Este Rey de amigo de Amigos, e enemigo de Enemigos e que todos os seus portos nos serã muy franquos para Tirarmos <sup>d</sup> Todo o mantimento q' ouuer por q' hos do Can donde vem Todo o Arros q' sustenta Esta Çidade seus Contornos : porem Como Este Rey esta muy soberbo pellas grandes Vitorias q' tem alcansado nam guarda isto como esta obrigado particullarmente pella fortalleza q' ho Conde de Linhares Vizorrey fes a seu pezar Na Ilha do Cambollim=

O poder q' Este Rey tem oye he de quarenta pera sinq<sup>ta</sup>. Mil homcs Canaras q' se tem por huma das Milhores gentes de Arnas q' hã neste Estado, e Raramente Tiemos gerra cõ Elles q' leuassemos o Milhor=Mas nã sam traydores para de Bayxo de fee e pallaura de pas fazerem a sua : como alguñs Naturais deste Oriente=A ley q' professã he gentillica como ho seu Rey de q' hã Muÿta diuersidade, e sam Raros os q' se conuertem a Nossa sancta fee Cathollica e assy Neuhuma Igreiya Temos em suas Terras nem ho Rey se entende as consentira=Nã se sabe q' este Rey tenha athegora comersio nem Commonicassã cõ nassã Alguma Estrangeyra fora dos portuguezes, q' Como Vassallo do Idalcain e q' lhe paga pareas : paresse q' ho Imita nisto : posto q' nam sabemos ser athegora cometido cõ a dita Comonicassã=A Barra desta fortalleza de Onor he de hum Rio de Agoa salgada q' vay m<sup>to</sup>. pella Terra dentro atrauesa a pello meo hum Banco de Area como a todas as deste Estado pello m<sup>o</sup>. Do qual tem Hum Canal de sinquo Brassas de Largo, e doze athe quinze palmos de fundo por onde nam podem entrar por elle embarcasõis q' ho demandem mayor senão em Ocazião de Agoas viuas : e dentro no Rio hã fundo de Vinte e sinquo athe trinta palmos. Nã hã nesta Costa mais Correntes, Ventos, e Monsõis q' hos q' temos dito no prinsipio della, de Terrenhos e Virasõis : Corre o mesmo Rumo de Norte a Sul metendo alguma couza pera ho susueste e Noroeste=Tem esta fortalleza de Onor Offissiais e presidio q' se vera abayxo e o q' se lhe paga de prezente e o q' se lhe pagaua antigam<sup>te</sup>. q' he ho sequinte=

*

*

*

J.

DESCRIPTION OF THE MALDIVE ISLANDS.

British Museum, Sloane MS. 197, f. 377.

A Planta que se segue he das Ilhas de Maldia Vay aquy como Outras Muytas q' não sam do Estado. Escriuem Muytos Autores q' e huma Corda de Onze mil Ilhas Intitullase Rey dellas hum Dom Phellipe q' assiste em Goa. Mas nellas Reyna Outro Gentic q' dizem se leuantou ha Muyto cõ ho Reyno em tempo do Auo Ou Paý deste Dom Phellipe e goza o senhorio dellas sendo q' Aýda Vem ao dito Dom Felliipe alguma Couza posto q' Pouqua do Rendim<sup>to</sup>. de Algumas E a sua Iñstansia e pedimento foý de Portugal Ordem Ao Conde de Linhares sendo Vizorrey Da India pera q' Mandasse huma Armada has ditas Ilhas—E o dito Vizorrey Mandou Em Abril de '631: ho Capitam Mor da Armada do Canara Domingos Ferreyra Belliago cõ hũa Armada de quinze Navios o qual foý em demanda da prinsipal das Ilhas aonde o Rey Abita q' Esta leuantado cõ Ellas: Mas Elle foý auizado da ýda da Armada e quando ella chegou estaua Muý bem fortificado: e hũa so entrada q' há pera a dita ýlha estaua tapada cõ nauios cheos de pedras de forma q' era empossiucl entrar por ella e m<sup>to</sup>. mais ýmpossiucl entrar por outra nenhuma parte por ser Toda cercada de Rochedo e arresifes como da planta se pode Ver E o modo Em q' Estaua fortificada: e depois de a dita Armada estar Algũs dias sobre ella jugando as bombardadas Vindo q' era ýmpossiucl podella entrar e q' era Tempo perdido Todo ho q' Aly gastasse se Volto para Goa Trazendo esta planta q' Eu lhe auia pedido me Trouxesse q' Pus aquy da mesma forma:—

---

INDEX.

A.

Abdalá,
sent with message by Cogear to Dalboquerque, i, 121 gives information on the state of Ormuz, 122

Abdalla,
bears message from Ruy de Araujo to Dalboquerque, iii, 46

Abedalcuria, i, 199
the fleet touches at, iv, 6
See Bedalcuria.

Abraham Beque, captain of the Xequé Ismael, doings of, at Ormuz, iv, 138 negotiations of, at Ormuz, 162, 163 despatched home to the Xequé Ismael by Dalboquerque, 170

Abrantes,
in Portugal, iv, 199 outbreak of plague at, i, 20

Abyssinia, particulars of an embassy from Prester John to Dom Manuel, iii, xxxix, 250-255
See Preste João.

Acintura, or Ras Sedour, in Gulf of Suez, iv, 35

Adem,
seizure of a ship at Calayate from, i, 66 the king of, seeks alliance with the Cabaio of Goa, ii, 96 news from, concerning the Rumes, iii, 211 inscription on the contemporary woodcut of the storming of the city, iv, xi discussion concerning attack on, 2, 4, 5 description of, 10-14
attacked, 14
view of, from Correas's Lendas, 16
the attack repulsed, 21 Portuguese retreat from, 23 importance of, 24
the Xequé sends news of, to the Sultan of Cairo, 25
the fleet retires, 26

Adem (continued),
Camoens' description of, 30, 31 extent of the Xequé's dominions, 34 Dalboquerque's overtures to the Xequé concerning Portuguese captives, 46, 50 Dalboquerque revisits and attacks, 56 and burns the shipping of the natives, 57 Dalboquerque sails away from, 58 progress of affairs at, 76 intrigues of the king, 76, 77
a Portuguese fleet fitted out for, 77
Cambay trade with, 103
Dalboquerque's intention of capturing, 130
the Çamorim desires permission to send ships to, ib.
policy of the Portuguese respecting, 134 news from, 171 intentions of Dalboquerque to attack, in the spring of 1516, 179 importance of its position, 185 hope of establishing the Portuguese power at, 207

Afonso V, king of Portugal, iv, 216

Afonso (Mestre), physician present at the death of Dalboquerque, 196

Afonso Anriques, Adaião of the king of Portugal, iv, 211

AFONSO DALBOQUERQUE, THE GREAT.
VOL. I.
reference to biographical accounts of, i, i-vi MSS. in British Museum relating to, vii-xv sketch of his life and character, xxxvii sent on first expedition to Cochim, 2 arrival at Cochim, 4
expels the Naires, 5
begins to build the fortress, 6 differences with his cousin de cisco, 7 sails to Coulião, 7-9
proceedings there, 10, 11

Afonso Dalboquerque (continued),
 his interview with them, 171 decides to make war on Ormuz, 172, 173 commences the attack, 173 and routs the Moors at Turumbaque, 174-177
 continues the attack on Ormuz, 177-180 negotiations for peace, 181 attacks the Moors at Queixome, 183
 procures water, 183, 184 his treatment of J. de Nova, who is mutinous, 185-189
 returns to Queixome, 189 routs the Moors there, 190, 191 orders an attack on Moorish fleets at Lara, 193
 reports to the viceroy and Dom Manuel the desertion of the three captains, 196, 197
 sets out for Çocotora, 197 arrives and relieves the fortress, 198, 199
 sends F. de Tavora to Melinde for supplies, 199
 sails for Cape Guardafum, ib.
 cruises there for five months, 200
 proceedings there, 201-204
 deprives F. de Tavora of his command, 204, 205
 complaint of him made to the viceroy by the disaffected captains, 205-209
 the viceroy causes an information to be laid against him, 209 news from Portugal of Dalboquerque's appointment as viceroy, 211, 212
 sets out from Çocotora to Ormuz, 213 arrives before Calayate, 215
 parleys with the captain of the city, 216 determines to attack the city, 217 routs the Moors and takes the city, 218-220
 burns their ships and mutilates the captives, 221
 hears news from India and of the state of Ormuz, 222, 225 sails from Calayate for Ormuz, 224 receives letters from Cogear, 226
 his reply, 228
 a further letter from Cogear, 229
 his reply, 231
 holds council with his captains on the matter of the letters, 238 demands payment of tribute from Cogear, 239

Afonso Dalboquerque (continued),
 further negotiations with Cogear, 239-242
 decides to remain before Ormuz, 242 makes overtures of friendship with the Rustazes, 243, 244
 proceedings at the water wells of Lara, 245, 246
 routs the Moors by night at Na-bande, 246-251
 proceedings at Queixome, 252, 253
 sets out for India, 254 captures ship of the Guzarates, 255
 arrives at Cananor, ib.
 is coldly received by the viceroy, 256

VOL. II.

account of his first voyage to India in 1503, ii, xxiv arrives at Cananor, xxv subdues Repelim, ib.
 sails for Cochim, xxvi returns to Lisbon, xxvii various accounts of the above voyage, xxvii, xxviii expedition to India, xxxiv-xliii knights T. da Cunha, xli leaves Çoco, xlv
 destroys several towns on the coast, xlv, xlvii
 attacks and subdues Ormuz, xlviii-l dissensions at, li-liii leaves Ormuz, liv proceedings at Cape Guardafum, lv, lvi
 winters at Socotra, lvii departs thence, lviii routs Calayate, ib.
 anchors in sight of Ormuz, lix second blockade of the city, ib.
 abandons the blockade and sails for India, ib.
 arrives at Cananor, ib. 1
 dissensions with the viceroy, ib.
 notice of his appointment as governor, ib.
 demand for the government and command of the fleet, 2 opens sealed instructions of king,
ib.
 messages to the viceroy, and the latter's refusal to give up the fleet, 3
 departure for and arrival at Co-chim, 4
 exhibits the king's orders, ib.
 letter of the viceroy to the king complaining of him, 5

- Afonso Dalboquerque (continued),
 sends a document to the king concerning desertion of the captains, 5 lands at Cochim, 6 receives and answers the viceroy's charges against him, 6 11 dealings with Jorge Barreto, 11 letter from L. de Brito, with his reply, 13, 14 letter from P. F. Tinoco, warning him not to trust the viceroy's promise to deliver India to him, 15 proceedings on the arrival of the viceroy at Cochim, 16 behaviour of Dalmeida to him, 17 conversation between Dalmeida and Gaspar Pereira concerning him, 22, 23 forbidden to show the king's letters patent, 24 reply to Dalmeida's demand for the money received from Ormuz, 25 forbidden to go out of his house or to communicate with the king, 27 quarrel of F. de Tavora and J. de Melo concerning him, 29 his request for release of J. de Melo refused by Dalmeida, 30 petition of Dalmeida's friends against Dalboquerque, 33 is misrepresented by Dalmeida to the king of Cochim, ib.
 is misled by Dalmeida in the matter, 34 indictment of, by Dalmeida, 36 and how he escapes the latter's snares, 37 is insulted by J. Barreto and others, 37, 38 his servants ill-treated, 39 asks for release of J. de Christus in an interview with Dalmeida, 41, 42 account of conspiracy by forged letters, 44 is arrested and sent as prisoner to Cananor, ib.
 is acknowledged by D. Fernando Coutinho as captain-general of India, and released, lxi, 46 and sails with him from Cananor, 46 forgives the hostile fidalgos, 47 refuses to be reconciled with Dalmeida, 48
 the government of India surrendered to him, ib.
 receives a visit from the king of Cochim, ib.
 receives a visit from the king of Cochim, ib.
- Afonso Dalboquerque (continued),
 visit from the king of Cochim, 49 conversation with him concerning pepper, 50 the king's instructions for the destruction of Calicut, lxiii, 51 gives instructions concerning the same, 53 informs king of Cochim of the intended expedition, and asks his aid, 54 holds a council on the matter, 55 orders the expedition, 59 demand of D. de Lemos for new ships, lxiii, 60 his reply and anger, 61 forgives B. de Miranda and others for their bad treatment of him, 62 promises a fleet for D. de Lemos, 63 anchors his fleet before Calicut, lxiv, 63 holds council concerning disembarkation, 64 disagreement with the marshal, 65, 66 attacks the town, 67
 is wounded and forced to retreat, 70, 71 sends envoy to Narsinga to ask the king's aid in destroying the Camorim, 73 sends envoy to D. de Lemos, ib.
 determines to go after the Sultan's fleet, lxvii, 80 leaves Cochim, ib.
 holds parley with Timoja at Mergue, 81 is persuaded to attack Goa, 82 takes Goa, 84-92, 97, 98 his treatment of the inhabitants, 99 builds the fortress of Goa, lxxvi, 101 dealings with Timoja, 102-106 establishes Portuguese government in Goa, 103-106 receives ambassadors from Xequé Ismael and the king of Ormuz, lxxvi, 106 and sends letters by Ruy Gomez to their masters, 111 text of the letters, 111, 119 instructions what to say to Xequé Ismael, 114 sends F. Pantoja to Socotra with supplies, lxxvii, 121 with letter to D. de Lemos, ib.
 and message to A. de Noronha, 122 consolidates his position at Goa, lxxviii, 123 et seq.
 orders a new coinage, 129

Afonso Dalboquerque (continued),
 prepares to winter at Goa, 132 arrests two of the disaffected captains, 134 sends D. F. de Beja to rebuild Cintácora fortress, 135 receives news of the Hidalção's intended descent on Goa, lxxviii, 136 sends assistance to Mandaloy, 136 result of the expedition, 137, 138 receives offers of assistance from the king of Garçopa, 138 inspects and reinforces the fortresses of Goa, lxxix, 140 puts to death the Xabandar for communication with the enemy, 141 receives envoys from the Hidalção, 143 refuses to evacuate Goa, lxxx, 146 imprisons the head Moors and Hindus, lxxx, 148 erects a stockade at Benasterim, lxxx, 150 reinforces the pass of Augij, lxxx, 150 inspects the passes, lxxx, 152, 153 imprisons Melique Çufecondal, lxxx, 154 his friendly relations with the lord of Condal, lxxxi, 154 defends Goa on the entry of the enemy, lxxxi, 155 et seq.
 sets fire to the city and retires to the fortress, lxxxii, 157, 158 consults his captains on the state of affairs, 159 holds negotiations with the Hidalção's envoy, 161 decides to quit the fortress, 162, 163 decapitates Melique Çufecondal and 150 principal Moors, lxxxiii, 164 and sets fire to the arsenals, ib.
 quits the island and re-embarks, ib.
 anchors his fleet before Pangij, ib.
 holds parley with J. Machado, 166 sends hostage and envoy to the Turks at Pangij, 167 holds council as to sailing over the bar, 168 orders Perez Dandrade to sail over the bar, 170 sends help to the same on wreck of his ship, ib.
 his fleet much damaged by the Hidalção's artillery, 171 dejection of his captains, ib.

VOL. IV.

Afonso Dalboquerque (continued),
 refuses the Hidalção's present, 172 decides to storm Pangij, 173 account of the attack and capture, 176, 177 withdraws to his ships, 177 sends captains to reconnoitre the Hidalção's fleet, lxxxiii, 178 grief at A. de Noronha's death, 181 discusses the question of peace through ambassadors, ib.
 receives a further embassy, lxxxiv, 184 refuses an offer of Cintácora for Goa, 186 departure of the ambassador, 187 proceedings in the affair of Ruy Diaz, lxxxiv, 188 determines to send the sick forces to Cochim, 193 and Timoja to Onor for supplies, ib.
 his captains importune him to sail from Goa, ib.
 is persuaded to attempt to cross the bar, ib.
 his ill-success, and return to old anchorage, 194 his arguments for remaining there, 197 agrees to depart, 198 sails for Anjadiva, lxxxv, 199 comes up with fleet of D. Mendez, ib.
 holds interview with him, 200
 the two fleets sail for Cananor, 201
 proceedings at Cananor, 203 interview with the king of Cananor, lxxxviii, 204 arrival of D. de Lemos, 206 settles the matter of the prize ship Meri, 208 receives ambassador from the king of Cambaya, lxxxviii, 212 quarrels with D. de Lemos, 213 sends letter in reply, 215 organises cruising parties to intercept vessels from the Red Sea to India, lxxxix, 217 is unwilling to let D. Mendez go to Malaca, 220 holds council on the matter, ib.
 decides that D. Mendez shall remain at Cananor, 221-223 proceedings on the arrival of L. Moreno, lxxxix, 224 sends him on an embassy to Baticala, 226 and with a letter to Timoja, 227 return of S. Martinz with vessel captured, 228

U

Alonzo Pualoaguerque mentioned, sends other remaining parties to waylay merchant vessels, 230 receives an act of Senay from D. Mendez, 231 looks a moment on the arrival of the Negreira concerning a new attack on Goa, xi, 233 proceedings on news of the death of the king of Cochim, 236 establishes the new king on his throne, 238 determines to make an attack on Goa, 241 attempts in vain to persuade the Negreira to join him, 242 occasions the death of Portuguese, 243
 VII. —
 returns to Cananor, 244 proceeds to Quilim and Anquivila, 2 begins to storm Goa, 2, 4 successes made in attack, 3, 4 attacks and captures the city, 4-15 sacks the city, 11, 12, 14 buries it, 17
 makes presents to the parent of Filomena, 18 receives ambassadors from the Indian princes, v, vi, 19, 20 sends letter to the Hindu king, vi, 20 gives safe-conduct to the Nequirares, 22 opposes the approach of Miquezaya, 23 repulses him, but declines to make treaty with him, 23-25 favors Maria, the deposed king of Quilim, 26 appoints him former-general of Goa, 28 sends expedition against Coetora, 28, 29 receives an embassy from the Calicut of Calicut, vii, 30-32 prepares an expedition to Malacca, 33 receives ambassadors from Narsinga, vii, 35 sends instructions to Fr. Luis, 38 writes to the Hindu king, 38 concludes peace with the king of Narsinga, 39 provides for local government of Goa, viii, 39 et seq.
 establishes a mint there, ix, 41 prepares to leave the city, 43 receives a letter from Ruy de Albuquerque, mentioned at Malacca, ix, 46 detains D. Mendez at Goa, ix, 48-51

Alonzo Pualoaguerque mentioned, his action on the latter's sailing without leave, 51-54 sails for the Straits of Meca, 55 but alters his course to Malacca, 56 interview with the king of Cochim, 56 sails from Cochim, 57 adventures on the voyage to Malacca, 58-65 arrival at 66
 negotiations with the king, 67
 the latter tempers with Dalboquerque, 68, 70 sends message to the king, 69 increases suspicion of an immediate attack, 73 sends ultimatum to the king, 73 failure of negotiations, 95, 96 preparations for the attack, 97 arrival of his side some Chinese merchants, xii, 97 looks a moment, 100, 101 description of the attack, 103-107 withdrawal of the Portuguese troops, 108 accepts overtures of friendship from Udemutaraja, 109 prepares to renew the attack, 111-113 allows the Chinese merchants to depart, 114 sends an ambassador to São with them, 114 his speech to the captains, 115 division of opinion on second attack, 120 account of the second attack and capture of the city, 121-128 account of the sacking of the city, 128, 127 and the artillery, etc. found therein, 128 sets the city in order and appoints governors, 128, 129 sends an attacking party against the prince of Malacca, 130 his treatment of the Moors on the death of the king of Malacca, 134, 135 builds a fortress in Malacca, 135 establishes a new coinage, xxx, 137-143 receives complaints of Udemutaraja, 143 whom he seizes and executes, 143-150 account of Duarte Fernandez's embassy to Siam, 152-155

- Afonso Dalboquerque (continued), interviews with the Siamese ambassador, 156
 sends another ambassador to Siam, 156 receives embassies from the kings of Campar, xxx, 159
 of Java, xxx, 160
 and from Menamcabo, 161 sends exploring party to the Moluccas, xxx, 162
 re-establishes commerce in Malaca, 164 arranges for the government of Malaca in his absence, 165-169 is pressed by the merchants to stay, 167, 168
 sends report concerning Malaca to Dom Manuel, 169
 sails from Malaca, 193
 his vessel wrecked, 196 narrowly escapes drowning, 197, 198 proceeds on his route to Ceilão, 200 captures two Moorish vessels, 201 his disappointment at missing Ma-fameda Maçari, 204
 arrives at Cochim, ib.
 his reception, 205
 and anxiety to reach Goa, 206, 207 receives message from Dom Manuel respecting the occupation of Goa, 209 sails in search of the Rumes, 210 proceeds to besiege Benasterim, 211-214 particulars of the siege by sea, 214-220 enters Goa, ib.
 hears of Roçalção's advance on the
 city, 221
 attacks Roçalção in the open, 222-225 puts him to flight, 226 his quarrel with F. Pereira, 227 continues the attack, 228-233 his narrow escape from death, 231 treats with Roçalção, 233-236 takes possession of the fort, 236, 237 his treatment of F. Lopez, 238 provisions the fort, 241 and enters the city, ib.
 sends a fleet against Calicut, 243 considers despatches from the Hidal-ção, ib.
 opens Dabul port to Moorish ships, 244 sends embassy to the Hidalção, ib.
 his treatment of Miliqueaz's messenger, 245, 246
- Afonso Dalboquerque (continued), sends embassy to Cambaya, 245 sends embassy to Narsinga, 246 receives King Vengapor's ambassador, 247
 holds interview with Rocalção, 248, 249 receives an embassy from Prester John, xxxix, 250
 despatches him to Portugal, 253 captures Moorish ships of merchandise, 257
 discusses with the captains D. Manuel's suggestion of the surrender of Goa, 257, 264
 his letter to Dom Manuel on the subject, 258-263
 portrait from the Sloane MS. in the British Museum, i, frontispiece
 portrait from the edition of 1774,
ii, frontis.
 portrait from Correa's Lendas, iv,
frontis.
- VOL. IV. appointment of officers by, 1 embarks at Goa, ib.
 council held by, 3 sails to Cocotora, 3 takes a Chaul ship, 4 discusses the proposed attack on Adem, 5
 proceeds to Adem, 6, 8 negotiates with the governor, 8, 9 attacks Adem, 14-20
 fails to enter, 21
 retires, 23
 burns the Moorish shipping, 24 his idea of the importance of Adem and other sites, ib.
 sails away from Adem for the Straits, 26 coasts along Arabia, 27 reaches Jebelzocor, ib.
 anchors in the Red Sea, 28 intercepts slave trade, ib.
 first to penetrate the Red Sea, 33 description of his intended operations on the Nile, 36 and at Meca, 37
 sets out for Camarão, and stands off Luya, 40
 runs aground, 41
 is hauled off, 42
 reaches Camarão, ib.
 determines to go to Judá, 43 sends a party to Ceibão, 44 appearance of a cross in the sky to him, ib.

- Afonso Dalboquerque (continued),
 sails to Camaráo, and remains there for a time, 45 determines to visit Zibit, 46 and the land of Preste João, 47 warps out of Camaráo, 54 explores Perim, ib.
 names it, 55
 anchors off Adem, 55, 56 burns the Moorish ships, 57 despatches messenger to Portugal, 58
 leaves Adem, 58
 reaches Diu, 59
 leaves merchandise at, ib.
 reaches Chaul, ib.
 receives an ambassador from Cam-bay, 60, 61
 reaches Dabul, 62
 obtains possession of Indian vessels from Calicut, 62
 reaches Goa, 63
 Franc. Nogueira relates the proceedings concerning the building of the fortress of Calicut, ib.
 his policy, 64-66
 sends D. Garcia de Noronha to Calicut with ultimatum, 67 sails to Cochim, 68
 interview with the king, 68, 71 refers to his wound in an interview with the king of Cochim. See
ii, 70, 71; iv, 70
 D. Garcia de Noronha informs him of proceedings at Calicut, 71 intrigues against the Çamorim of Calicut, 72
 visits the new Çamorim, 73 proceeds to Cananor, 74, 75 recapitulation of his exploits in 1513, 74
 remains at Cananor, 75 receives intelligence from Diu, 76-77
 and from Cairo, ib.
 fits out a fleet for Adem, 77 proceedings of, at Cananor, 78, 79 sails for Cochim, 80 sends Miguel Ferreira to the Xequé Ismael, 81
 sails for Goa, ib.
 reaches Goa, and receives native embassies, 89
 sends succour to the Portuguese at Malaca, 91
 disappointed at the turn of affairs at Cambay, 93
 sends two ambassadors to the king of Cambay, 94
- Afonso Dalboquerque (continued), disappointed at the failure of the expedition to Ormuz, 119, 120 anecdote of, 120
 determines to go to Ormuz, 121 visited by an ambassador from the king of Narsinga, ib.
 the reception of the ambassador, 122-124
 his policy towards the Hidalção, 128 his policy with regard to certain Portuguese about to desert, ib.
 intention of wintering at Ormuz, and in the summer taking Adem and entering the Red Sea, 130 supplies the fortresses of India, and sets sail from Goa in the Nazareth, 132-133
 consults the captains respecting the destination of the fleet, 134 determines to proceed to Ormuz, 136
 anchors off Mascate, ib.
 hears the condition of Ormuz, ib.
 reaches Ormuz, 137
 negotiates with Reys Hamed, ib.
 goes on shore at Ormuz to negotiate for the surrender of the fortress, 143 interview of, with Reys Nordim, 144 occupies the fortress, 146-147 intrigues of, at Ormuz, 147 interview of, with Reys Nordim, 149, 150 message to, from the ambassador of the Xequé Ismael, 150 receives the ambassador with great pomp, 151-153
 articles offered to the Xequé, 153 the King of Ormuz visits him, 154-157 orders the assassination of Reys Hamed, 158
 restores the king of Ormuz, 162
 the king visits him, 163 sends Jeronymo de Sousa and Nicolao Ferreira to search for fugitive Portuguese, 166 his punishment of the fugitives, 167 orders the expatriation of Reys Hamed's family, 167
 suppresses vice at Ormuz, 169 encourages trade at Ormuz, ib.
 despatches Abraham Beque, 170 balances accounts with the king of Ormuz, ib.
 obtains possession of the artillery at
 Ormuz, 171-173
 visits the king of Ormuz, 174

- Afonso Dalboquerque (continued),
 despatches Fernão Gomez de Lemos and Gil Simões to the Xequê Ismael, 175
 his instructions to them, 176-177 permits D. Garcia de Noronha to return to Portugal, 179 sends presents to the king D.
 Manuel, ib.
 illness of, 180
 his opinion of the Xequê Ismael, 183, 184
 reception of native ambassadors by, 186-187
 increase of his illness, 188 makes arrangements for the succession, 189
 embarks on board the Flor da Rosa, 191 sets sail from Ormuz for India, 192 hears news of India from a prize vessel, 193
 hears of the appointment of Lopo Soares as his successor, 194, 195 writes to the king D. Manuel, 195 his death, 196
 his obsequies, 197
 charitable provisions made by, 199 his appearance and character, ib.
 anecdotes of, 200
 the king of Portugal countermands his recall, 201 condition of Portuguese India at his death, 204
 inscription over his sepulchre, 209 remains of, conveyed to Portugal, 209, 210
 funeral obsequies of, 211 pedigree of, 213
 his armorial bearings, 214, 215 account of his son, 217 title-page, dedicatory epistle, etc., of the first edition of the Commentaries, 219
 pedigree and genealogical notes of the family, 221 et seqq.
- Afonso Dalboquerque the younger, son of the great Afonso Dalbo-
 querque,
 account of, i, xlvi
 his epistle dedicating the Commentaries to king D. Sebastião, li his disposition of property left by his father for charitable purposes,
iv, 199
 conducts funeral rites of Dalbo-
 querque, 211
 autobiographical notes, 217 biographical account of, ib.
- Afonso Lopez,
 is left at Çocotora, i, 54
- Afonso Lopez da Costa, takes part in the attack on Curiate,
i, 70
 proceedings at Mascate, 75-79
 sent with Portuguese flag to land at Soar, 89
 attacks Orfação, 94, 95
 proceedings at Ormuz, 104
 proceedings at attack on Ormuz, 112, 116, 119, 120
 surveys the port of Nabandé, 139 opposes Dalboquerque in his wishes concerning the fortress at Ormuz, 150, 151
 insubordination at Ormuz, 156 advice to Dalboquerque on proposed destruction of Ormuz, 165, 166 signs remonstrance to Dalboquerque
 at Ormuz, 170
 attacks the Moors at Ormuz, 178, 179
 is wounded, 180
 attacks the Moors at Queixome, 190 pursues the Moorish fleet, 194 deserts Dalboquerque and sails for India, 194-197
 complains of Dalboquerque to the viceroy, 205
 draws up remonstrance, 206
 hears news of Dalboquerque's appointment as viceroy, 211
 captain of the Taforea, ii, xliii puts the Moorish vessels to flight and sails for India, liv goes to Portugal with letters from Dalmeida, 5
 is imprisoned by the king's orders, ib.
- Afonso Lopez Buraquinha, dissuades T. da Cunha from attacking Magadaxo, i, 44, 45 pilot to T. da Cunha's fleet in 1507,
ii, xliii
- Afonso de Noronha, ordered to take charge of the fortress at Çocotora, i, 45 joins in the attack on the Moorish fort at Çoco, 47-50
 made captain of the fort at Çoco-tora, 54, 58
 mediates between F. de Tavora and Dalboquerque, 205
 accompanies Dalboquerque to Cala-yate, 213, 215
 parleys with the captain of the city, 216
 takes part in the attack, 219-221 appointed captain in charge of Çoc-o, xliii

- Afonso de Noronha (continued), supplies sent to him at Socotra, lxxvii, 121
- Afonso Pessoa,
reconnoitres the Hidalção's fleet, ii, 178 sent on cruising expedition to Monte de Deli, 230
captain of the fleet, iii, 1
proceedings at the attack on Goa, 5
sent against Meliqueaye, 23
captain, sails to Malaca, 58
- Afonso Sanches, natural son of King Dinis,
ancestor of Dalboquerque, iv, 213, 215, 221
- Africa,
adventures of V. da Gama in, ii,
xvii
journey of Fernão Gomez across, lvii
- Agacij, in Goa,
the pass strengthened, ii, 140 arrival of M. da Cunha at, iii, 3, 4
- Ahmadabad,
chief city of Cambay, iv, 107, 108
- Aires de Magalhães, appointed scrivener at Goa, iv, 179
- Aires Pereira, captain, despatched against Meliqueaye, iii, 22
sails to Malaca, 58
captures a Moorish vessel, 61, 62
attacks Malaca, 102, 105, 124, 130
in command at Malaca, 166
- Aires de Silva,
accompanies Dalboquerque's expedition to Red Sea, ii, 81 *
proceedings at the siege of Benasterim, iii, 211, 213, 214, 218, 219, 226
sails from Goa, iv, 2
takes part in escalade of Adem, 19 sails with the fleet from Goa to
Ormuz, 132
employed in the negotiations at Ormuz, 143
- Aires de Sousa,
rouths the Moors at Queixome, i, 191 sent to receive flag of truce from Cogeatar, 197
takes part in the attack on Calayate, 220
attacks the Moors at Nabande, 249
- Aires de Sousa Chichorra, sent with Portuguese flag to land at Soar, i, 89
takes part in attack on Orfacão, 96 proceedings at attack on Ormuz, 114
- See Aires de Sousa
- Ajaje, or Aji,
powerful Somali tribe, iv, 38
- Alaca, or Ras Alargah, Judá supplied from, iv, 35
- Alaoadim, King,
his conspiracy with Utemutarsja against Dalboquerque, iii, 147
- Alarves, tribe of,
live round Meca, Otor, Cana, etc.,
iv, 35, 36, 37, 39
- Alboquerques, family of, genealogy of the, iv, 213, 217 arms of the, 214, 215
pedigrees, 221 et seq.
- Aldonsa de Sousa, a lady of court, ancestress of Dalboquerque, iv, 213
- Aleixo de Meneses (Dom), captain, iv, 194
- Aleppo,
rumoured attack of, iv, 25
- Alexander the Great,
life of, in Persian, given to Dalboquerque on capture of Orfacão, i, 99
notice of, iv, 185
intended operations of, at Red Sea,
iv, 34
- Alexandre Dataide, or de Ataide, a converted Jew, account of, ii, 230 present as interpreter at interview between Prester John's ambassador and Dalboquerque, iii, 252 interviews of, with the king of Ormuz, iv, 139, 140, 141, 142 employed in negotiations at Ormuz, 147, 149
employed at Ormuz, 161
notices of, iv, 171, 191 examines a Moorish captain from Diu, 193, 194
- Alexandria,
rumoured attack on, iv, 25
- Alguazil, the, of Cananor, doings of, iv, 78, 79
- Alicão, captain of a Cambayan ship, captured by F. Pantoja, ii, 122
- Almaçá,
bears message from the king of Ormuz to Dalboquerque, i, 166 bears messages between Dalboquerque and the king of Ormuz, 182 imprisoned by order of Cogeatar, 222
- Almeirim, in Portugal,
royal letter dated from, iv, 204
- Alonzo de Payva v. Gonsalvo de Pavia
- Alphonso V,
king of Portugal, iv, 216, n.

- Alvarez Cabral, discovered Brazil in 1500, i, xiv ; ii,
iv
- Alvaro de Castro (D.), complaint of Dalmeida to, against Dalboquerque, ii, 5
takes part in escalade of Adem, ir, 19
takes possession of Ormuz, 146
- Alvaro Fernandes,
proceedings at the attack on Ormuz,
i, 116
- Alvaro Godinho,
appointed treasurer of the Mint at Goa, iii, 41
- Alvaro Gomes,
killed at Goa, iii, iii, 14
- Alvaro Gonçalves de Ataíde, count of Atouguia, ir, 216
- Alvaro Lopez, reference to, ii, 35
- Alvaro Mendez,
at Melinde, ii, xxxix
- Alvaro Paçanho,
sent on cruising expedition to Monte de Deli, ii, 230
- Alvaro de Saude, captain of the emperor Charles V, opinion of the Grand Turk with respect to Dalboquerque, expressed to, ir, 200
- Alvaro Telez,
proceedings of, at Melinde, i, 25
- Alvaro Telles, captain, ir, 194
- Alvaro Vaz,
advises expulsion of the Caimais from Cochim, i, 3
- Amboino, isle of,
description of, iii, 164
- Amirquebir, a principal captain of the Xeque, executed, ir, 25
- Anchecala,
states the king of Cochim's opinions on differences between Dalmeida and Dalboquerque, ii, 26
- Ancola, proceedings at, iii, 27
- André de Afonseca,
killed at Goa, iii, iii, 14
- André Correa,
takes part in escalade of Adem, ir, 20
- André Dalboquerque, nephew of Afonso Dalboquerque,
a mourner at the funeral of Dalboquerque, ir, 211
- André Dias, afterwards Alcidade of Lisbon
captain of merchant ship, i, 33
- André Diaz,
order of Dalmeida to Dalboquerque to hand over merchandise, etc., from Ormuz to, ii, 25 advice to Dalmeida concerning Dal-boquerque, ib.
excuses Dalmeida's conduct to Dal-
boquerque, 27
repeats Anchecala's remarks concerning the differences at Cochim,
ib.
arranges requisition to Dalmeida not
to return to Portugal, 33
his false intelligence concerning the king of Cochim and the pepper
cargoes, 50
- Angoja, islands of,
J. de Nova at, i, 33
the king's hostility to the King of Melinde, 34
attacked and destroyed by T. da Cunha, 35, 36
destroyed, ii, xli
- Angediva, or Anjaliva, arrival of V. da Gama's fleet at, ii,
xvii
defeat of the lord of Goa at, ib.
expedition to, for supplies, ii, lxxv, 192 arrival of Dalboquerque's fleet off, lxxxv, 199
Dalboquerque arrives there with his
fleet, 81
the captains of Dalboquerque desire to winter there, 168
- Anrique Homem,
attack on Adem, ir, 15
takes part in escalade of Adem, 20
- Anrique de Meneses, governor of India,
the fortress of Calicut destroyed in his time, ir, 72, plate, 75
- Antão Garcia,
takes position to attack the Moorish ships at Coulão, i, 12
- Antão de Noronha, viceroy of India, expedites removal of Dalboquerque's remains to Portugal, iv, 210, 211
- Antonianes,
proceedings at attack on Ormuz, i, 116
- Antonio, count of Linhares, ir, 217
- Antonio, Padre,
instructs the Christians at Çoco-tora, i, 54
fears concerning his safety, ii, 207
- Antonio de Afonseca, appointed factor at Goa, ir, 179

- Antonio de Azevedo,
proceedings at attack on Ormuz, i, 116
in command at Malaca, iii, 166
- Antonio Barreto, captain, ir, 194
- Antonio do Campo, sent to Quiloa, i, 32
is left at Çocotora, 54 adventures near Curia Maria, 59 and at Cape Maceiras, 61 joins in the attack on Curiate, 68-71
proceedings at Mascate, 73-79
attacks Orfação, 95-97
proceedings at Ormuz, 104
proceedings at attack on Ormuz, 113, 115, 118, 119
surveys Turumbaque, 140
receives instructions concerning the erection of a fortress at Ormuz, 141
further proceedings at Ormuz, 149
his hostility to Dalboquerque, 151 insubordination at Ormuz, 152, 156, 157
signs remonstrance to Dalboquerque
at Ormuz, 170
receives message from Dalboquerque, 173
is reinstated, 174
proceedings at Nabande and Queixome, 183
attacks the Moors at Queixome, 190, 192 pursues the Moorish fleet at Lara, 193 deserts from Dalboquerque, 194-197 complains of Dalboquerque to the
viceroy, 205
draws up remonstrance, 206 hears news of the appointment of Dalboquerque as viceroy, 211 captain under Dalboquerque, ii,
xlii
proceedings at Ormuz, lii puts the Moorish fleet to flight and sails for India, liv speaks ill of Dalboquerque, 31
arranges requisition to Dalmeida not
to return to Portugal, 33
insults Dalboquerque, 38
conspires against Dalboquerque, 44 accompanies Dalmeida to Portugal, 48
- Antonio da Costa,
takes part in attack on Orfação, i, 96
takes part in the attack on Calayate, 220
attacks the Moors at Nabande, 249
present at council at Cochim, ii, xc
- Antonio da Costa (continued), present at council on proposed expedition against Calicut, 55
accompanies Dalboquerque's expedition to Red Sea, 81
conveys the envoy of the Hidalção to Dalboquerque, 102
reconnoitres fleet of Diogo Mendez
off Anjadiva, 199
- Antonio Dabreu,
takes part in attack on Ormuz, i, 115
wounded at Ormuz, 118
sent against Meliqueaye, iii, 22
captain, sails to Malaca, 58
attacks Malaca, 102, 105, 111, 112
is wounded, 121
renews attack, 124
sent to explore the Moluccas, 162 ordered to stay at Malaca on his return from the Moluccas, 166 goes to explore Maluco, ir, 91 reaches Malaca and reinforces the Portuguese fortress, ib.
- Antonio Dinis de Setubal,
proceedings at Çoco, i, 51
- Antonio Fernandes, or Fernandez is bearer of the captains' remonstrance to Dalboquerque at Or-muz, i, 152
delivers the captains' remonstrance to Dalboquerque at Ormuz, 169
attacks the Moors at Nabande, 250
- Antonio Fernandez de Alvito, a Moor, persuades some Portuguese to desert, ir, 166
his punishment commuted, 167
- Antonio Fernandes Tassalho, made scrivener to Pero Vaz Dorta,
i, 143
- Antonio Ferreira, captain, sails with the fleet from Goa to Or-muz, ir, 132
- Antonio Fragoso,
takes part in attack on Orfação, i, 96
attacks the Moors at Nabande, 249
- Antonio Graces,
killed at Goa, iii, iii, 14
- Antonio de Liz,
takes part in attack on Orfação, i, 56
proceedings at attack on Ormuz, 116
is wounded at Ormuz, i, 180 visits ship of D. de Lemos off Cananor, 206
takes part in the attack on Calayate, 220
attacks the Moors at Nabande, 249

- Antonio Lobbo Falcão, captain, ir, 194
- Antonio do Loureiro (Fr.), says mass at Çoco, i, 52
- Antonio de Matos, sent on expedition for supplies, ii, 192 sent to intercept vessels bound for India, 217
captain of the fleet, iii, 1
sent against Meliqueaye, 22
takes part in the siege of Benasterim, 216
- Antonio de Mendonça, present at viceroy's council, ii, 35
- Antonio de Miranda de Azevedo, sent ambassador to Siam, iii, xxx, 156
his instructions, 156
his arrival and reception by the king, 158
sent to Siam, ir, 90 remains at Malaca, 91
- Antonio de Noronha,
proceedings at Mascate, i, 74
sent with Portuguese flag to land at Soar, 89
proceedings at the attack on Orfacão, 95, 96 attacks Moorish fleet at Ormuz, 112 takes part in attack on Ormuz, 115-117 surveys Queixome, 139
receives instructions concerning the erection of a fortress at Ormuz, 141 superintends the firing of a volley at Ormuz, 147
proceedings at Ormuz, 168, 169
routs the Moors at Turumbaque, 176, 177
makes a further attack on them, 179
is wounded, 180
goes to Queixome for water, 239 procures water from Lara, 240 sent to Lara to procure water, 244
attacks the Moors at Nabande, 247-251 proceedings at Lara, 252
present at council on proposed expedition against Calicut, ii, 55
takes part in attack on Calicut, 67, 70 accompanies Dalboquerque's expedition to Red Sea, 80
takes soundings in the harbour at Goa, 88
leads the attack on Goa, 89 enters the city, 90, 91, 98
- Antonio de Noronha (continued), takes the castle of Banda, 100 drives out the Turks and returns to Goa, 100, 101
in charge of the fleet at Goa, 140
his force at Goa inspected by Dal-
boquerque, 152
defends the pass of Augij, 155 attacks and routs the Turks who crossed the pass, lxxxi, 155 reinforces Dalboquerque in the attack on Goa, 158
advises Dalboquerque to hold the fortress of Goa, 160
is appointed to guard the gate, 161 sets fire to an arsenal, 163 and leaves his post at the gate, ib.
superintends the re-embarkation, 164 is sent as envoy to converse with the Turks at Pangij, 167 attacks the Hidalcão's fleet, 179 is wounded, lxxxiii, 180
death, ib.
account of, 181
reference to his death, 207
- Antonio Pessoa,
attacks the Malays, ir, 90
- Antonio Raposo,
takes part in the siege of Benas-
terim, iii, 211, 217, 219
sails from Goa, ir, 2 proceedings of, at Baticalá, 62 captain, sails for Adem and Cape Guardafum, 77
sails with the fleet from Goa to Or-
muz, 132
employed in negotiations at Ormuz, 149
- Antonio Real,
present at council at Cochim,
ii, xc
present at meeting between Dalboquerque and J. Barreto, 13 chief alcaide, opposes Dalboquerque's local government in Goa, iii, 42 proceedings at Cochim, 204, 205, 209 recommends the surrender of Goa, 258 adverse to building the fortress of Calicut, iv, 66
- Antonio Ribeiro dos Santos, his account of Dourado and his MS.
Portolano, ii, cxviii, cxx
- Antonio de Sá, factor of Coulão, sends letter to Dalboquerque, i, 8 proceedings at Coulão, 14-16

- Antonio de Sa (continued), deprecates an attack on the Camo-rim's fleet at Coulaõ, 12 wounded at Braboa, 42
takes fleet in attack on Orfação, 96
takes part in the attack on Calayate, 220
attacks the Moors at Nabande, 249 factor of Coulaõ, ii, xxvi
- Antonio de Saldanha, news of his ship at S. Bras, i, 18 sent to Moçambique, 32 sent to Portugal, 33 visits S. Bras, ii, xxvi discovers Saldanha bay, xli assists in attack on Roçalcão, iii, 221, 223
- Antonio de San Roman, • account of his history of India, ii, cxii
- Antonio da Silva, attacks the Moors at Nabande, i, 250
- Antonio de Sintra, carries messages between the viceroy and Dalboquerque, ii, 2 opens sealed instructions of the king appointing Dalboquerque governor, ib.
interview with Dalmeida on his
arrival at Cochim, 18, 19
advice to Dalmeida concerning Dal-
boquerque, 25
arranges requisition to Dalmeida not
to return to Portugal, 33
misrepresents Dalboquerque to the king of Cochim, ib.
reads requisition to Dalmeida not to return to Portugal, at his council, 35 is ordered to draw up articles against Dalboquerque, 36
report of his insolence to Dalbo-
querque, 39
visits F. Coutinho on his arrival at Cochim, 46
his false intelligence concerning the king of Cochim and the pepper
cargoes, 50
- Antonio de Sousa,
proclaims the new coinage in Malaca, iii, 141
despatched on a mission to Nar-singa, iv, 124
notice of, 127
- Antonio Vogado,
wounded at Orfação, i, 96
- Antonio Vogado (continued), takes part in attack on Ormuz, 115
takes part in the attack on Calayate, 220
attacks the Moors at Nabande, 249
- Antuge, Meliqueaye at, iii, 22
- Aqueduct near Adem, iv, 12.
- Aquilam, kingdom of,
or (Ghilan), a province of Persia, iv, 184
- Arabia, map of, i, 80 island of, land near Mascate called thus by the Moors, 84
description of, near the Red Sea, iv, 28, 29
description by Camoens, 30, 31
- Arguim,
arrival of Dalboquerque's fleet at, i, 18
- Armenia, Lower, iv, 184 invaded by the Xequé Ismael, 187
- Armorial bearings of Dalboquerque explained, iv, 214-216
- Arómata, Cape, iv, 29
- Arquico, iv, 30
- Arquico, Argeego, or Harkikó Bay, description of the district, iv, 38
- Arsinoe, or Suez, iv, 30, 31
- Articles offered by Dalboquerque as a basis of peace with the Xequé Ismael,
iv, 153
- Artillery, native, at Ormuz, iv, 172
- Arzila in Morocco, events at, iv, 216
- Arzina, or Arzira, mountains of, overlooking Adem, iv, 24 range of hills at Adem, iv, 30, 31
- Arzina, or Darsina, position of, iv, 7
- Ascension, island of,
T. da Cunha's fleet at, i, 24
- Asturcão of Cambay, iv, 108
- Asturmaleque of Cambay, iv, 108
- Ataa, Lord,
translation of Cogear, i, 227
- Augij, the pass strengthened, ii, 140 the pass crossed by the Hoidalção's army, ii, lxxxi, 155
- Austin friars of Lisbon, iv, 211, 212
- Aveiro, duke of,
at the funeral of Dalboquerque, iv, 211
- Azali,
a lord on the Abyssinian coast,
iv, 38
- Azamor, a Moor of, in the Portuguese service, iv, 48
- Azeitão, hospital built at, iv, 199
- Azores, the, discovered, ii, vi

- B.
- Babelmandem, gates of,
described, iv, 28
- Bacalor, trade in horses proposed at,
iv, 124
- Bacar, island of, in Sinde, iv, 101 site at, offered for a Portuguese fortress, 102
- Baçorá, Straits of,
importance of holding the, iv, 24
Gregorio da Quadra visits, 53
- Baçora, or Basrah, city or town of,
its position, iv, 186
See Bassora.
- Bagadlá, or Baghdad,
trade of, with Ormuz, iv, 186, 187
- Bahar Queixum,
Moorish name of the Red Sea Straits,
iv, 33
- Bahrem, island of,
taken from the king of Ormuz,
i, 84
See Barem.
- Baldrez, an interpreter, accompanies the reinforcements to Mandaloy, ii, 137
is sent to the Hídalcão as a hostage, 143
- Balogi, lord of Pervaloy, etc.,
co-operates with the Hídalcão against Dalboquerque, ii, lxxviii, 136
- Balthazar da Silva,
captain of the fleet, iii, 1
takes part in the attack on Goa, 8
his illness at Cananor, 50
- Banda, castle of,
surrenders to Dalboquerque, ii, 100 descent of the Hídalcão on, 137 arrival of Meliqueaye at, iii, 22
- Barapatane, harbour of, iv, 106
- Barbara, or Barbora, proceedings at, i, 58
notice of, iv, 10
ships from, taken by the Portuguese in the Red Sea, 28
Judá supplied from, 35
- Barbora fiara, situation of, i, 201
- Barbora jazira, situation of, ib.
- Barem Island, pearl-fishery of, iv, 114 article respecting the passage to, for the people of the Xêque Ismael, 153 account of, iv, 177, 187
See Baharem.
- Bassora,
description of, by Pedro Barretto de Resende, iv, 232 et seq.
See Baçorá.
- Bastião Gallego,
Meirinho of the fortress at Malaca,
iii, 166
- Bastiam, or Bastião, de Miranda, proceedings at attack on Ormuz, i, 116
attacks the Moors at Nabande, 249
present at council on proposed expedition against Calicut, ii, 55 forgiven by Dalboquerque for his bad treatment of him, 61
captain of the fleet, iii, 1
proceedings at the attack on Goa, 5
captain, sails to Malaca, 58
- Bastiam, or Bastião, Rodriguez, brings supplies to Dalboquerque at the siege of Benasterim, iii, 230 commands the tower of Divarij, 242
- Baticalá,
visit of V. da Gama to, ii, xxi Dalboquerque sends an embassy to make treaty of peace with, lxxxix, 226 ships sailing to, ii, 53 arrival of Fr. Luis at, 73 result of L. de Moreno's embassy to, 241
proceedings at, iii, 26 proposed erection of a fortress at, 37 the mint at Goa farmed out to a Chetim from, 41
desire of Dalboquerque to erect a storehouse in, 247
a ship surrendered to the Portuguese at, iv, 62
the harbour dismantled, 117 trade of horses proposed at, 124 condition of, at the death of Dalbo-
querque, 206
- Beatriz, Infante of Portugal, escorted to Savoy by a Portuguese fleet, iv, 217
- Bedalcuria, island of,
departure of Dalboquerque from Çocotora for, i, 199
proceedings there, 200
description of, 201
See Abedalcuria.
- Belem, in Portugal, sailing of the first expedition to Cochim in 1503 from, i, 2 prevalence of the plague at, 21 port of, iv, 199
- Belem*, ship so called,
D. Garcia de Noronha sails to Portugal in the, iv, 180 See Betlem.

- Benasterim, or Benastarim, the fortress strengthened, ii, lxxix, 140 arrival of the Hidalcão before, 141 a stockade erected at, lxxx, 150 inspection of the fortress by Dalbo-
querque, 153
the stockade forced, 156
M. da Cunha at, iii, 4 Pulatecão fortifies position at, 188 ejection of Pulatecão from, 191 further proceedings at, 192, 193 Dalboquerque determines to besiege it, 211
particulars of the siege, 213, 220, 226-228
evacuation by Roçalção and the Turks, 236-240
the fortress re-named the Castle of St. Peter, 242
- Bendará, the, of Malaca,
treatment of imprisoned Portuguese
by, iii, ix, 44 et seq.
plots to kill the king of Malaca, 59
reference to his death, 91
- Bendaraxaa,
a harbour at Bedalcuria, i, 201
- Bendariçaa,
a harbour at Bedalcuria, ib.
- Bendesymuçaa,
a harbour at Bedalcuria, ib.
- Bengála, trade voyages to, iv, 103 Portuguese intercourse with the kingdom of, iv, 206
- Benin, king of,
arrival in Portugal, ii, viii
- Benjabar, the,
aids the Moors in their defence of Mascate, i, 75
account of him and his dominions, 83, 84
has sovereignty over Soar, 92 and over Orfação, 100
- Bernaldim Freire,
accompanies Dalboquerque's expedition to Red Sea, ii, 81 force at Goa inspected by Dalbo-
querque, 152
captain of the Flor da Rosa, 190 attempts to rescue Ruy Diaz from hanging, ib.
suspended from his command, 192 sails to Portugal with Prester John's ambassador, iii, 253
his treatment of the latter, 254 and punishment by Dom Manuel, ib.
- Beroche, in Cambay, site at, offered for Portuguese ress, iv, 102
- Bersoré, king of Garçopa, co-operates with Dalboquerque against the Hidalcão, ii, lxxix, 138
- Bertolameu Diaz,
first doubled the Cape, i, xvi
- Bertolameu Pereira,
attacks the Moors at Nabande, i, 249
- Bertolameu Pessoa,
takes part in the attack on Calayate,
i, 220
- Betexagor Island, in Cambay, iv, 106
- Bethencourt (Jean de) settles in the Canary Islands, ii, vi, n.
Belem, ship, of J. de Melo Pereira,
ii, 48
See Belem.
- Bible reference to Siao Gaber, iv, 39
- Bilgão,
the Hindoos of, expel the Moors, iii, 36
and rebel against Hidalcão, ib.
account of the city, 37
- Bilrrane,
chief wife of the king of Cambay,
iv, 106
- Bintang, description of, iii, 75, n.
- Bisam,
death of Prester John's ambassador at, iii, xl
- Bisnaga,
arrival of the ambassadors from Narsinga at, iii, 38 meeting of Milrrhao and the king of Narsinga at, iii, 188
notice of, iv, 75
- Biyar-Ahmed, village of, iv, 12
- Biziguiche, arrival of T. da Cunha's fleet at,
i, 22
T. da Cunha sails from, 23
- Bombay,
Portuguese conquests in, ii, xcii
- Braboa,
arrival of T. da Cunha's fleet at,
i, 37
negotiations with the king, 37, 38
demand for tribute to Dom Manuel, 39
T. da Cunha threatens to attack the
city, 41
particulars of the attack, 41-43
the city burnt, 43
account of the city, 44
destroyed, ii, xli
- Bracelor, governor of,
See Retelim Chetim
- minism,
ent of the by other custo

- Brahmins,
 account of the, at Malabar, ii, 78 alleged to have been anciently Christians, lxv, 78 the mistake explained, lxvi capture of two Brahmin girls, ii, 195
- Bras Afonso, scrivener, at Malaca, iii, 166
- Bras da Silva,
 proceedings at the attack on Ormuz, i, 116
- Bras Teixeira,
 accompanies D. Fernando Coutinho to India, ii, lxii sent by Dalboquerque with message to Timoja at Onor, 53
- Bras Vieira,
 proceedings at Onor, ii, 202
- Brazil, discovery of, ii, iv
- British Museum,
 account of MSS. relating to Portuguese history in India, i, vii, xiii; ii, cxvii
- C.
- Çabaio, the, or Çabayo, lord of Goa, account of his capture of Goa from the Hindoos, ii, 96 embassy sent to, by the Xequé Ismael, iv, 82 palace of the, 122
See Goa.
- Çacizes, the,
 proceedings at Malaca, iii, 70
- Çacotora. See Çocotora.
- Çada Bay, proceedings at, ii, xl arrival of T. da Cunha at, i, 31
- Cadandin, the
 at war with Prester João, i, 202
- Caecoulão, or Caicoulão, cargo of pepper from, ii, 49 condition of, at the death of Dalboquerque, iv, 206
- Çafim, description of, iii, 184
- Cafres, the proceedings at the island of St. Lourenço, i, 31
- Caimais, the,
 expelled from Cochim, i, 3, 4 two, killed at Calicut, ii, 68
- Cairo,
 the Grand Sultan of, seeks alliance with the Çabaio of Goa, ii, 96 trade of the Moors with, iii, 33 the Sultan reported to be about to attack the Portuguese, iv, 9 news of the Portuguese sent to, 25 revolt at, ib.
- Cairo (continued),
 Judá subject to the Grand Sultan, 35 intended diverting of the Nile from, 36, 39 political condition of the district, 38, 39 news from, reaches Diu, 76 trade of, with Ormuz, 186 preparations of the Grand Sultan to attack Dalboquerque, 201 schemes against, 207
 fame of Dalboquerque throughout, ib.
- Calacêa, in Çacotora Island, position described, iv, 3
 the fleet at, 3, 4
- Calayate,
 the fleet of Dalboquerque makes for, i, 60 fishing ships from, burnt, 61 arrival of the fleet at, 62 negotiations with the Moors, 63-65 description of the city, 66 departure of Dalboquerque, 67 governed by the Benjaber of Ormuz, 84 account of a revolt at, 128 arrival of Dalboquerque and his fleet before, 215, 216 his determination to attack it, 217 account of the attack and capture, 217-221
 destroyed, ii, lviii arrival of Mafamede Maçari at, iii, 203 news brought from, to Dalboquerque, iv, 171 Dalboquerque captures a native vessel off, 193
- Calbergate,
 report of the Hídalcão's attack on, iii, 36 city of, iv, 83
- Calcocejo, or Caecocejo, relations with Cogear, i, 236, 243 receives letters from Dalboquerque, 243
- Çalema, iv, 100
- Calicut, account of, i, 1, n.
 news brought to Dalboquerque of sailing of ships from Calicut to Choromandel, i, 8 their arrival at Coulão, 12 and treatment by Dalboquerque, 12, 13 proceedings of Francisco Dalboquerque at, 17 bombarded by V. da Gama, ii, xxi
 the native army beaten, xxii

Calicut (continued), printed account of V. da Gama's second voyage to, noticed, xxiv proceedings at, xxvi

 pretended letter from the prince of, against Dalboquerque, 44 the letter concerning Dalboquerque announced a forgery, 47 sailing of six vessels of, with pepper, to the Straits of Meca, 49 its destruction decided upon, lxiii, 51 et seq.
 the governors send to beg peace, 59 report on its condition by the king of Cochin's spies, 58 arrival of Portuguese before, lxiv, 64 the attack on, 67-71
 the king's hostility to the king of Cochin, 236, 237, 240 embassy from, to Dalboquerque at Goa, iii, vii, 30-32 proposal to erect a Portuguese fortress at, 31 disaffection of the Camorim, 56 a gun belonging to the king of, captured at Malaca, 127 proceedings of Mafamede Maçari at, 202-204 G. de Noronha sent with a fleet against, 243 blockaded by G. de Noronha, 255 inscription on the view of the fortress, ir, xv ships from, captured by the Portuguese, 61, 62 proceedings with regard to the building of the fortress at, 63 council held upon the matter, 64 policy of Dalboquerque, 65, 69-71 he writes to the king of Portugal, 66 conditions offered to the Camorim, 67, 68 proceedings of G. de Noronha at, 71 the Camorim poisoned, 72
 the Camorim's brother succeeds to the throne and favours the Portuguese policy, ib.
 proceedings relative to the building of the fortress, 72-74 view of the fortress, 72 importance of the site, 74
 the fortress destroyed [in A.D. 1525], 75
 notice of, 101
 ships from, boarded by Pero Dalboquerque, 108, 109 the merchants required to build galleys for Dalboquerque, 130

Calicut (continued),

reference to Dalboquerque's narrow escape at, 167 importance of, 202
 condition of the fortress at the death of Dalboquerque, 208
See Camorim.
 Camarão, in the Red Sea, a watering station, ir, 27 Dalboquerque determines to make a treaty with, 28 description of the neighbouring coast, 34 Dalboquerque sets sail to, 40 and reaches the port, 42 Dalboquerque remains there for a time, 45, 47 a Portuguese messenger set on shore at, to return overland, 48 the Portuguese fleet leaves, 54
 Camarcand, a Tartar city, iv, 184
 Camatra, or Sumatra, the Flor de la Mar goes aground on the coast of, iii, 194 Cambay, or Cambaia, proceedings at, i, 58 trade with Braboa, 44
 one of the king's ships in the fleet of the king of Ormuz, i, 105 sinking of his ship at Ormuz, 112 preparations of the king to attack Dalboquerque, 196 capture of a ship of, by F. Pantoja, ii, lxxvii, 122 discussion on question of making peace with, 235 capture of the Meri, 208 sends ambassadors to treat for peace with Dalboquerque, lxxviii, 210 his letter and reply, 212, 215 effect of the news of the taking of Goa on the king of, iii, 19 trade of the Moors with, 33 merchandise from, 164 despatch of the king's ambassador from Goa, 244 arrival of a second ambassador in Goa, 245 account of the mission of Tristão Dega to, ir, 60 the cadí of Cairo sends apparel to the king of, 76 embassy sent to the king by the Xequé Ismael, 82-85 trade of, desired by the Portuguese, 101 description of the kingdom, 106 et seq.

- Cambay, or Cambaia (continued), condition of the kingdom at the death of Dalboquerque, 206
- Camillo Portio,
his oration to Leo X in praise of the capture of Malaca, etc., iii, 169 et seq.
account of, 171, n.
- Çamorim of Calicut, explanation of the name, i, 1 his relations with the king of Cochim, i, 3 reinforces the Naires at Repelim, 5 intrigues with the Nambeadarim of Coulão against the Portuguese, 9, 10 arrival of his fleet at Coulão, 11, 12
and treatment by Dalboquerque, 12, 13 reference to the, ii, 33, 50 his overthrow at Calicut decided on by Dalboquerque, 54-57
his forces defeated at Cochim, xxv receives news of the attack on Calicut, 72
his arrival and treatment of the inhabitants, ib.
sends embassy to Dalboquerque, iii,
vii, 30-32
his disaffection, 56 relations of Mafamede Maçari with
him, 202
desirous of being at peace with Portugal, 255
negotiations, 256, 257
desires permission to send ships to Adem, iv, 130
See Calicut.
- Campar, king of,
makes offers of friendship to Dalboquerque, iii, xxx, 159
- Caná, a desert near,
inhabited by the Alarves, iv, 36
description of the town, 38, 39
- Canal, traces of a, at Cairo, iv, 34
- Cananor,
alliance with Pedralvarez Cabral,
i, 2
proceedings of Francisco and Af. Dal-boquerque at, 16, 17-19 arrival of Dalboquerque's fleet, 255
visit of V. da Gama to, ii, xxi arrival of Dalboquerque at, xxvi, lix, 1
proceedings at, 1-5, 6-11 arrival of marshal F. Coutinho at, lxi, 45
arrival of D. de Lemos at, lxxvii, 124
- Cananor (continued), arrival of combined fleets of Dalboquerque and D. Mendez at, ii, lxxxvii, 202
proceedings at, 203
king's interview with Dalboquerque, ii, lxxxviii, 204
departure of Dalboquerque, 237 appointment of D. de Lemos as vice governor, ib.
Dalboquerque's arrival at, iii, 56
the Alguazil, attacks Pulatecio at Benasterim, 189
arrival of Dalboquerque at, 210
treatment of Prester John's ambassador at, 253
notice of, iv, 8
Jeronymo de Sousa sent to, 59
policy of the king, 64
Dalboquerque proceeds to, 74, 75 abuses there, regulated, 75 proceedings of Dalboquerque at, 78, 79
the messenger from the Xequé Ismael arrives at, 80
a ship of, seized by Lascars, 127
condition of, at the death of Dalbo-
querque, 206, 208
- Canarese in the Portuguese fleet,
iv, 1
- Canary islands discovered in 1424, ii,
vi
- Candaluz,
arrival of Simão Dandrade at, iii, 201
- Canicani, position of, iv, 7
- Canton, arrival of the Malay ambassador at,
iii, 132
- Capacia, Dalboquerque sails to the shoal of,
iii, 66
arrival of Duarte Fernandez at the shoal of, 155
- Cape Verd islands discovered, ii, vi Dalboquerque's fleet at, i, 18
- Cape of Good Hope,
first doubled by Bertolameu Diaz, i, xvi; ii, vii
- Capuchins, order of, iv, 53
- Carapuça de Ouro, explanation of, iii, 162
- Caravan route of Kosair, iv, 36, 38
- Caravans, iv, 38
- Caribal, proceedings at, iii, 27
- Castanheda, the historian, reference to his account of Dalboquerque's cruelty at Benasterim, iii, 238, n.

- Castile, kings of,
the family of Albuquerque descended from, iv, 213
- Catherina, regent of Portugal, iv, 210
- Catherine, Saint, iv, 30, 31
- Catholico, a coin, iii, 139
- Catife, or Al Katif,
on the Arabian coast, iv, 153 taken from the king of Ormuz by the Benjabar, i, 84
- Ceibão, or Saba island in Red Sea, João Gomez and D. Fernandez sent forward to, iv, 44
- Ceifadim, king of Ormuz, letter from the viceroy to, i, 226, 228 explanation of, 228, n.
refuses to pay tribute to Dalboquerque, 241 notice of his death by poison, iv, 109 result of his embassy to Portugal, 138, 141 reference to his death, 147, 150
notice referring to, 170 Dalboquerque orders his sons to be educated, 174 his sons entrusted to Pero Dalboquerque, 190
- Cenaguá,
arrival of Dalboquerque's fleet at, i, 18
- Ceremonious reception of the king of Ormuz by Dalboquerque, iv, 164, 165
- Cergol. See Sargol
- Ceuta, capture of, in 1415, ii, v
- Ceylon, island of,
its relations with the port of Coullão, i, 11 surrendered by Portugal in 1658, ii, xc voyage of Dalboquerque to, iii, 200
- Ceylon, iv, 206
- Chale, or Challe,
distance from Coullão, i, 11 proposal to erect a Portuguese fortress at, iii, 32 site of, offered to the Portuguese instead of Calicut, iv, 63
- Chamba, description of, iii, 79
- Champanel, or Champaner, city of, in Cambay, iv, 60, 83, 97
- Chaul, battle at, i, 222 capture of Moorish vessels from, iii, 201 a ship from, captured at Çacotora, iv, 4 Dalboquerque sails to, 59
Dalboquerque visits, 62
- Chaul (continued),
a rich spice ship delivered to the Portuguese at, ib.
notice of, 106
condition of, at the death of Dalboquerque, 206
description of the fortress and city by Pedro Barretto de Resende, 243 et seq.
- Cherinamercar, of Cochim, or Chirinamercar, his brother at Coullão, i, 11 persuades Dalboquerque to abandon his voyage to Malaca, iii, 56
- Chesney, Colonel,
his work on the Euphrates quoted, iv, 187
- Chetins, the,
in Malaca, iii, 129, 151
- China,
friendliness of Chinese merchants to Dalboquerque at Malaca, iii, xxi, 97-99 account of the king of Malaca's embassy to, xxv, 131 and its failure, 134 account of the first dealings of Portugal with China, xxvi-xxix arrival of the Chinese captains at Siam and their reception, 153-155 Portuguese relations with, iv, 206
- Chorão, island of, or Choram, reinforcements for, iii, 53 command of it given to M. Fragoso, iii, 242
- Christian antiquities at Coçaer, iv, 38
- Christians, at Coullão, proceedings of, i, 14-16 in Çacotora conciliated by T. da Cunha, 53 desertion of four Christians at Ormuz, 160-162 Cogeatar refuses to give them up, 163-172 fate of, in Malaca, iii, 90 et seq.
- Christopher Columbus, reference to his discoveries, ii, ii, iii
- Christovão de Azevedo,
attacks the Moors at Nabande, i, 250
- Christovão de Brito, chief captain of the 1514 Portuguese fleet to India, iv, 119
- Christovão Cercado,
scrivener of the factory at Ormuz, iv, 113
- Christovão Dalmeida,
in charge of the hospital at Malaca, iii, 166

Christovão Graces,
in command at Malaca, iii, 166

Christovão de Magalhaes,
attacks the Moors at Nabande, i, 250

Christovão Mascarenhas,
in command at Malaca, iii, 166

Christovão da Tavora, captain, iv, 194

Churches, Christian, spared by the Xequê Ismael, iv, 184

Cide Ale,
letters of, intercepted, iv, 193, 194

Cide Barbudo, expedition to Cape of Good Hope,
ii, xxxii

Cintaçora, castle of,
Dalboquerque anchors his fleet at, ii, 84
and takes the castle, lxviii, 86 state of the fortress, 135 negotiations concerning, 186
proceedings at, iii, 26, 27

Cira, or Sirah, island, iv, 11 attack on the Portuguese by the Moors on the, 22, 23
taken by D. Garcia de Noronha, 56

Cistern, an ancient, at Perim, iv, 55

Clemente Tosi (Father), quotation from his work L'India Orientale,
iv, 107

Çoar, situation of, iv, 32

Coçair, or Kosair,
a desert near, inhabited by the Alarves, iv, 36, 39
description of the town, 38

Cochim,
the first expedition to, i, 2 relations with the Çamorim, 3 the king's joy at the arrival of Francisco Dalboquerque, 3 expulsion of the Caimais and Naires, 3, 4
the fortress commenced, 5, 6 Dalboquerque sails for Cananor, 16 arrival of the disaffected captains at, 205 arrival of V. da Gama at, ii, xvii visited by V. da Gama, xxii opposition of the natives to the Portuguese at, xxiv expedition of the Dalboquierques to,
xxv
a fortress erected, ib.
proceedings at, xxvi
complaints made against Dalboquerque to Dalmeida at, lvii
arrival of Dalboquerque at, 4
proceedings at, 4-45
non-arrival of pepper at, 24, 25

VOL. IV.

Cochim (continued), opinion of the king of, on the differences between Dalmeida and Dalboquerque, 26
arrival of D. L. de Siqueira at, 31 the king of, is asked to sign requisition in favour of Dalmeida, 33
but refuses, 34
visits Dalboquerque and Coutinho concerning the pepper, 49 informed of Dalboquerque's intended expedition against Calic-cut, his support asked and promised, lxiii, 54, 55 report of his spies on the state of Calicut, 58
asked to send supplies to Goa, 133 Dalboquerque orders his sick forces to be taken to, 193 arrival of L. Moreno, the new factor of, at Cananor, 224
death of the king, xc, 236 departure of Dalboquerque for, 237
the new king established, xc, 238
et seq.
fealty of the king to Dom Manuel, 239 interview of Dalboquerque with the king, iii, 56
departure, 57
departure of Dalboquerque in search of the Rumes, 210
a captain appointed, iv, 1 Jeronymo de Sousa sent to, 59
the Meri refitted at, 61
policy of the king, 64, 65
Dalboquerque visits, 68
the king's temper, 68, 69 interviews the king, 69-71
Dalboquerque reaches, 80
D. Garcia de Noronha takes his ship from, to Goa, 129
Jorge Dalboquerque summoned
from, 129
Diogo Mendez appointed captain of,
194
D. Garcia de Noronha reaches, en route for Portugal, 180 importance of, 202
condition of, at the death of Dalbo-
querque, 206, 208

Çoco, port of, in Cocotora, the fleet of T. da Cunha at, ii,
xlii
the fortress attacked and destroyed,
ib.
position of, iv, 3

Y

- Çocotorá, or Çacotorá, desire of Dom Manuel for erection
 of a fortress at, i, 20 proposal to build a fortress at, i, 26, 31
 arrival of T. da Cunha's fleet at Çoco, the port of, 45
 the attack on the Moorish fortress
 at, 45-52
 the Christians conciliated, 53
 Portuguese officers appointed, 54
 Dalboquerque left in charge, 54
 provisions, etc., sent by Dalboquerque to, 149
 despatch of M. Telez to, 175 anxiety of Dalboquerque to send supplies to, 194, 195
 arrival of Dalboquerque at, 197
 departure from, 199, 213
 construction of fortress at, ii, xxxvii Dalboquerque charged with quitting, without the king's order, 7
 his reasons for same, ib.
 demand for ships from D. de Lemos
 at, lxiii, 60, 61
 supplies sent by Dalboquerque to,
 lxxvii, 121
 wreck of spice ships at, iii, 33
 account of a storm at, 257
 the fleet anchors off Çoco, iv, 3
 native Christians at, 4 Pero Dalboquerque cruises about, 109
- Çodamacão,
 chief Alguazil of Madoval, ir, 98
et seq.
- Codiceira, castle of, ir, 215
- Çofala,
 trade with Anjoja, i, 36
 and Braboa, 44
 ruled over by the Preste João, ir, 38
- Cogeamir,
 sent by the viceroy to Cogear, i, 226
 bears letter from the king of Ormuz
 to the viceroy, 241
 a Moor of Cananor, attends Ruy
 Gomez on his embassy to Xequé
 Ismael and to Ormuz, ii, 110 arrival at Ormuz and reception by Cogear, 120
 return to India, ib.
 his treachery to Dalboquerque, iii, 40
 is put in irons, 41
- Cogear,
 advises the king of Ormuz in his
 negotiations with Dalboquerque,
i, 108, 111
- Cogear (continued), proceedings at Dalboquerque's at tack on Ormuz, 117
 sends flag of truce to Dalboquerque 120 his evil counsel to the king of Or-
 muz, 122, 123
 negotiations with Dalboquerque 124-128
 gives account of his connection with Ormuz, 128
 and asks to be sent to Calayate, his native place, ib.
 consults with the king of Ormuz concerning Dalboquerque's demands, 128-131
 receives the flag of peace and signs
 the treaty, 132-134
 is present at the interview between Dalboquerque and the king, 135, 136 proceedings on the proposed erection of a fortress, 138-143
 suspicious conduct at Ormuz, 143-146 conciliated by presents from Dalboquerce, 145
 hears of Dalboquerque's disagreement with his fleet, 160
 sends rebellious messages to Dalbo-
 querce, 160-164
 his conduct concerning the Christians who deserted from Dalbo-
 querce, 160-172
 proceedings at the pools of Turum-
 baque, 176, 177 180
 proceedings concerning the want of
 water, 181 185
 procures a fleet from Julfar, 192, 194 seeks assistance from the Sultan and
 the king of Cambaya, 196
 sends two Moors to parley with Dalboquerque, 197
 is threatened by the latter, 197, 198
 dealings with the Rustazes, 222
 and with Xarafadin, 223 proceedings on arrival of the Portuguese fleet at Ormuz, 224, 225
 sends flag of truce, 226
 and letters to Dalboquerque, ib.
 letter from the viceroy to him, 227
 further correspondence with Dalbo-
 querce, 228-238
 demand for tribute made by Dalbo-
 querce, 239
 his ref- ib.
 furth- with Dalbo-
 q- q-

- Cogeatar (continued),
 procures assistance from Julfar and Persia, 246
 proceedings at Ormuz, ii, xlvi, liv, 8, 9
 asked by Dalmeida if he has complaints to make against Dalboquerque, 36 sends an ambassador to Dalboquerque at Goa, 109 pays tribute to Dalboquerque, iii, 29
 death of, iv, 77
 policy of, with regard to Cambay, 82
 embassy from, to Portugal, 133, n.
 his treaty, or contract, 141
 notice of his death, 134, 138
 reference to his death, ii, 42; iv, 147, 148
 reference to, 170, 171
- Cogebeirame,
 conducts negotiations with Dalboquerque on behalf of the king of Ormuz, i, 107-111; ii, xlvi recommends Turumbaque for the erection of a fortress, 139
- Cogebequi, a Moor,
 sent by the governors of Calicut to beg a peace from Dalboquerque, ii, 59 imprisoned, and finally sent home, 59, 60 attends interview between Dalboquerque and Mostafação at Pangij, 186
- Cogequirmani,
 sent to explore the Moluccas, iii, 162
- Coinage,
 establishment of a mint at Goa, iii, ix, 41
 value of Malaca coins, 78, 80
 a new coinage established in Malaca, 137-143
- Cojeabraham,
 dealings with Utemutaraja and Dalboquerque in Malaca, iii, 147, 148
- Comorim, Cape of,
 limit of Portuguese influence, iv, 205, 206
- Comoro, islands of,
 arrival of Dalboquerque at, i, 32
- Conaique, Hindoo captain,
 killed, iii, 229
- Condal,
 descent of the Hidalção on, ii, 137
 arrival of Meliqueaye at, iii, 22
- Coptos, or Kuft, iv, 38
- Corações, the
 proceedings at Malaca, iii, 69
 evacuate Benasterim, 237
- Corço, Silvestre, captain, conveys Dalboquerque to Ormuz, ic, 143
- Corfacam. See Orfação.
- Corinth, origin of, iv, 186
- Corn, exportation of, iv, 38
- Coromandel, ships bound for, i, 7, 8 cargoes of pepper bound for, ii, 50
 capture of a ship from, 62
- Cottineau de Kloguen (Rev. Denis Lewis), reference to his account of Goa, ii, lxix
 his history of Goa, with account of his travels, xvii
- Coulão, or Coulam,
 Dalboquerque goes hither for cargo of spice, i, 6-8 friendship made between Dalboquerque and the king, 9-11
 description of the port, 11
 arrival of Moorish ships from Calicut, 12
 and their treatment by Dalboquerque, 12, 13
 arrangements for government of, 14-16
 visited by V. da Gama, ii, xxii
 proceeding at, xxvi
 cargo of pepper from, 49
 notice of, iv, 101
 fortress of St. Thomas built in 1514 at, 119, n.
- Crato, Prior of,
 letter to, from Dalmeida complaining of Dalboquerque, ii, 4
 reference to, ii, 32
- Cross, the true,
 piece of the wood of, sent by Pres-ter John for Dom Manuel, iii, 251, 252 wood of, worn round the neck by Garcia de Sousa, iv, 21
- Cross,
 seen by Dalboquerque in the sky, 44, 45
 its signification, ib.
- Çuaquem, island of,
 news of vessels of merchandise bound for, ii, 229
 description of the district, iv, 38
- Çufim,
 trade of the Moors between Calicut and, iii, 33

- Curia Maria
   adventures of Dalboquerque's fleet near, i, 57-59 proceedings of the fleet at, 54
- Curraça
   arrival of Dalboquerque with his fleet at, i, 69 account of the attack and destruction of, 66-71
   description of the town, 71
   burnt by Dalboquerque, ib., xvi the fleet from Goa stands off, ir, 136 account of the fortress, by Pedro Barreto de Resende, 229 et seq.
- Currate, or Surraç
   doings of the Xeque Ismael's ambassador at, ir, 85 Pero Queimado and Ganapatim sent to, 95 their return, 97
   site at, offered for a Portuguese fortress, 102 the Portuguese ambassador's return to, 105
- D.
- Dabidastur, of Cambay, ir, 108
- Dabul,
   the surrender of, demanded by Dalboquerque, ii, 146 proceedings of Cogeamir at, iii, 40 capture of Moorish vessel from, 201 opening of the port for merchants' ships, 244 Dalboquerque visits, ir, 62 ships at, delivered to the Portuguese, 62 blockaded, ib.
   port of, 81
   the Xeque Ismael's ambassador at, 83 Miguel Ferreira at, 86
   trade of, 125, 127
   D. de Sousa cruises off, 128
   condition of, at the death of Dalboquerque, 206
- Dalaca, or Dahalak bank, and islands, situation of, ir, 37
   pearl-fishing at, 45
   exploration of, ordered by Dalboquerque, ib.
   result, 47
- Dalboquerque Castle, ir, 213-215
- Damascus,
   the governor summoned to the Xeque Ismael, iv, 25
- Dancaë
   a herd of the Abyssinian coast (now a district known as Dankali), ir, 38
- Panda in the Chaul district, ir, 62
- Parua cape,
   arrival of Dalboquerque's fleet at, i, 15
- Parua
   intended attack of the Malays on, iii, xxi, 98
   account of, 194
- Decan, kingdom of, ir, 106 invasion of, proposed, 126 policy of Dalboquerque against, ir, 205
- Deli, Mount de.
   See Monte de Deli.
- Delhi, kingdom of, ir, 106
- Desert, Arabian,
   sufferings of Gregorio da Quadra in, ir, 51
- Desturcho,
   ruler of Currate, ir, 95 negotiations of the Portuguese with, 96 et seq.
- Diaz, Admiral,
   doubles the Stormy Cape, i, xvi; ii, vii
- Diego Homem,
   map of the Malay Peninsula from his Portolano, ii, 1
- Dinheiro, a coin, iii, 138
- Dinis, king of Portugal, ir, 213, 221
- Dinis Cerniche,
   captain of the fleet, iii, 1
   takes part in the attack on Goa, 8 advises D. Mendez to sail for Malaca, 49 condemned to death, but reprieved, 54
- Dinis Fernandes, or Fernandez, afterwards chief superintendent of India, proceedings at Coko, i, 51 proceedings as Mascate, 75 master of the Cirne, 250 sent to Lara for water, 251
   proceedings at Queixome, 253, 254 arrives at Cananor, 256; ii, lx brings news of the treachery of the Xabandar, 141 takes part in the attack on Pangij, 176, 177 reconnoitres the enemy's fleet, 178
   takes part in the attack on Goa, iii, 8-11
   wounded at Goa, 13
   sent on board a captured Moorish vessel, 201

- Diniz Fernandez de Melo, appointed to F. de Tavora's ship, i, 160 chief Patrão, sails to Malaca, iii, 58
 attacks Malaca, 102, 123
- Dio, proceedings at, i, 58. See Diu.
- Diocalij,
 Meliqueaye retires to, iii, 24
- Diogo, Master,
 preaches at Cochim in Dalmeida's favour, ii, 17
- Diogo Barbosa Machado, reference to his work on Portuguese literature, ii, cvii; iv, xxii
- Diogo Borges,
 sent as scrivener to the Moluccas, iii, 162
- Diogo Camacho,
 wounded at Calayate, i, 218
 scrivener of the hospital at Malaca, iii, 166
- Diogo Correa,
 sent with provisions and stores to Çocotora, ii, 62 reports result of expedition against Calicut to D. de Lemos, lxiii, 36 is sent with message from Dalboquerque to D. de Lemos, 73 reference to, in a letter of Dalboquerque's, 101, 122 fears concerning his safety, 207 sends forces to assist R. Rabelo against Pulatecão, iii, 189 captain of Cananor, sends news of a fleet of Rumes sent against Goa, 206
- Diogo de Couto,
 his history of Portuguese power in India, ii, cix
- Diogo Dandrade, or de Andrade, page of the royal chamber, takes part in escalade of Adem, iv, 20 appointed scrivener of Ormuz, 191
- Diogo Estaco,
 takes part in escalade of Adem, iv, 20
- Diogo Fernandez, Adail of Goa, commands the Canarese in expedition against the Hídalcão, ii, lxxix, 137 their defeat, 138
 his bravery at the siege of Goa, 157 becomes hostage at Pangij, 184 imprisoned, iii, 54
 assists in attack on Roçalção, 221 sent on an embassy to the Hídalcão, 244
- Diogo Fernandez (continued), noticed, iv, 83
 notice of his return to Goa, 125
 captain, sails with the fleet from Goa to Ormuz, 132
- Diogo Fernandez de Béja, saves Dalboquerque's life at siege of Calicut, ii, 70 accompanies Dalboquerque's expedition to Red Sea, 81
 attacks Goa, 89
 sent to Cintácora to rebuild the fortress, 135 sent with reinforcements to Mandaloy, 137 returns from Candal with his fleet, lxxxi, 152 reports on the Hídalcão's army, ib.
 co-operates with A. de Noronha in defending the passes, ib.
 sent by Dalboquerque as a hostage to the Turks at Pangij, 167 heads the attack on Pangij, 176
 reconnoitres the enemy's fleet, 178 puts it to flight, 179
 attends negotiations at Pangij, 184 obtains supplies for the fleet at Pangij, 195
 captain of the fleet, iii, 1 reconnoitres the port of Goa, 5 captures a Moorish interpreter, ib.
 defeats attack of Meliqueaye on Goa, 22 commands expedition against Çocotora, 28
 his instructions, 29
 arrives at Goa, 191
 assists Roçalção against Pulatecão, 192 takes part in attack on Roçalção, 223
 wounded, 258
 captain of Dalboquerque's ship, sails from Goa, iv, 2 assists to get the flagship off when grounded at Luya, 42 sent on an embassy to Cambay, 94 progress of, 95
 reaches Madoval, 98
 reception of, 99
 proceedings of, in Cambay, 100-112 interview of, with the king of Ormuz, 141 hostage at Ormuz, 143-146
 captain of the Flor da Rosa, 191 conveys Dalboquerque from Ormuz to Goa, 193

- Diogo Fernandez de Béja (continued), orders the body of Dalboquerque to be conveyed to Goa, 197
- Diogo Fernandez Correa, advises the expulsion of the Caimais from Cochim, i, 3
- Diogo Fernandez Piteira, master of Dalboquerque's ship, Cirne, i, 21
- Diogo Guisado, attacks the Moors at Nabande, i, 249
- Diogo Lopez de Siqueira, sent by the king to discover Malaca, ii, 31 requests the liberation of J. de Melo, ib.
is offered the post of chief captain of India by Dalmeida, but declines it, 31, 32 ingratiates himself with Dalmeida, 32 present at viceroy's council, 35 ready to set out to Malaca, lx, 45 takes in charge certain men implicated in matters concerning Dalboquerque, ib.
his proceedings at Malaca, lxv, 73 reference to his expedition to Malaca, 221 reference to his governorship of India, 234 portrait of, ib.
reference to his departure from Malaca, iii, 47 treason of the Malays on, 55 treason against, 59, 66 compensation to, 96
further reference to his treatment at Malaca, 120, 135, 152
- Diogo Machado, attacks the Moors at Nabande, i, 250
- Diogo de Melo, proceedings at Cape Guardafum, i, 202 desire to quit Dalboquerque, 213, 215 proceedings at the attack on Calayate, 217, 219, 220 proceedings at the well of Lara, 245, 246 proceedings at Nabande, 251 his vessel lost, 252 lost off Lara, ii, lix
- Diogo Mendez Correa, sent to Portugal, i, 33
- Diogo Mendez de Vasconcellos, account of his expedition from Portugal to Malaca, ii, lxxvi, 196, n.
- Diogo Mendez (continued). his meeting with Dalboquerque's fleet off Anjadiva, 199
the two fleets sail for Cananor, 201
proceedings there, 203
is anxious to set out for Malaca, 219 his arguments with Dalboquerque, ib.
agrees to remain at Cananor, 220, 223 reprimanded by Dalboquerque, ii, 231 proceedings at the siege of Benasterim, ib.
takes oath of fealty, 232 advocates another attack on Goa, 235
captain of the fleet, iii, 1 discusses mode of attack on Goa, 7 takes part in the attack, 8, 11, 15 wishes to sail for Malaca, ix, 48, 49 but is detained by Dalboquerque, 50 sets out secretly, 51
but is pursued and brought back, 52 is put under arrest, 53 and sentenced to be sent back to Portugal, 54 made captain of Benasterim fortress, 190 asks Manuel de Lacerda for help against the Hidalcão, ib.
helps Roçalção to turn out Pulatecão from Benasterim, 192 entry into Goa demanded by Roçalção, 193 receives news of Dalboquerque's quick arrival at Goa, 206 captain of Cochim, iv, 194
- Diogo Neto, proceedings at attack on Ormuz, i, 116
- Diogo Pereira, advice to Dalmeida concerning Dalboquerque, ii, 25 is sent with message to the latter, ib.
arranges requisition to Dalmeida not to return to Portugal, 33 opposes Dalboquerque's local government in Goa, iii, 42 proceedings at Cochim, 204, 205, 209
recommends the surrender of Goa, 258
at Cochim, iv, 68
- Diogo Pirez, arranges requisition to Dalmeida not to return to Portugal, iii, 33

- Diogo Rodriguez,
reports J. de Christus's remarks on state of the country to J. de Nova, ii, 40
- Diogo da Silva,
count of Portalegre, iv, 217
- Diolicindi, or Diolocindi, situation of, iv, 59, 154
- Diu,
intelligence of the sultan's fleet at,
i, 196
the Rumes at, ii, ix, 1 island of, taken by the Portuguese, xcii
offered by the king of Cambaya as a Portuguese fortress, iii, 19 permission asked to erect a Portuguese fort at, 245
importance of the site, iv, 24
Dalboquerque reaches, 59
proceedings there, ib.
factory appointed at, ib.
news sent to Dalboquerque from, 75 fortress of, 98, 100
a native vessel from, captured, 193
- Diva, island of,
capture of Moorish ship from, i, 201
- Divarij, island of,
proceedings of J. da Cunha at, ii, 137 advance of Maliqueaye on, iii, 23 command of the tower of, given to B. Rodriguez, 242
- Djidlah. See Judá.
- Dofar, the fleet at, i, 58 governed by the Benjabar of Ormuz, 84 commerce of, with Çocotora, iv, 4 description of, by Camoens, 30, 31
- Domingo Fernandez, pilot, sent to visit Ceibão, iv, 43 and to explore Dalaca I., 45 explores Perim I., 54
burns Moorish shipping at Adem, 57
- Domingos, Fr., vicar-general of India, present at the death of Dalboquerque, iv, 196
- Domingos Pousado,
reference to a theft by, ii, 41
- Duarte Barbosa,
superintends building of galleys, iv, 130 ordered to prepare galleys at Cali-
cut, 179
- Duarte Fernandez,
sent as ambassador to Sião, iii, xxv, 114 his arrival and reception, 153, 154 and return, 154, 155
- Duarte de Lemos,
asks for fresh ships for his expedition on Arabian coast, ii, lxiii, 60 his anger at death of V. da Silveira, 63 passes winter at Melinde, lxiii, 63 a messenger sent by Dalboquerque
to, 73
receives letter from Dalboquerque, 121
his treatment of the latter's messenger, 123
departs for Cananor, 124 arrival at Cananor, lxxxviii, 206 interview with Dalboquerque, 206-208 his behaviour concerning the prize ship Meri, 209
quarrels with Dalboquerque, 213 opposes his wish to send L. Moreno to Baticalá, 225
receives letter from Dom Manuel ordering his return to Portugal, 234 discourages attack on Goa, 235 is made vice-governor of Cananor, xc, 236
dissensions with the captains at Cochim, 242
departs for Portugal, ib.
description of, ib.
reconnoitres the fort of Goa, iii, 5 his ill will to Dalboquerque, 209 wreck of a brigantine in his fleet, iv, 46, 49
- Duarte Lemos da Trofa, his brother, Fernão Gomez de Lemos,
iv, 175
- Duarte de Melo,
takes part in attack on Ormuz, i, 115
takes part in the attack on Calayate, 220 reports loss of his brother's vessel, 252, 253
present at council on proposed expedition against Calicut, ii, 55
accompanies Dalboquerque's proposed expedition to Red Sea, 81
reconnoitres fleet of Diogo Mendez
off Anjadiva, 199
captain of the fleet, iii, 1
chief captain, appointed to cruise along the coast of Goa, 43 appointed captain of the sea at Goa, 206
sails from Goa, iv, 2
takes part in the escalade of Adem, 20

- Duarte de Melo (continued),
sails with the fleet from Goa to Ormuz, 132 employed in the negotiations at Ormuz, 143
- Duarte Pacheco,
assists in defeating the Naires at Repelim, i, 5
- Duarte da Silva,
present at council at Cochim, ii, xc is despatched to bring back D. Mendez to Goa, iii, 51 his action thereon, 52
captain, sails to Malaca, 58
attacks Malaca, 102, 112
- Duarte de Sousa de Portalegre, sent with Portuguese to land at Soar, i, 89
proceedings at attack on Ormuz, 114
proceedings at Ormuz, 181
and at the port of Nebande, 184 attacks the Moors at Nebande, 249 arrested by Dalmeida, ii, 43 made captain of the stockade at Beuasterim, 150 Dalboquerque's instructions to, ir, 128
- Duarte Tavares, sent with message by Roçalção to the captain of Goa, iii, 192
- Duarte Vaz,
negotiates with Desturção, ir, 96 interview of, with the king of Ormuz, 138 et seq.
- Dumbes, or Domus,
site at, offered for a Portuguese fortress, ir, 102
- Durazzo, account of, iii, 185
- Dutch, the,
their conquests at Goa, Cochim, etc., in seventeenth century, ii, xciii
- E.
- Ebers (G.),
description of Keneh by, ir, 38
- Eid, in Red Sea, ir, 32
- Elati, title of the Preste João, ir, 38
- Elephants,
employed in the dockyard of Cochim, iv, 208
- Enxobregas*,
name of a ship left with merchandise at Diu, iv, 59 (name of a place near Belem, in Portugal. See Castanheda, ii, ch. cxii, p. 355)
- Era, calculation of the, ir, 215
- Estevão Baiam,
arrested for disaffection to Dalboquerque, ii, 134
is released, ib.
- Estevão de Freitas, brings news of an embassy to Prester John, iii, 250
- Estevão da Gama,
governor of India in 1539, ii, xcii
- Eufrates, river,
description of, ir, 187
- Evora, city of, iv, 10
- Ezion Geber,
mistaken reference to, iv, 39
- F.
- Faria y Sousa,
his history of Portuguese Asia, ii, cxii
- Fartaque, or Furtaque,
the fleet at, i, 58
governed by the Benjabar of Ormuz, 84
cape, ir, 30, 31
- Fartaquins,
proceedings at Çocotora, i, 26 proceedings at Çoco, 46-52 persuade the Christians of Çocotora to revolt, 55 settle in Çocotora, ir, 3, 4 news of the doings conveyed to Dalboquerque, 76, 77
- Feliz, description of, i, 201
- Female warriors of Mandão, iv, 84
- Fernando II, king of Castile, his opinion of Dalboquerque, ir, 199
- Fernando Coutinho, marshal, arrives at Cananor, ii, lxi, 45 takes Dalboquerque, as captain-general of India, to Cochim, 46 disbelieves charges against the latter, ib.
is visited by A. de Sintra, ib.
and received by Dalmeida at Cochim, 47 tries to reconcile Dalmeida and Dalboquerque, ib.
receives visit from the king of Cochim, 49, 50 advises the destruction of Calicut, lxiii, 51, 52 informs the king of Cochim of the intended expedition, 54 holds council respecting it, 55 et seq.
present at interview between Dalboquerque and V. da Silveira, 61 pacifies the latter, ib.
arrives with the fleet off Calicut, lxiv, 63

- Fernando Coutinho (continued), holds council concerning disembarkation, 64
 disagreement with Dalboquerque, 65, 66 his obstinacy in the attack, his defeat and death, 67-70
- Fernão Afonso, master of the flagship, burns Moorish shipping at Adem, iv, 57
- Fernão Dalboquerque,
 reference to his daughter's marriage with J. Barreto, ii, 11
- Fernão Dalvarez, receives orders concerning the erection of a fortress at Ormuz, i, 142
- Fernão Dianes, captain (called Fernãoodianes), sails with the fleet from Goa to Ormuz, iv, 133
- Fernão Feijo,
 is wounded at Ormuz, i, 180
 takes part in the attack on Goa, iii, 8
- Fernão Gomez,
 proceedings at Melinde and at Cape Guardafum, i, 202 his journey across Africa, ii, lvii news of, lxxxix, 229
- Fernão Gomez de Lemos,
 attacks Malaca, iii, 102, 106, 108
 takes part in the siege of Benasterim, 216
 sails from Goa, iv, 2
 assists when the flagship grounds off Luya, 41 proceedings of at Mangalor, 62
 captain, sails with the fleet from Goa to Ormuz, 132 sent on an embassy to the Xequé Ismael, 175 et seq.
- Fernão Gonçalves, count, inscription placed by, over Dalboquerque's tomb, iv, 209
- Fernão Jacome,
 made chief alcaide at Çocotora, i, 54
 fears concerning his safety, ii, 207 capture of his ship, and death, ii, 211, 212 noticed, iii, 191
- Fernão Lopez,
 proceedings at Benasterim, and treatment by Dalboquerque, iii, 238, 239 settles at St. Helena, 239, 240 account of his life there, xxxv-xxxix
- Fernão Lopez de Castanheda, his history of Portuguese power in India, ii, cxi
- Fernão de Loronha, sent to Portugal, i, 33
- Fernão Machado,
 assists in attack on Roçalção, iii, 221
- Fernão de Magalhães,
 present at council at Cochim, ii, xc
- Fernão Martinz Coelho, appointed factor at Diu, iv, 59
- Fernão Martinz Dalmada, adventures on voyage from Cochim to Portugal, i, 17
- Fernão Martinz Evangelho, sends news to Dalboquerque from Diu, iv, 75-77 sent to visit the king of Lara, 180
- Fernão Perez de Andrade, present at the quarrel between F. de Tavora and J. de Melo, ii, 29 takes the challenge, ib.
 present at council on proposed expedition against Calicut, 55 forgiven by Dalboquerque for his bad treatment of him, 61
 accompanies Dalboquerque's expedition to Red Sea, 81
 his forces at Goa inspected by Dalboquerque, 152 is ordered to sail over the bar at Goa, 170
 his vessel wrecked, ib.
 attempts to rescue Ruy Diaz from hanging, 190-192
 is put in irons, 192
 released, 208
 captain of the fleet, iii, 1; iv, 194
 attacks Malaca, 102, 104, 124, 130
 in command of the fleet at Malaca, 166 attacks Malays, iv, 90 victory of, 91, 92
- Fernão de Resende, captain,
 sails with the fleet from Goa to Ormuz, iv, 133
- Fernão Soarez,
 takes part in attack on Orfação, i, 96
 proceedings at the attack on Ormuz, 116 mediates between Dalboquerque and the rebellious captains, 172 routs the Moors at Queixome, 191 sent by Dalboquerque after the runaway captains at Ormuz, 195 arrival at Cochim with messages from Dom Manuel, 211 deserts Dalboquerque at Ormuz, ii, 1
 his treatment at Cananor by Dalmeida, ib.
 behaviour to Dalboquerque, 4
 his desertion reported to the king, 5
- Fernão Telez Dandrade, captain, sails to Malaca, iii, 58

- Fernão Vaz,
takes part in the attack on Calayate,
i, 230
sent to Timor to be captain of Hindoos, ii, 227
- Fernão Vaz Dourado, account of his MS. Portolano, ii, cxviii
reference to his atlas in the British Museum, 169
- Filippe Rodriguez,
is killed at Calicut, ii, lxiv, 70
- Fire, ray of,
seen in the sky: its significance, ir, 48
- Fizam (or Hawisa) river,
description of, ir, 187
- Flag of the Portuguese hoisted at Ormuz,
i, 132; ir, 146
- Flags suspended over the coffin of Dalboquerque,
ir, 212
- Flor da Rosa, ship, ir, 191
- Flor de la Mar, ship, mention of, ii, 40
wrecked off Daru, iii, 194 et seq.
account of what was lost, 198, 199
- Focate, or Hokát, bay of, ir, 11
- Fortifications,
Portuguese method of making, ir, 146, 147
- Franciscan friars of Lisbon, ir, 211
- Francisco, confessor of Dalboquerque, is asked to give information against Dalboquerque, ii, 43
- Francisco Alvarez,
reference to his account of R. de Lima's embassy to Abyssinia in 1520, iii, xi, xli
- Francisco de Azevedo, made scrivener of the fortress of Malaca, iii, 166
- Francisco Cardoso,
almoxarife of the armoury at Malaca,
iii, 166
- Francisco Corvinel,
present at council at Cochim, ii, xc
present at council on proposed expedition against Calicut, 55
accompanies Dalboquerque's expedition to Red Sea, 81
becomes hostage at Pangij, 184 appointed factor in Goa, iii, 43
- Francisco Dalboquerque, sent on an expedition to Cochim,
i, 2
received by the king, 3 discusses business with the factor,
ib.
rids the island of the Çaimais and Naires, 3, 4
- Francisco Dalboquerque (continued), begins to build the fortress, 6 has differences with his cousin Afonso, 7, 8
proceedings at Cananor, 16-19
sails for Portugal and is lost, 19 expedition to Cochim, ii, xxv proceedings there, xxvi perishes on his return voyage, xxvi
- Francisco Dalboquerque, a converte Jew, account of, ii, 230
negotiates at Ormuz, ir, 109 et seq.
- Francisco Dalmeida, or de Almeida, portrait of, ii, 48
appointed to the government of India for three years, i, 20 reference to his murder at Saldanha 33 complaint made to him against Dalboquerque, 205-209
orders an information to be laid against him, 209
receives orders to return to Portugal, 211, 212 letters to Cogeatar, 227 and to the king of Ormuz, 228 reception of Dalboquerque at Cans-nor, 256
account of his expedition to India in 1505, ii, xxix receives complaints of Dalboquerque at Cochim, lvii
notice of his recall, lviii prepares to attack the Rumes at Divlx, 1
dissensions and interviews with Dalboquerque, ib.
refuses to give up to the latter the government and command of
fleet, 2, 3
letter to the Prior of Crato complaining of Dalboquerque, 4, 5 sends letter to Cochim on same subject, 5
account of his charges against Dal-boquerque, with the latter's replies, 6-11
advice to J. Barreto and G. Pereiras to their treatment of Dalboquerque at Cochim, 11, 12 conspires to send Dalboquerque to Portugal, 15 routs the fleet of the Rumes and sails for Cananor, 16
arrival at Cochim, ib.
and his treatment of Dalboquerque 16 et seq.
his behaviour and threats to the officers of the factory, 18, 19

- Francisco Dalmeida (continued), interviews with Gaspar Pereira, 19-25 forbids Dalboquerque to show the king's letters patent, 24 orders him to hand over the money received from Ormuz, 25 forbids him to move from his house or to communicate with the king, 27 his treatment of F. de Tavora and J. de Melo, 28 imprisons J. de Melo, 30 receives favourably D. Lopez de Siqueira, 31 persuades his supporters to petition him to retain the government of India, 32-34 his reply to the petition, 36 draws up indictment against Dalboquerque, ib. allows him to be openly insulted with impunity, 39 imprisons J. de Christus for speaking ill of his treatment of Dalboquerque, 40 interview with the latter on the subject, 41, 42 strengthens the guard over the fortress of Cochim, 42 forbids use of arms except by his own servants, ib.
 arrests G. Pereira, R. de Araujo, and D. de Sousa, 43 orders arrest of Dalboquerque and sends him to Cananor, 44 orders R. de Araujo and Nuno Vaz de Castelobranco to be taken by D. Lopez de Siqueira to Portugal, 45 sends A. de Sintra to receive Marshal F. Coutinho on his arrival at Cochim, 46 receives the same in person on disembarking, 47 receives visit from the Marshal, ib.
 surrenders the rule of India to Dalboquerque and sails for Cananor, ib.
 and thence to Portugal, and is murdered at Saldanha, lxii, 48 reference to his defeat of the Rumes, 146 note of his conquest of the Rumes, ir, 35
 notice of, 170
- Francisco de Figueiredo, is arrested for disaffection to Dalboquerque, ii, 134
- Francisco de Figueiredo (continued),
 is released, ib.
- Francisco Lamprea,
 conducts inquiry into accusation against Dalboquerque, i, 209
- Francisco Marecos,
 accompanies D. Fernando Coutinho to India, ii, lxiii comes up with Dalboquerque's fleet off Anjadiva, 200 sent to intercept vessels bound for India, 217
- Francisco de Melo,
 takes part in attack on Ormuz, i, 115
 attacks the Moors at Nabande, 249
 sent to Malaca, ir, 91 victory of, over the Malays, 92
- Francisco Nogueira, sent with instructions concerning the building of a fort at Calicut, iii, 256 returns to Goa, 257
 proceedings of, at Calicut, ir, 63-65 appointed captain of Calicut, 73
- Francisco Pantoja,
 accompanies Dalboquerque's expedition to Red Sea, ii, 81 is sent to Socotra with supplies, a letter for D. de Lemos, and message to A. de Noronha, ii, lxxvii, 121 captures a Cambay ship, 122 his treatment by D. de Lemos, 123 and return to Cananor, 124 arrival at Cananor with the prize ship Meri, lxxxviii, 206
 captain of the fleet, iii, 1 receives the Calicut embassy at Goa, 30 appointed chief alcaide at Goa, 43 alcaide of Benasterim fortress, 190
- Francisco Pereira,
 in charge of the pass of Gondalij, ii, 140 sent on expedition for supplies, 192 advises that Prester John's envoy be put in irons, iii, 253 himself imprisoned by Dom Manuel, 254 sails with the fleet from Goa to Ormuz, ir, 133
- Francisco Pereira Coutinho,
 present at council on proposed expedition against Calicut, ii, 55
 accompanies Dalboquerque's expedition to Red Sea, 81 retires from the pass of Gondalij on approach of the enemy, 156

- Çocotorá, or Çacotorá,
 desire of Dom Manuel for erection
 of a fortress at, i, 20
 proposal to build a fortress at, i, 26, 31
 arrival of T. da Cunha's fleet at Çoco, the port of, 45
 the attack on the Moorish fortress
 at, 45-52
 the Christians conciliated, 53
 Portuguese officers appointed, 54
 Dalboquerque left in charge, 54
 provisions, etc., sent by Dalboquer-
 que to, 149
 despatch of M. Telez to, 175 anxiety of Dalboquerque to send
 supplies to, 194, 195
 arrival of Dalboquerque at, 197
 departure from, 199, 213
 construction of fortress at, ii, xxxvii Dalboquerque charged with quitting, without the king's order, 7
 his reasons for same, ib.
 demand for ships from D. de Lemos
 at, lxiii, 60, 61
 supplies sent by Dalboquerque to,
 lxxvii, 121
 wreck of spice ships at, iii, 33
 account of a storm at, 257
 the fleet anchors off Çoco, iv, 3
 native Christians at, 4 Pero Dalboquerque cruises about, 109
- Çodamação,
 chief Alguazil of Madoval, iv, 98
et seq.
- Codiceira, castle of, iv, 215
- Çofala,
 trade with Anjoja, i, 36
 and Braboa, 44
 ruled over by the Preste João, iv, 38
- Cogeamir,
 sent by the viceroy to Cogeatat, i, 226
 bears letter from the king of Ormuz
 to the viceroy, 241
 a Moor of Cananor, attends Ruy
 Gomez on his embassy to Xequé
 Ismael and to Ormuz, ii, 110
 arrival at Ormuz and reception by Cogeatat, 120
 return to India, ib.
 his treachery to Dalboquerque, iii, 40
 is put in irons, 41
- Cogeatat,
 advises the king of Ormuz in his
 negotiations with Dalboquerque,
i, 108, 111
- Cogeatat (continued), proceedings at Dalboquerque's attack on Ormuz, 117
 sends flag of truce to Dalboquerque, 120
 his evil counsel to the king of Or-
 muz, 122, 123
 negotiations with Dalboquerque, 124-128
 gives account of his connection with Ormuz, 128
 and asks to be sent to Calayate, his
 native place, ib.
 consults with the king of Ormuz
 concerning Dalboquerque's demands, 128-131
 receives the flag of peace and signs
 the treaty, 132-134
 is present at the interview between Dalboquerque and the king, 135, 136 proceedings on the proposed erection of a fortress, 138-143
 suspicious conduct at Ormuz, 143-146 conciliated by presents from Dalbo-
 ququerque, 145
 hears of Dalboquerque's disagreement with his fleet, 160
 sends rebellious messages to Dalbo-
 ququerque, 160-164
 his conduct concerning the Christians who deserted from Dalbo-
 ququerque, 160-172
 proceedings at the pools of Turum-
 baque, 176, 177-180
 proceedings concerning the want of
 water, 181-185
 procures a fleet from Julfar, 192, 194
 seeks assistance from the Sultan and
 the king of Cambaya, 196
 sends two Moors to parley with Dalboquerque, 197
 is threatened by the latter, 197, 198
 dealings with the Rustazes, 222
 and with Karafadin, 223
 proceedings on arrival of the Portuguese fleet at Ormuz, 224, 225
 sends flag of truce, 226
 and letters to Dalboquerque, ib.
 letter from the viceroy to him, 227
 further correspondence with Dalbo-
 ququerque, 228-238
 demand for tribute made by Dalbo-
 ququerque, 239
 his refusal to pay it, ib.
 further proceedings with Dalbo-
 ququerque, 240-243

- Cogeatar (continued),
 procures assistance from Julfar and Persia, 246
 proceedings at Ormuz, ii, xlvi, liv, 8, 9
 asked by Dalmeida if he has complaints to make against Dalboquerque, 36
 sends an ambassador to Dalboquerque at Goa, 109
 pays tribute to Dalboquerque, iii, 29
 death of, iv, 77
 policy of, with regard to Cambay, 82
 embassy from, to Portugal, 133, n.
 his treaty, or contract, 141
 notice of his death, 134, 138
 reference to his death, ii, 42; iv, 147, 148
 reference to, 170, 171
- Cogebeirame,
 conducts negotiations with Dalboquerque on behalf of the king of Ormuz, i, 107-111; ii, xlvi recommends Turumbaque for the erection of a fortress, 139
- Cogebequi, a Moor,
 sent by the governors of Calicut to beg a peace from Dalboquerque, ii, 59 imprisoned, and finally sent home, 59, 60
 attends interview between Dalboquerque and Mostafação at Pangij, 186
- Cogequirmani,
 sent to explore the Moluccas, iii, 162
- Coinage,
 establishment of a mint at Goa, iii, ix, 41
 value of Malaca coins, 78, 80
 a new coinage established in Malaca, 137-143
- Cojeabraham,
 dealings with Utemutaraja and Dalboquerque in Malaca, iii, 147, 148
- Comorim, Cape of,
 limit of Portuguese influence, iv, 205, 206
- Comoro, islands of,
 arrival of Dalboquerque at, i, 32
- Conaique, Hindoo captain,
 killed, iii, 229
- Condal,
 descent of the Haldão on, ii, 137
 arrival of Meliqueaye at, iii, 22
- Coptos, or Kuft, iv, 38
- Corações, the
 proceedings at Malaca, iii, 69
 evacuate Benasterim, 237
- Corço, Silvestre, captain, conveys Dalboquerque to Ormuz, iv, 143
- Corfacam. See Orfação.
- Corinth, origin of, iv, 186
- Corn, exportation of, iv, 38
- Coromandel, ships bound for, i, 7, 8
 cargoes of pepper bound for, ii, 50
 capture of a ship from, 62
- Cottineau de Kloguen (Rev. Denis Lewis),
 reference to his account of Goa, ii, lxix
 his history of Goa, with account of his travels, xvi, xcvii
- Coulão, or Coulam,
 Dalboquerque goes hither for cargo of spice, i, 6-8 friendship made between Dalboquerque and the king, 9-11
 description of the port, 11
 arrival of Moorish ships from Calicut, 12
 and their treatment by Dalboquerque, 12, 13
 arrangements for government of, 14-16
 visited by V. da Gama, ii, xxii
 proceeding at, xxvi
 cargo of pepper from, 49
 notice of, iv, 101
 fortress of St. Thomas built in 1514 at, 119, n.
- Crato, Prior of,
 letter to, from Dalmeida complaining of Dalboquerque, ii, 4
 reference to, ii, 32
- Cross, the true,
 piece of the wood of, sent by Presbyter John for Dom Manuel, iii, 251, 252 wood of, worn round the neck by Garcia de Sousa, iv, 21
- Cross,
 seen by Dalboquerque in the sky, 44, 45
 its signification, ib.
- Çuaquem, island of,
 news of vessels of merchandise bound for, ii, 229
 description of the district, iv, 38
- Çufim,
 trade of the Moors between Calicut and, iii, 33

- Gaspar Cão,
takes part in the attack on Goa,
iii, 8
wounded at Goa, 13
sent against Meliqueaye, 22
takes part in escalade of Adem, iv, 20
- Gaspar Chanoca,
sent on an embassy to Narsinga, iii, 246, 247
notice of his mission to Narsinga, iv, 123
- Gaspar Correa,
quotations from, or reference to his Lendas da India, ii, vii; iii, 115, 127, 128, 139, 148, 150, 194, 239,
240, 241, 249, 254; iv, 73, 80, 94,
95, 104, 119, 133, 194, etc.
account of his history of the Portuguese in India, ii, cviii
- Gaspar Diaz de Alcacere do Sal, bravery at the attack on Çoco, i, 49 boards Moorish ship at Ormuz, 114 loses his right hand and is awarded a pension, ib.
- Gaspar da India,
message to the king of Cochim concerning Dalmeida's recall to Portugal, ii, 27
present at council on proposed expedition against Calicut, 55
takes part in attack on Calicut, 70
- Gaspar Machado,
attacks the Moors at Nabande, i, 249
- Gaspar de Paiva, receives Melique Çufecondal as a prisoner, ii, 154
advises Dalboquerque to hold the
fortress of Goa, 160
is ordered to decapitate M. Çufe-condal and 150 principal Moors, 164
attends negotiations at Pangij, 184 obtains supplies for the fleet at Pangij, 195
captain of the fleet, iii, 1 reconnoitres the fort of Goa, 5
takes part in the attack on Goa, 8
is wounded at Goa, 13 defeats Meliqueaye at Divarij, 23
captain, sails to Malaca, 58
attacks Malaca, 102, 107, 124, 130
- Gaspar Pereira,
reads to the viceroy the captains' complaint against Dalboquerque,
i, 206
draws up an act of accusation against Dalboquerque, 209
his illness at Cochim, ii, 2 receives Dalboquerque at Cochim, 4 letter to, from the viceroy, 5
- Gaspar Pereira (continued), interview with Dalboquerque, 6 delivers the viceroy's charges to the same, ib.
is anxious to serve under Dalbo-
querque, 10, 11
dealings with the latter and J. Barreto at Cochim, 11, 12
letter to the viceroy concerning Dal-
boquerque, 16
conduct on the viceroy's arrival at Cochim, 18
the latter's behaviour to him, 19, 20 his loyalty to the king and Dalbo-
querque, 20, 21
further conversations with Dal-
meida, 22-25
Dalmeida asks his advice concerning the non-arrival of pepper at Cochim, 25
his arrest ordered by Dalmeida, 42 secretary of India, instructed to destroy Calicut, 51
present at council respecting the expedition, 55
present at council on proposed expedition against Calicut, ib.
takes part in attack on Calicut, 67
opposes Dalboquerque's local government of Goa, iii, 42
takes part in attack on Roçalção, 223
recommends the surrender of Goa, 258
at Cochim, iv, 68
- Gaspar Rodriguez,
parleys with the Moors at Çocotora,
i, 46, 50, 51
negotiations with the Moors at Cala-
yate, 63
further proceedings there, 66 proceedings at Soar, 91 conducts negotiations with the king of Ormuz, 106, 124
interprets at the interview between Dalboquerque and the king of
Ormuz, 136
sent by the king of Ormuz with message to Dalboquerque, 146, 147
bears messages between Cogear and Dalboquerque, 163, 165, 167, 168 sent to receive flag of truce from Cogear, 197
bears messages between Dalboquerque and Cogear, 239-242 witness of Dalboquerque's alleged misgovernment of Ormuz, ii, 5 witness to letter from the king, 8

- Gaspar Rodriguez (continued), interpreter between Timoja and Dalboquerque, 84 receives the Hidalcão's messengers asking for peace, 181 conveys messages from Dalboquerque to the Hidalcão, 185
- Gaspar Vaz,
 attacks the Moors at Nabande, i, 250
- Gate, i.e., Ghaut,
 the pass of the, iv, 83, 127
- Jeronimo de Lima,
 takes part in the attack on Çoco, i, 47. See Jeronimo.
- Ghilan, in Persia. See Aquilam.
- Ghubbet Collonsier, or Calacea, iv, 3
- Gidá, in Red Sea, for Judá, iv, 30, 31
- Gil Simões,
 takes part in escalade of Adem, iv, 19 king's page, sent as scrivener in an embassy to the Xequé Ismael, 175
- Gil Vicente,
 his son sent on an embassy to the Hidalcão, iii, 244
- Gilam, kingdom of,
 its trade with Ormuz, iv, 186
- Goa, old,
 history of, in sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, ii, xcii, et seq.
 account of various histories of, xcvi, xcvi, et seq.
 state of, 53
 account of the Rumes at, 81, 82 death of the Çabaio, 82 Dalboquerque persuaded by Timoja to attack it, 82-84 particulars of the attack on and capture of, lxxviii, lxxix, 84-92 plan of, 88
 account of the site and foundation of the city, 92-97
 the lives of the Hindoos and Moors spared, 98 Dalboquerque inspects the city, 99 further proceedings of Dalboquerque at, lxxvi, 101-106 the Portuguese rule consolidated, lxxvii, 124 et seq.
 a new coinage ordered, 129 Dalboquerque prepares to winter there, 132 rumours of the Hidalcão's intended attack on, 135 the fortresses strengthened, lxxix, 140
- Goa (continued),
 arrival of the Hidalcão's army, lxxix, 141 Dalboquerque refuses to evacuate, 146 particulars of the siege, lxxx, 147 et seq.
 entry of the Hidalcão's army, lxxxi, 155 account of the battle, 156 et seq.
 is set on fire, 157
 Dalboquerque retires to the fortress, 158 but finally re-embarks, 163 the Hidalcão enters the fortress, 165 negotiations respecting the surrender of, 186 account of events at, 200 preparations for a second attack upon, 225 another attack proposed by Dalboquerque, 235 Dalboquerque decides on re-attacking the city, iii, 4 the mode of attack discussed, 6-9 the attack and capture of, iii, 9-15 slaughter of Turks in the city, 16 the city fortified, 17
 discovery of copper crucifix, ib.
 attack of Meliqueaye against, defeated, 22-25 particulars of the embassy from Calicut to Dalboquerque at, 30-32 Dalboquerque provides for local government of, viii, 39 establishes a mint, ix, 41 dedicates the church to St. Catherine, 42 attack of Pulatecão on, 187-190 anxiety of Dalboquerque concerning, 206 news of expected attack by Rumes against, ib.
 entry into and reception of Dalboquerque, 220, 221 particulars of Roçalcão's attack on, 221-233 re-entry of Dalboquerque, 241 the surrender of the city suggested by Dom Manuel, 257 the debate of Dalboquerque and his captains thereon, 257-264 ultimate decision to retain it, 264 island of, description of, 278-305 Pero Mascarenhas, captain of, iv, 1 departure of the Portuguese fleet, ib.
 importance of the site, 24
 Ruy Galvão sent in advance to, 59

- Goa (continued),
 Dalboquerque returns to, 63 arrival of Dalboquerque at, ib.
 Dalboquerque proceeds to, 81
 horse trade centred at, 117 return of Pero Dalboquerque to, 118 trade in horses proposed at, 124 artifice of the vicar of, 129
 D. João Dessa made captain of, 130 fifteen blind kings of Ormuz sent to, 179 stores gathered up at, ib.
 arrival of Dalboquerque at the bar, and his death there, 197 the body landed at and conveyed to the chapel, 198 grief of the populace, ib.
 masses at, in memory of Dalboquerque, 199 Dalboquerque settles many women in marriage at, 200 condition of, at the death of Dalboquerque, 206, 208, 209 flourishing state of trade at, 208 the inhabitants desire to retain the remains of Dalboquerque, 210 removal of the remains to Portugal, 210, 211
- Goader (or Guadel),
 city of the Nautiques, iv, 188
- Gold,
 particulars of Malay gold mines, iii, 142
- Gold Coast, the, erection of a fort on, in 1481, ii, vii
- Gold pieces,
 presented to Dalboquerque by the Xequé Ismael, iv, 88
- Gomez Freire,
 present at council on proposed expedition against Calicut, ii, 55
- Gomide, family of, pedigree of, in connection with the family of Albuquerque, iv, 223-225
- Gonçalo Dalboquerque, lord of Villa Verde, father of the great Afonso Dalboquerque, iv, 216
- Gonçalo Dalmeida,
 present at council on proposed expedition against Calicut, ii, 55
- Gonçalo Fernandez, ordered to inquire into the accusation against Dalboquerque, i, 209
- Gonçalo Lourenço de Gomide, reference to him, ii, 22
- Gonçalo Mendez,
 factor, etc., of Calicut, iv, 73
- Gonçalo Nunes,
 discoveries in India, ii, xvii
- Gonçalo de Oliveira,
 pilots' expedition to the Moluccas, iii, 162
- Gonçalo Pereira,
 takes part in the attack on Roçalção, iii, 223
 sails from Goa, iv, 2
- Gonçalo Queimado,
 attacks the Moors at Nabande, i, 249
 is wounded at Ormuz, 180 takes part in attack on Calicut, ii, 69 is killed, lxiv, 70
- Gonçalo de Siqueira, account of his expedition to Malaca, ii, lxxxvi, 196, n.
 news of his setting out from Portugal, 224 how his ships were scattered at Mozambique, ib.
 arrives with his fleet at Cananor, 233 interview with Dalboquerque, ib.
 discourages the proposed attack on Goa, 235 accompanies Dalboquerque to Cochim, 237 refuses to join the expedition against Goa, 240 his ill-will to Dalboquerque, iii, 209
- Gonçalo Vello,
 discovers the Azores, ii, vi
- Gondalij,
 the pass strengthened, ii, 140 flight of part of Roçalção's army to the ford of, iii, 225
- Gonsalvo de Pavia,
 his expedition to India, ii, viii
- Good Hope, Cape of, doubled by Vasco da Gama, ii, viii quotation from Camões on, x-xv Dutch colonies at, xvi
- Gopicaça, chief alguazil of the king of Cambaya, his letter to Dalboquerque, ii, 212
 the latter's reply, 215
- Gores, the,
 account of, iii, 88, 89
 Portuguese relations with, iv, 206
- Goterres, or Goterre de Monroz, captain of Goa, receipt of the body of Dalboquerque, 195

- Graciosa, or Gratiiosa, island off Morocco, Dalboquerque takes part in capture of, i, xxviii; iv, 216
- Gregorio de Quadra, notice of his shipwreck, iv, 46 detailed account of his captivity and escape, 49, 53
- Guardafum, Cape of, proceedings of A. Telez at, i, 25 advice of the captains to Dalboquerque to depart for, 150, 151 departure of Dalboquerque for, 199 his arrival and proceedings, 200-205 proceedings at, ii, lv, lvi account of storm at, iii, 203, 257 the fleet sails thither, iv, 3 navigation of, 10
notice of, 29
Dalboquerque sights, 59
a Portuguese fleet fitted out for, 77, 78
- Guardaré, in Arabia, article concerning, iv, 154
- Guiomar de Castro,
countess of Atouguia, iv, 216
- Guiné,
T. da Cunha's fleet at, i, 23
- Guinea, Lord of,
title of, assumed by the king of Portugal, ii, vii
- Guterre de Monroy,
captain, iv, 194
See Goterres.
- Guzerat,
merchants at Orfação belonging to, i, 100 capture of a ship by the Portuguese, 255 account of shipwreck at, ii, lxxxviii, 211, 212 king of, Portuguese conquests over, xcii
proceedings at Malaca, iii, 44, 47 capture of five vessels of, 58
proceedings at Malaca, 69
the Xabandar of, advises the king of Malaca against Dalboquerque, 70 hatred of the Portuguese, 94 et seq.
desire to trade to Malaca, iv, 60 voyage of the Guzerates, 103
- H.
- Hacem Ale, or Ali, a Moor of Ormuz, negotiations of, with the Portuguese, iv, 109 et seq.
visits the Portuguese fleet, 137 conveys negotiations between the Portuguese and Ormuz, 138 et seq.
- Hacem Ale (continued), last interview of, with Dalboquerque, iv, 192
- Haines, commander,
chart of Adem, iv, 10
- Hálíl,
island in Persian Gulf, iv, 114
- Harkiko Bay, iv, 35
- Heitor Rodriguez,
first captain of Couão, iv, 119, n.
- Henrique, or Henry, Prince, of Portugal, duke of Visau, encourages naval enterprise amongst the Portuguese, ii, v reference to Mr. Major's life of, vi account of his expeditions to the African coast, ib.
- Hicarrhau,
defends mountain pass against Pulatecão, iii, 188
death, ib.
See Icarao.
- Hidalcão, the (Adilshaw, or Idalkan, ii, xcvi), rumours of an attack on Goa, ii, 135 his army arrives at Divarij, 137 routs Dalboquerque's Canarese detachment, 138 his arrival before Goa, 140 deserters from his camp, 142 demands the surrender of Goa, 143 besieges it, lxxx, 147 et seq.
enters, and drives Dalboquerque into the fortress, lxxx, 154, etc.
negotiations with Dalboquerque, 161 enters the fortress, 165 despatches a vessel to follow Dalboquerque, ib.
sends J. Machado to parley, 166 while he fortifies Pangij, ib.
attacks Dalboquerque's fleet with his artillery, 171 receives news of the latter's straitened condition, 172 sends present of food, 173 holds council concerning Dalboquerque's intended attack, 175 the fort stormed and taken, 176, 177 his fleet attacked, lxxxiii, 178 sends messengers to Dalboquerque to ask for peace, 181 further negotiations, lxxxiv, 184 offers Dalboquerque Cintacora instead of Goa, 186 end of the negotiations, 187 attacks the enemy's fleet at Bradez, lxxxv, 194

- Hidalcão (continued), returns to his kingdom, 202
 at war with the Guazils of Decan,
iii, 3
 letter to, from Dalboquerque on the recapture of Goa, vi, 20 sends his captain to force entrance into Goa, 22
 failure of the expedition, 22-25
 his proceedings after the second conquest of Goa, 36-39
 captures Calbergate, 36 sends Pulatecão to attack Goa,
lxxxi, 187-190
 sends Roçalcão to eject Pulatecão from Benasterim, 191 determination of Dalboquerque to besiege Benasterim, 211 proceedings of his ambassadors in Goa with Dalboquerque, 243 his relations with Roçalcão, 248, 249
 the cairo of Cadi corresponds with,
iv, 76
 result of the Xequé Ismael's embassy to the, 83
 jealousy of his ambassador against Miguel Ferreira, 86
 policy of the, 123
 sends to Goa to open negotiations with the Portuguese, 125 his mother's negotiations, 126 et
seq.
 Dalboquerque endeavours to persuade the king of Narsinga to attack, 205
- Hindoos, conduct and treatment of, on the taking of Goa by Dalboquerque,
ii, 105, 106
 imprisonment of the chief Hindoos in Goa, lxxx, 148
 goodwill of Dalboquerque towards,
iii, vii, 22
 treatment of, by Dalboquerque at Goa, 42
 grief of, at the death of Dalboququerque, iv, 198
 their appreciation of Dalboquerque's impartiality, 200
 peaceable policy of Dalboquerque towards, 205
 converts at Goa, 208
- Holland,
 rise of Dutch power in the East, ii,
xv
- Horse trade, the, iii, 21; iv, 123-125 from Ormuz to India, 186 of Barem Island, 187
- Horse trade (continued), particulars of, between Goa and Decan, iii, 39
- Horses,
 Cambay breed of, iv, 106
- I.
- Icarao,
 accompanies Merlao to Goa, iii, 27
See Hicarrhau.
- Icece, Dalboquerque discovers the port of,
i, 67
- Içufularij,
 news of his march to relieve Benas-
 terim, iii, 218
 retires from Benasterim, 237
- India,
 state of affairs in, i, 1 appointment of Tristão da Cunha as first viceroy, 20
 his place taken by F. Dalmeida, ib.
 the governorship promised to Dal-boquerque in three years, ib.
 review of history of, in 16th and 17th centuries, ii, xcii, et seq.
 map of, from the Portolano of F.
 Vaz Dourado, 1570, 1
 appointment of Dalboquerque as governor of, 1
 kings of, treatment of their ambassadors to Goa by Dalboquerque,
iii, 243, 244
 means advisable for maintaining dominion in, iv, 24
 the Portuguese fortress in, provided with stores and men, 129 Lopo Soarez appointed captain-major or governor, 194 summary of Dalboquerque's Indian policy, 207
 fame of Dalboquerque throughout,
ib.
- Ismael, Xequé; an Arab Sheikh, demands tribute from Rextordim at Ormuz, i, 145
 his treatment by Dalboquerque at Ormuz, ii, li
 seeks alliance with the Çabaio of Goa, 96
 sends troops to assist Cogeatat, 246 sends ambassadors to Goa, lxxvi, 106 reception by Dalboquerque and the latter's letter in reply, 107-111, 119 rumoured movements of, against
iv, 25

- Ismael, Xeque (continued), subjects of, mutilated by Dalbo-
 querque, 28
 his present to Dalboquerque at Goa, 63 his ambassador visits Dalboquerque at Cannanor, 80
 Miguel Ferreira sent to his court, 81
 various embassies sent by, 82 Miguel Ferreira's embassy to, 86-89 his religion accepted by the king of Ormuz, 134, 135
 his ambassador at Ormuz seeks audience with Dalboquerque, 149 his ambassador received with great pomp by Dalboquerque at Ormuz, 151 articles offered to him by Dalbo-
 querque, 153
 the ambassador of, sent back with two Portuguese envoys, 175 terms of peace offered to the, 276
et seq.
 a captain of, arrives at Ormuz to visit Dalboquerque, 182 description of a battle of the Turk with the, ib.
 opinion of Dalboquerque upon the battle, 183
 Dalboquerque's wish that Portugal should be on good terms with
 him, 184
 letters of his ambassador at Diu intercepted, 194
 his appreciation of Dalboquerque's character, 195
 policy of Dalboquerque towards
 him, 207
 Ismailijeh, in Egypt, iv, 34
- J.
- Jacinto Freyre de Andrada, or Andrade,
 reference to his life of J. de Castro,
ii, xciii
- Jacome Fernandez,
 scrivener at Malaca, iii, 166
- James Teixeira,
 takes part in attack on Ormuz, i, 115
 takes part in attack on Calayate, 220
 attacks the Moors at Nabande, 249 despatched to bring back D. Mendez to Goa, iii, 51
 his orders disobeyed, 52 and his action thereon, ib.
 captain, sails to Malaca, 58
- James Teixeira (continued),
 attacks Malaca, 102, 123
 sent on an embassy to Cambay, iv, 94
 progress of, 95
 reaches Madoval, 98
 reception of, 99
 proceedings of, at Cambay, 100-112
- Janquileu,
 death of Tuão Nacem at, iii, 134
- Japan,
 fall of Portuguese power in 1638 in,
ii, xc
 relations with the Loo-Choo islands,
iii, xiv-xx
- Jáquein,
 capture of paraos from, i, 243
- Jasque, or Jaskh, on the coast of Persian Gulf, iv, 154
- Java, pursuit of a junk from, iii, 62
 the attack and ultimate capture, 63, 64 friendly relations of the king with Dalboquerque, xxx, 160, 161 Portuguese relations with the king of, iv, 206
- Javanese,
 proceedings at Malaca, iii, 44, 47
 defeated at Malaca, iv, 93
- Jazel-Zocor. See Jebelzocor.
- Jazem, territory of, described, iv, 28 extent of the dominions of the Xerife of, 35
- Jebelzocor, or Jebel-Zukur, island in the Red Sea,
 the Portuguese fleet passes in front
 of, iv, 27
 description of, 27, 32
 Dalboquerque reaches, 40
- Jeronymo de Lima, D.,
 proceedings at Mascate, i, 74
 commands ship at attack on Ormuz, 112
 attacks the Moors at Nabande, 249
 proceedings at Lara, 252
 accompanies Dalboquerque's expedition to Red Sea, ii, 81
 proceedings at Goa, 92
 in charge of the pass of Agacij, 140
 captain of the fleet, iii, 1
 takes part in the attack on Goa, 8
 his bravery and death at Goa, iii, 13
- Jeronymo de Sousa,
 sails from Goa, iv, 2
 sent to Cannanor and Cochim, 59 captain. sails for Adem and Guardafum, 77, 78

- Jeronymo de Sousa (continued),
sails with the fleet from Goa to Ormuz, 132 sent to search for Portuguese fugitives, 166
- Jeronymo Teixeira,
present at council at Cochim, ii, xc present at interview between Dalmeida and D. de Siqueira, 31 accompanies Dalboquerque's expedition to Red Sea, 81
attacks Goa, 89
his disaffection at Goa, 135 makes mischief between D. de Lemos and Dalboquerque, 213, 215 makes false accusation against D. Mendez, 231, 232
- Jerusalem,
projected ransom of the temple by the capture of Meca, iv, 37
- Jews,
adventures of two Castilian Jews captured by S. Martinz, ii, 228 et seq.
- Joanna da Silva, daughter of the Count of Portalegre, Countess of Linhares, iv, 217
- João I, king of Portugal, expedition against the Moorish prince of Africa, ii, v
- João II, king of Portugal, Dalboquerque in the service of, iv, 215
- João III, king of Portugal, unwilling to allow removal of Dalboquerque's remains, iv, 210
- João Afonso Dalboquerque, son of Afonso Sanches, iv, 215
- João Alvarez de Caminha, appointed superintendent of the collectors of revenue at Goa, ii, lxxvii, 127
- João de Ataíde,
at the escalade of Adem, iv, 18, 19
- João de Aveiro,
arrival at Cananor, ii, 224
- João de Barros, reference to his history of the Portuguese in India, ii, cix
- João Cabeceira,
assists in attack on Roçalcão, iii, 221
- João de Castro,
governor of Goa in 1545, ii, xcii conquers Diu, xciii
- João de Christus,
remarks on state of India, ii, 40 is put into prison, ib.
- João Coelho,
takes part in attack on Orfação, i, 96
attacks the Moors at Nabande, 249
- João Deiras, a Gallician, behaves uncourteously at a conference between Dalboquerque's and the Hídalco's messengers, ii, 182 is shot, 183
- João Delgado,
takes part in the attack on Roçalcão, iii, 223
wounded, 228
- João de Sá, or Déssa,
takes part in the attack on Roçalcão, iii, 223
sails from Goa, iv, 2
takes part in escalade of Adem, 19 assists when the flagship grounds at Luya, 41 made captain of Goa, 130 captain of Goa, present at the council held by Dalboquerque before leaving Goa, 133 returns to Goa, 136
- João Dilhanes,
shoots João Deiras at a conference, iii, 183
- João Estão,
examines the fleet at Cocotora, i, 57 negotiates with the Moors at Calayate, 63
proceedings at Mascate, 73
sent with landing party to Soar, 89 takes part in attack on Orfação, 96
proceedings at attack on Ormuz, 114 conducts negotiations with the king of Ormuz, 124-128, 129 writes copy of the treaty, 131
further proceedings at Ormuz, 132-134 takes present from Dalboquerque to Cogear, 146 bears message from Dalboquerque to the captains, 151 bears message from Dalboquerque to the king of Ormuz, 166, 168 bears message to A. de Campo, 173 accompanies Dalboquerque to the vessel of J. de Nova, 185 inquires into desertion of the three captains at Ormuz, 196 sent to receive flag of truce from Cogear, 197 attacks a Moorish pará at Ormuz, 245
attacks the Moors at Nabande, 249

- João Estão (continued), helps Dalboquerque to make formal demand for government of India, ii, 16
- João de Faria,
Portuguese ambassador at Rome, iii, 170
- João Fidalgo,
assists in attack on Roçalção, iii, 222
attack on Benasterim, 232 attack on Adem, iv, 15-16
- João Freire,
proceedings at Çoco, i, 51
sent as factor to the Moluccas, iii, 162
- João Gomez,
joins in attack on the island of S. Lourenço, i, 28-30 takes part in the siege of Benasterim, iii, 216 sent as scrivener in an embassy to Cambaya, 245 captain of the Caravela, sails from Goa, iv, 2 cruises round Çocotora, 4 sent to visit Ceibão, 43, 44 reports state of weather at, ib.
sent to Dalaca I., 45 reports his proceedings, 47 sent to Zeila, 55
his doings there, 58
captain, sails with the fleet from Goa to Ormuz, 133
convoys Dalboquerque from Ormuz to Goa, 192
- João Gonçalves de Castelo-Branco, takes part in escalade of Ormuz, iv, 19 despatched on an embassy to the Hídalcão, 127
- João Jorge,
receiver of supplies at Malaca, iii, 166
- João de Lima,
joins in the attack on Çoco, i, 47
commands ship at attack on Ormuz, 112
proceedings at attack on Ormuz, 116
attacks the Moors at Nabande, 249 commands expedition to Anjadiva and Cochim for supplies, ii, lxxxv, 192, 193, 196 present at council at Cochim, xc
captain of the fleet, iii, 1
takes part in the attack on Goa, 8
his conduct at the attack on Goa, 13
- João de Lima (continued), wounded at Goa, ib.
captain, sails to Malaca, 58
attacks Malaca, 102, 104, 105, 124
takes part in attack on Roçalção, 223
sails from Goa, iv, 2
takes part in escalade of Adem, 19
explores Perim I., 54
captain of Calicut in 1525, dismantles the fortress, 72, plate
- João Lopez,
proceedings at Ormuz, i, 154
- João Lopez Dalvim,
in command at Malaca, iii, 166
- João Luis,
proceedings at attack on Ormuz, i, 116
- João Luiz, a gunner,
his prowess, iv, 56
- João Machado,
carries on negotiations between the Hídalcão and Dalboquerque, ii, lxxx, 144, 161 is sent to parley with the latter at Pangij, 166 counsels the further reinforcement of Pangij fort, 175 acquires favour with the Hídalcão, 177 accompanies Roçalção to Goa, iii, 191 escapes to D. Mendez with twelve Christians, 193 assists in attack on Roçalção, 221, 222 sent to treat with Roçalção, 233-236
- João de Mascarenhas, besieged in Diu in 1545, ii, xcii
- João de Meira,
takes part in escalade of Adem, iv, 19
captain, sails with the fleet from Goa to Ormuz, 133
- Joane Mendez,
takes part in attack on Orfação, i, 96
- João Navarro,
sent as an interpreter on an embassy to the Hídalcão, iii, 244
- João da Nova,
at Moçambique, i, 33
is left at Çocotora, 55
takes part in the attack on Curiate, 70
takes part in the 79 attemr

- João da Nova (continued), is reprimanded, ib.
 attacks Orfação, 94
 proceedings at attack on Ormuz, 113, 116, 119
 coalesces with the other captains
 against Dalboquerque, 151
 proceedings at Ormuz, 152-154, 159 withdraws the men from the fortress at Ormuz, 165
 further proceedings, 168, 169
 signs remonstrance to Dalboquerque
 concerning Ormuz, 170
 routs the Moors at Turumbaque, 176 in charge of the fleet at Ormuz, 184 refuses to obey Dalboquerque, 185 and what ensued thereon, 186-189 attacks the Moors at Queixome, 190
 is wounded, 191
 receives orders to sail for India, 196 hears news of Dalboquerque's appointment as viceroy, 211
 account of his adventures, ii, xxi expedition to India, xxx, n., xl his opposition to Dalboquerque, xlvi sent to Dalmeida with message from Dalboquerque, liv reference to his houses at Cochim, 5 recommends that Dalboquerque be sent to Portugal in irons, 18 stirs up the people against Dalbo-
 querque, 28
 prepares requisition to Dalmeida not
 to return to Portugal, 33
 report of his insolence to Dalbo-
 querque, 39
 reports J. de Christus's remarks to Dalmeida, 40
 particulars of his conspiracy against Dalboquerque, 44
 dies at Cochim, 49
- João Nunez,
 accompanies Dalboquerque's expedition to Red Sea, ii, 81
 attacks Goa, 89
- João Paçanha of Alenquer, appointment of his son João Teixeira, scrivener of the factory in Goa, iii, 43
- João Pereira, captain,
 sails with the fleet from Goa to Or-muz, iv, 133
- João Rodrigues Pereira, is wounded at Ormuz, i, 180
- João Saramenho,
 conducts inquiry into an accusation against Dalboquerque, i, 209
- João Serrão,
 arrives in India, ii, 233 appointed scrivener of Calicut, iv, 73
- João de Silva Telles de Menezes, viceroy of India, ii, xciii
- João de Silveira, captain, iv, 194
- João de Solis, murders his wife, i, 21
- João de Sousa, a pilot, attacks Malaca, iii, 102, 105
 takes part in escalade of Adem, iv, 20
- João Teixeira,
 takes part in attack on Orfação, i, 96
 takes part in the attack on Calayate, 220
 attacks the Moors at Nabande, 249 appointed scrivener of the factory
 in Goa, iii, 43
 sails to Adem and Guardafum, iv, 77, 78
 remains as factor at Ormuz, 113, 115 despatched on a mission to Nar-singa, 124
 notice of his return to Goa, 125
 notice of, 127
- João Viegas,
 escapes from Malaca, iii, x, 58 sent with message to the king of Pacé, 59
- Job Queimado,
 separation of his ship from T. da Cunha's fleet, i, 23 arrival at Moçambique, 28 joins in the attack on the island of
 S. Lourenço, 28-30
 takes part in the attack on Çoco, 40 adventures in expedition to India,
ii, xxxvii
- Johannes Petrus Maffei, historian of India, ii, cxii
- Jorge de Aguiar, arrives at Cochim from Portugal, i, 211 arrival of his fleet at Cananor, ii, l, lx
 account of his expedition to the East, lv
 arrives at Çocotora with notice of the recall of Dalmeida, lviii
 reference to, 61
- Jorge Barreto de Crasto,
 proceedings at Mascate, i, 77
 sent with Portuguese flag to land at
 Soar, 89

- Jorge Barrato de Cristo (continued), commands ship at attack on Ormuz, 112, 114-117
 takes part in the ceremony of presenting flag of peace to the king of Ormuz, 132-134
 approves of Dalboquerque's wishes concerning the fortress of Ormuz, 150, 151
 mentions conduct to Dalboquerque
 at Ormuz, 154, 156
 attacks the Moors at Ormuz, 179 proceedings at the Isle of Queixome, 184 attacks the Moors at Queixome, 190, 192 leaves Queixome, 194
 receives permission to sail for India, 196 captures the Mori, ii, xlvi relations with Dalboquerque, 5 dealings at Cochim with Dalbo-
 querque, 11
 letter to Dalmeida, 16
 present at interview between Dal-meida and Gaspar Pereira, 22 explains the non-arrival of pepper
 at Cochim, 24
 stirs up the people against Dalbo-
 querque, 28
 his enmity to F. de Tavora, ib.
 prepares requisition to Dalmeida not to return to Portugal, 33 speech at council in favour of Dal-meida, 35
 insults Dalboquerque, 38
 report to Almeida of his insolence
 to Dalboquerque, 39
 ill-uses Dalboquerque's purveyor,
ib.
 reports J. de Christus's remarks to Dalmeida, 40
 particulars of his conspiracy against Dalboquerque, 44
 accompanies Dalmeida to Portugal, 48
- Jorge Botelho,
 is left with his ship to watch the port of Calicut, ii, 71
 captain, sails to Malaca, iii, 58
- Jorge de Brito, captain,
 sent to Malaca, ir, 91
 victory over Malays, 92 sails with the fleet from Goa to Or-
 muz, 132
 captain in the 1515 fleet, 194
- Jorge Coesma,
 takes part in the attack on Goa,
iii, 8
- Jorge Correa, appointed scrivener at Diu, ic, 59
- Jorge da Cunha,
 accompanies D. Fernando Coutinho to India, ii, lxii
 present at council on proposed expedition against Calicut, 33
 accompanies Dalboquerque's expedition to Red Sea, 81
 incites the people of Goa to disaffection, 134
 is reprehended by Dalboquerque,
ib.
 sent with reinforcements to Mandalay, lxxviii, 136
 is recalled, 138
 put in charge of the fortress of Old Goa, 140
 his force at Old Goa inspected by Dalboquerque, 152
 defends the attack of the Hidalcão on Goa, 156, 157
 sets fire to the ships, 158
- Jorge Dalboquerque, takes part in attack on Royalcão, iii, 223 appointed captain of Cochim, ir, 1 becomes captain of Malaca, 92 summoned from Cochim, and sent to Malaca, 129
 arrives at Pacé, 130
 and at Malaca, ib.
 integrity of his character, 132 his son Pero becomes governor of Ormuz, 189
- Jorge Doria,
 takes part in the attack on Calayate,
i, 220
- Jorge Fogaça,
 in charge of the dry pass at Goa, ii, 140 receives deserters from the Hidalcão, 142 attempts rescue of Ruy Diaz from execution, 190-192
 put in irons, 192
 request for his release refused, 208
- Jorge Mascarenhas, captain, ir, 194
- Jorge de Melo,
 present at landing of the viceroy at Cochim, ii, 17
 interview with Dalmeida on his
 arrival at Cochim, 18, 19
 his quarrel with and challenge to F. de Tavora, 29
 the duel prevented and rested and imprisoned is liberated, 31

- Jorge de Mello Pereira, account of his expedition to India,
ii, xlv refuses to accompany Dalmeida to Portugal, 48
 but afterwards consents, ib.
 arrival of his fleet at Cochim, iii, 207 account of his expedition, 208
 Captain of Cananor ordered to grant Prester John's ambassador a passage to Portugal, 253
- Jorge Nunez de Lião,
 captain of the fleet, iii, 1
 takes part in the attack on Goa, 8, 11
 sails to Malaca, 58
 attacks Malaca, 102, 106, 123, 130
 embarks for India, 168
 disregards orders of Dalboquerque, 196 takes part in the attack on Roçalção, 223
- Jorge da Silva,
 takes part in attack on Roçalção, iii, 223
 wounded, 228
- Jorge da Silveira,
 proceedings at attack on Ormuz, i, 114
 is wounded at Ormuz, 118, 180
 attacks the Moors at Nabande, 249, 251 proceedings at Queixome, 254
 present at council on proposed expedition against Calicut, ii, 55
 accompanies Dalboquerque's expedition to Red Sea, 81
 attacks Goa, 89
 present at council at Cochim, xc
 sails from Goa, iv, 2
 takes part in escalade of Adem, 19
- José Nicolau da Fonseca, notice of his Historical Sketch of Goa, iii, iv
- Joseph Lafitau,
 his history of Portuguese India, ii,
 cxiii
- Juan Gonzalez Zarco, discovers Madeira, ii, vi
- Judá,
 port of Mecca, i, 234 trade of the Moors at, iii, 34
 notice of, iv, 8, 14
 depopulation of, 25
 slave trade of, intercepted, 28
 position of, 32
 historical and biographical notice of, 34-39
- Judá (continued), Dalboquerque anxious to sail to, but abandons the design, 44, 45
- Julfar,
 a Moorish fleet sent from, i, 192
 a fleet ordered by Cogear from, 246
- K.
- Kalberga, Calberga, or Calbergate, city, site of, iii, 36; iv, 83
- Kalhât,
 arrival of Dalboquerque at, ii, xlv
- Kamarín Bay. See Camarão.
- Keneh. See Caná.
- Khorassan, kingdom of, iv, 184
- Kishm, island of, ii, xlvii
- Koch (C. W.), extract from his Historical View of the European Nations, i, xv-xviii
- Kolapoor, or Kolhapur, city, site of, iv, 83
- Kosair. See Coçær.
- Kurdumyat, or Curdomeate, island in Red Sea, iv, 32
- L.
- Lara, island of,
 a Moorish fleet sighted at, i, 192 and pursued by A. do Campo, 193 water procured by A. de Noronha
 from, 240
 further proceedings of Dalboquerque
 at, 252-256
 loss of D. de Melo at, ii, lix the king of, sends to visit Dalboququerque, iv, 180
 situation of the city, ib.
- Larek, or Larequa, island of, ii, xlvii
- Lascar,
 anecdote of Dalboquerque and a, iv, 120
- Lascars,
 a ship of Cananor seized by, iv, 127
- Lassamana, or Malay admiral, iii, 87;
iv, 90
- Le Breton (M.),
 account of his Bibliothèque Géographique, ii, cxv
- Leo X, Pope,
 receives in 1513 letter from Dom Manuel on his Indian conquests, iii, xxxi, 169-172
 the oration of Camillo Portio to
 him, 172
 letter of D. Manuel to, 305
- Leon, kings of,
 the family of Albuquerque descended from, iv, 213

- Leonor de Menezes,
mother of Dalboquerque, iv, 216
- Lepanto, account of, iii, 185
- Levant,
projected union of, with the Red Sea by Alexander, iv, 34
- Lindsay (Mr. W. S.), reference to his Merchant Shipping, ii, viii
- Linga, island of,
relations of the king of Malacca with, iii, 129
- Lionel Coutinho,
news of his departure to Quiloa, i, 25 joins in the attack on Anjoja, 35 sent to parley with the Moors of Braboa, 37 sent to Melinde, 32 accompanies D. Fernando Coutinho to India, ii, lxi sent by Dalboquerque to Onor with messages to Timoja, 53 present at council on proposed expedition against Calicut, 55 is killed at Calicut, lxiv, 70
- Lisbon, iv, 10
church of our Lady of Conception referred to, 51 plague at, 199
ceremony at the interment of Dalboquerque, 211, 212
- Liumbo, in the Red Sea,
position of, iv, 35, 37
project of Dalboquerque in connection with, 37
- Lizuarte de Freitas,
takes part in attack on Orfação, i, 96
made scrivener to Pero Vaz Dorta at Ormuz, 143
takes part in the attack on Calayate, 220
attacks the Moors at Nabande, 249
- Locusts, iv, 51
- Loheyyah, or Loheia. See Luya.
- Loo-Choo islands, account of, iii, xiv, 89
- Lopo Alvares,
proceedings at attack on Ormuz, i, 116 attacks the Moors at Turumbaque, 177
takes part in the attack on Calayate, 220
attacks the Moors at Nabande, 250
- Lopo de Azevedo,
vice captain at Malacca, iii, 188 takes possession of Ormuz, iv, 148
- Lopo Soares, or Soares de Albergaria, expedition to India, ii, xxix governor of India, notice of his appointment, iv, 180 news of his appointment reaches Dalboquerque, 194 list of his fleet, ib., n.
note of the king's letter to, 197
the letter, 200
sails for India, ib.
letter to, from the king, 201
account of, 226
- Lopo Vaz de Sampayo,
governor of India in 1526, ii, xcii
takes part in the attack on Roçalcão, iii, 223
wounded, 228
sails from Goa, iv, 2 assists when the flagship runs aground off Luya, 41 explores Perim L., 54
blockades Dabul, 62
sails with the fleet from Goa to Ormuz, 132
employed in the negotiations at Ormuz, 143
- Lourenço, Dom,
reference to his death, 34
- Lourenço de Brito, persuades Dalboquerque that the fleet prefers the command of Dalmeida, ii, 3 captain of Cananor, letter to Dalboquerque at Cochim with reply, 13, 14 complains to the viceroy of Dalboquerque, 16 Dalboquerque delivered to his care, 44 questioned by F. Coutinho on the imprisonment of Dalboquerque, 46 visits Dalmeida at Cochim, 47
- Lourenço Dalmeida,
pass granted by, i, 148 ; ii, li
- Lourenço Godinho,
takes part in the escalade of Adem, iv, 19
- Lourenço Lopez,
arrival at Cananor, ii, 224
- Lourenço Moreno,
advises the expulsion of the Caimais from Cochim, i, 3 arrival at Cananor, ii, lxxxix, 224 sent on an embassy to Baticala, 226
and with a letter to Timoja, 227 returns to Cananor, and reports on his embassy, 241
See ib.

- Lourenço Moreno (continued), opposes Dalboquerque's local government of Goa, iii, 42
proceedings at Cochim, 204, 205, 209 recommends the surrender of Goa, 258 adverse to building the fortress of Calicut, iv, 66
at Cochim, 68
- Lourenço de Paiva,
present at council at Cochim, ii, xc
present at interview between Dal-boquerque and Mostafação, 186 warns Dalboquerque concerning D.
Mendez, 231
- Lourenço Prego,
assists in attack on Roçalcão, iii, 221
- Lourenço da Silva,
takes part in the attack on Calayate,
i, 220
sent to Timoja to be captain of the Hindoos, ii, 226
- Lourenço de Tavora, Provedor of Lisbon,
superintends removal of Dalboquerque's remains, iv, 211
- Luis (Fr.), a Franciscan,
is ambassador from Dalboquerque to the king of Narsinga, ii, 72
his instructions, 74
account of his reception at Narsinga,
iii, 35
report of the king's intentions against Goa, ib.
murder of, 38
- Luis Botim,
pilots expedition to the Moluccas,
iii, 162
- Luis Coutinho,
accompanies Dalboquerque's expedition to Red Sea, ii, 81
his disaffection at Goa, 135
his force at Goa inspected by Dal-
boquerque, 152
is sent on expedition for supplies, 192
- Luis de Camões,
quotation from the LUSIAD, i, i, (Fanshaw's translation); 34; 55
(Fanshaw); 64 (Fanshaw); 86; 107, 108; 137; ii, x-xv (Quil-linan's translation); 61; 112, 113; 188-190 (Mickle's translation);
iii, xl; 9; 19; 61; 71-72 (Fanshaw); 75; 79 (Fanshaw); (Fanshaw): iv, i; 24; 29-31 (Burton's translation); 38; 91; etc.
- Luis de Camões (continued), notice of his poems on the adventures of Vasco da Gama, ii,
vii
- Luiz de Ataíde,
viceroy of India in 1568, ii, xciii
- Lulangane Bay,
proceedings of T. da Cunha's fleet at, i, 29
- Lulutem,
island in Persian Gulf, iv, 114
- Luya, or Leheyah, on the Arabian coast, Dalboquerque's ship grounds near,
iv, 41
- Luys Coello de Barbuda, his account of Portuguese India, ii, xxii
- M.
- Macandi, cape of,
flight of three of Dalboquerque's captains to, i, 195 doubled by the fleet en route to India, 255
- Maçaram, king of,
notice of his rebellion against the Xeque Ismael, iv, 154
- Maceiras, cape,
the fleet at, i, 60
- Macinde, cape,
arrival of Dalboquerque's fleet at, i, 101
- Maçua, African port, iv, 30 description of the district, 38
- Madagascar,
proceedings in, ii, xxxix, xl
- Madanella,
the ship so called, renders assistance to the flag ship, iv, 41
- Madeira, discovery of, ii, vi dexterity of the stone-cutters of, iv, 36
- Madoval, city of, iv, 98-108
- Madrica, the fleet at, i, 60
- Mafamede Maçari, merchant of Cairo, reaches the Maldive islands, iii, 33 account of his adventures, 202, 203, 204
and relations with the Camorim, ib.
- Magadoxo,
the intended attack on, given up, 44, 45
capture of a Cambayan 202 ruled over by the Magalhães
his cl

- Mahomet, buried at Medina, sr., 50
the sect of, harassed by the Xaque Ismael, 153
- Maim,
site at, offered for a Portuguese fortress, ir., 102
noticed, 106
- Major (Mr. R. H. F.S.A.), reference to his Life of Prince Henry, ii, vi
- Malabar,
the opinions of the people on the differences between Dalmeida and Dalboquerque, ii, 26
account of the province and customs, 77
the people of, ally themselves with the Çabaio of Goa, 97
natives in the Portuguese fleet,
ir., 1
natives in the Goa fleet, 134
- Malaca,
view of, from Correa, ii, 122 expedition of D. L. de Sequeira to,
ix, 31, 45
news of the treachery of the Malays against D. Lopez de Sequeira, lxv, 73
account of expedition of D. Mendez to, lxxxvi, 196, n.
the expedition of D. Mendez again deferred, 219-223
expedition of Dalboquerque to, iii, 33
treatment of imprisoned Portuguese
by the Bendara of, 44, ix, et seq.
the expedition to release R. Araujo again delayed, ix, 49 Dalboquerque sails for, 55 escape of R. de Araujo's companions from, x, 58
arrival of Dalboquerque at, xi, 66 negotiations with the king, 66-70
who temporises, 68-70 history of, 71-84
the coinage of, 78, 80
pedigree of the kings, 83
the customs and government of, 84-90
council of Dalboquerque as to an attack on, 93
the latter's ultimatum to the king, 93
the king's answer up R. de Araujo, 96 the king's answer to the attack on, 97 the king's answer to the merchants demanding an attack on, 98
- Malacca, continued
withdrawal of the Portuguese troops, 106
the king describes his position, & Dalboquerque prepares to renew the attack, 107
attempt of the king to fire Portuguese fleet, 108 account of the second attack and capture of the bridge, 109-114
the city in hands of Dalboquerque, 125-126
the city sacked, 126
account of artillery, etc. found therein, 126
movements of the king, 128-131 quarrels with his son, 131-133 the king withdraws to Fla., 133 sends ambassador to the king of China, 133-134
death of the king, 134
the building of the fortress, 135 and inscription over the gateway, 137
a new coinage established, xxx, 137-143
re-establishment of trade in, 144 arrangements for its government in Dalboquerque's absence, 145-149 description of the fortress, 243-257
Guzarates seek to trade with, iv, 60 trade with, desired by Siam and Pegu, 69
necessitous state of the Portuguese
at, 90
succour sent by Dalboquerque, 91 Portuguese victory over enemies at, 91-93
notice of, 101
trade voyages to, 103
Jorge Dalboquerque sent to replace Pera Mascarenhas, 129 Jorge Dalboquerque arrives at, 131 importance of its position, 185
reputed origin of, 186
Lopo Soarez to be in command of, 202
condition of, at the death of Dalbo-
querque, 206, 208
Malay peninsula, map of the, ii, 1
Malaquese, a coin, iii, 139 Maldivé islands, account of, iii, 201 account of by Pedro Barretto de Resende, ir., 251
- Maluco,
projected exploration of, ir., 91 king of, Portuguese relations with, 206

- Mamalemercar,
persuades Dalboquerque to abandon his voyage to Malaca, iii, 56
- Mamalle,
present at interview between the king of Cananor and Dalboquerque, ii, 204
- Mamelukes at Judá, iv, 35
at Suez, 39
- Manamotapa, in Çofala,
a fair held at, i, 44
- Mancebia publica, de homens, iv, 169
- Mandaloy, Lord of Condal, asks Dalboquerque for reinforcements to withstand the Hidalcão of Goa, ii, lxxviii, 136 attacks the Hidalcão, lxxxii, 154 his friendliness to the Portuguese,
ib.
- Mandao,
in Cambay, iv, 60
the son of the king of, at Champanel, 84
manners and customs of the people, ib.
- Mandol, straits of, iv, 90
- Mandou, kingdom of, iv, 106
- Mangalor,
taken by the Portuguese, ii, xcii proceedings of Fernão Gomez de Lemos at, iv, 62
- Manners and customs, of the Ishmaelites, iv, 84
of Mandao, ib.
of Portugal described by the Xequé Ismael, 87
- Manuel, or Manoel, Dom; Emanuel, king of Portugal,
determines to send Dalboquerque and others to India, i, 2 sends the first expedition to Cochim,
ib.
intrigues with the king of Coullão against the Portuguese, 9, 10 receives Dalboquerque on his return from Cochim, 19
holds council on the future government of India, ib.
appoints Tristão da Cunha first
viceroy, 20
who, falling blind, is succeeded by F. Dalmeida, ib.
order for building of fortress at Çocotora, 26
relations with Melinde, 34 the Moors of Calayate profess allegiance to, 63
pretended willingness of the Moors at Mascate to become vassals of Portugal, 72, 73
- Manuel, Dom (continued), submission of the Moors at Soar to, 87, 88
the king of Ormuz professes submission to, 124 et seq.
copies of the treaties sent to him, 131, 132-134
report of the desertion of the captains at Ormuz sent to him, 196 sends Dalboquerque and his brother to Cochim, ii, xxv receives a silver cross from the Christians at Coullão, xxvi orders Dalmeida's return to Portugal, and Dalboquerque's appointment as governor, 1 letters of Dalmeida to, 5 his anger at the captain's desertion from Dalboquerque, ib.
imprisons Dalmeida's messenger, ib.
sends D. L. de Siqueira to explore Malaca, 31
alliance sought by Xequé Ismael and the king of Ormuz, 107 delivery of letter to Dalboquerque, 200 and to Timoja, 202
letters from, to Dalboquerque at Cananor, 224
letters to Dalboquerque delivered by G. de Sequeira, 233
his alliance with the king of Cochim, 238 devotion of R. de Araujo to, iii, 91, 92
the ultimatum to the king of Malaca, 94
his good will towards the king of Siam, 114
spoils from Malaca sent to him, 128 establishment of a coinage in Malaca, 137-143
treason of Utemutaraja against, 148 account of Dalboquerque's embassy to the king of Siam, 152-155 letter from the latter to him, 154 relations with Siam, 156 et seq.
the kings of Campar and Java desire alliance with, xxx, 159, 160 receives Dalboquerque's report on the capture, etc., of Malaca, 169
sends letters to Pope Leo X, ib.
sends expeditions to India in 1511 and 1512, 207, 208
with letter to Dalboquerque concerning Goa, 209

- Manuel, Dom (continued), account of Prester John's despatch of an embassy to, xxxix, 250-254 is advised to suggest the surrender
 of Goa, 257
 his articles to Dalboquerque thereon, 263 and the latter's reply, 258-264 Dalboquerque writes to him concerning Goa business, iv, 1 policy of, 3
 Dalboquerque unfolds the king's policy to his captains, 134 Dalboquerque's letter to, in favour of his son, 195
 note of his letter to Lopo Soares, 197
 the letter, 200
 notice of a royal flag sent by, to Dalboquerque, 199
 unwilling that the remains of Dal-boquerque should be removed from India, 210
 notice of early services of Dalboquerce under him, 216
- Manuel da Costa, son of Master Afonso, chief physician of the king D.
 Manuel; captain and factor
 takes part in escalade of Adem, iv, 19 sails with the fleet from Goa to Ormuz, 133
 interview of, with the king of
 Ormuz, 142
 balances accounts with the king of Ormuz, 171
 appointed factor of Ormuz, 191
- Manuel da Cunha,
 present at council at Cochim, ii, xc
 captain of the fleet, iii, 1
 ordered to co-operate with Timoja, 3, 4
 rejoins the fleet, 4
 is wounded at the attack on Goa, 13
 death of, 189
 grief of Dalboquerque at news of
 his death, 206
- Manuel Fernandez,
 message concerning Dalboquerque's appointment to India, ii, 23 assists in attack on Roçalcão, iii, 221
 notice of his mission to Narsinga, iv, 123
- Manuel Fragoso,
 takes Dalmeida's letters to Cochim
 ii, 5
- Manuel Fragoso (continued), is sent to reconnoitre the river at Goa, 161
 in command of the outwork of Pangjij, iii, 242
 describes to Dalboquerque the condition of Siam, iv, 90 and of Malaca, 90-91
- Manuel de Lacerda,
 proceedings at attack on Ormuz, i, 116 captures a zambuco laden with dates, 252
 present at council on proposed expedition against Calicut, ii, 56
 accompanies Dalboquerque's expedition to Red Sea, 81
 first to mount the wall of Pangij fort, 176
 captain of the fleet, iii, 1
 takes part in the attack on Goa, 8 his bravery and wounds, 11, 12, 13 stationed at Divarij, 25 instructed to unite with D. F. de Beja, 29
 ordered to watch Calicut, 33 returns to Goa, ib.
 chief captain of a fleet in Cochim expected in Goa, 43
 despatched to bring back D. Mendez to Goa, 51
 ordered to cruise off the bar of Goa, 57 receives news of the Hídalcão's attack on Goa, 190
 leaves Calicut to relieve Goa, ib.
 appointed captain of Goa, 206 receives Dalboquerque on his arrival at Goa, 220
 takes part in the attack on Roçalcão, 222, 225
 wounded, 228
 sails from Goa, iv, 2
 explores Adem, 13
- Manuel Peçanha,
 dealings with Dalboquerque at Cochim, ii, 13
 present at viceroy's council, 35 is told by Dalmeida that he is to be governor in case of his death, ib.
 his speech thereon, 36 thinks light of the destruction of Calicut, 52
 present at council on proposed expedition Calicut, 55
 . lxiv, 70

- Manuel Pirez (continued), failure of the attempt, 52 imprisoned by Dalboquerque, 54
- Manuel de Sequeira, page of the Duchess of Braganza, appointed scrivener of Ormuz, iv, 191
- Manoel Severim de Faria, his account of Portuguese Asia, ii,
cxiii
- Manuel de Sousa,
takes part in the attack on Roçalção,
iii, 223
wounded, 228
- Manuel Telez,
is left at Çocotora, i, 54
adventures at Cape Maceiras, 61
joins in the attack on Curiate, 68-71 proceedings at the attack on Mas-cate, 72-75
proceedings at Ormuz, 104
proceedings at attack on Ormuz, 113, 114
wounded, 118
surveys Turumbaque, 140
ordered to relieve Çocotora, 149 advises Dalboquerque to depart for India, 150, 151
signs remonstrance to Dalboquerque
at Ormuz, 170
sent on an expedition to Çocotora, 175 attacks the Moors at the pools of Turumbaque, 178, 179
is wounded, 180
in charge of the ships at Ormuz, 190 pursues the Moorish ships at Lara, 194 deserts Dalboquerque and sails for India, 194, 197
complains of Dalboquerque to the viceroi, 205
a written remonstrance drawn up, 206
hears news of Dalboquerque's appointment as viceroy, 211
captain of the Rey Pequeno, ii, xliv puts the Moors to flight and sails for India, liv
his conduct at Çocotora, 7 accompanies Dalmeida to Portugal, 48
- Maria de Noronha, daughter of the Count of Linhares,
iv, 217
- Martabane, trade voyages to, iv, 103
- Martin Afonso,
declines Dalboquerque's authority,
iii, 52
imprisoned, 54
- Martim Coelho,
proceedings at Cape Guardafum, i, 202
desire to quit Dalboquerque, 213
takes part in the attack on Calayate, 217-221
letters from Cogear to Dalboquerque brought to his ship, 226 proceedings at the water wells of Lara, 244-246
attacks the Moors at Nabande, 248
proceedings at Lara, 252, 253, 254 advises the arrest of Dalboquerque,
ii, 23
Dalboquerque embarked on board his vessel, 44
- Martim Guedez,
sent against Meliqueaye, iii, 23
captain, sent to Malaca, iv, 91
- Martim Vaz,
proceedings at attack on Ormuz, i, 116
takes part in the attack on Calayate, 220
attacks the Moors at Nabande, 250
- Mascate,
determination of Dalboquerque to sail for, i, 58
arrival of Dalboquerque and his fleet at, 72
negotiations of the Moors with Dal-
boquerque, 73, 74
account of the attack, 75-79 and sack of, 80, 81
the city burnt, 81, 82
description of, 83
governed by the Benjabar of Ormuz, 84
proceedings at, 203
destroyed by Dalboquerque, ii, xlvi the Goa fleet anchors off, iv, 136 the rulers give news from Ormuz, 136, 137
presents given to them, 137
- Massowah, or Musawwâ island,
See Meçua.
- Mateus,
ambassador from Prester John to Dom Manuel, iii, 250
is detained at Dabul, ib.
and sent to Dalboquerque at Goa, 251
particulars of his embassy, ib.
and journey to Portugal, 252, 253
his reception by Dom Manuel, 254
and death, ib.
- Meababu, captain of Cambay, receives the Portuguese ambassadors, iv, 95
negotiations by, 96

- Meacamadim,
a captain of Cambay, iv, 97, 98
- Meacoja, of Cambay, receives the Portuguese ambassadors, iv, 95
- Méca,
expedition to intercept vessels bound to India from, ii, 217 straits of, Dalboquerque sets sail for, iii, 55
commerce with Adem, iv, 14 importance of holding the, 24 pilgrimages to, interrupted, 25 supplies for, intercepted, 28 projected invasion of, 36, 37 omen concerning the temple of, 48
house of, 88, 176, 207 Dalboquerque's policy concerning the temple, 135, 136
- Meçua, or Massowah, the port of Abyssinia, iv, 35
- Medina,
adventures of Gregorio da Quadra at, iv, 50, 51
- Mekran, or Persian coast,
position of, iv, 154
- Melinde,
trade of ships from, with the island of S. Lourenço, i, 30 arrival of T. da Cunha at, 34 proceedings of the king, 34, 35 pilots from, 57
departure of F. da Tavora for, 199 arrival of V. da Gama at, ii, xvii,
xxi
visit of T. da Cunha and Dalboquerque to, xli
F. de Tavora sent to, for supplies, lv
storm at, and loss of a brigantine,
iv, 49
intercourse of Cambay with, 107
- Melique Coadragui,
son of Desturcão, iv, 99, 100
- Melique Çufecondal, joins Dalboquerque's attack on Goa,
ii, 86
sent with reinforcements to Man-daloy, 137
his conduct at the siege of Goa, 152 his imprisonment, lxxx, 154 is decapitated, 164
- Melique Çufergugi, or Çufegurgij, proceedings at Goa, ii, lxix, 85 his flight from Goa, 99
- Melique Distur,
Guazil of Calbergate, iii, 36
- Melique Rabão, lord of Carrapetão,
co-operates with the Hídalcão
against Dalboquerque, ii, lxxviii, 136
- Meliqueaye, or Miliqueaye, marches on Goa, iii, vi, 22 is routed by D. F. de Beja, 22 and at Divarij by G. de Pavia, 23, 24 demand for peace refused by Dal-
boquerque, 25
proceedings at Benasterim, 228, 232
evacuates Benasterim, 236
- Meliquiaz, or Miliqueaz, of Diu, sinking of his ship at Ormuz, i, 112 captain of Diu, assists Mirocen
against the Portuguese, 222
the Mahometan, naval force under him routed, ii, lix treatment of his messenger by Dal-boquerque, iii, 245
reception of Dalboquerque by, iv, 59
his duplicity, 60, 76
goes to Cambay, 77
- Men Rodriguez,
bears despatches from Dalboquerque to A. do Campo, i, 193, 194
- Menaïque, one of Timoja's captains, sent with reinforcements to Man-
daloy, ii, 136
defends Goa from the Hídalcão's men, 156
- Menamcabo,
a gold mine at, iii, 142
an embassy to Dalboquerque from, 161 description of the inhabitants of, ib.
- Mendafonso,
reaches Malaca, iv, 91
- Mergeu, port of,
Dalboquerque parleys with Timoja
at, ii, 81
- Meri, ship,
captured by J. Barreto, ii, xlviij proceedings concerning, li proceedings at Cananor concerning, lxxxviii, 206-209
capture of the, iv, 61
- Merlao, the deposed king of Onor, seeks aid from Dalboquerque, iii,
vi, 26
is appointed Farmer-General of Goa, 28 assignment of the money paid for rent of Goa by, 43
- Messará, the,
his expected descent on Ormuz, i, 163

- Moors (continued), proceedings of, at the island of S. Lourenço, 29, 30 proceedings at Braboa, 37 et seq.
 attacked and routed by T. da Cunha, 41-43 defend their fortress at Çoco against the Portuguese, 45-52 their defence of Curiate, 68-71 their defence of Mascate, 72-78
 their defeat, 79-81
 defiance of, at Soar, 86 and ultimate submission to Dalboquerque, 87-93 attack on their town of Orfação, 93-96 treatment by Dalboquerque, 97-100 at Ormuz, proceedings on arrival of Dalboquerque's fleet, 104 et seq.
 treatment of the Moors killed at Ormuz by the Portuguese fleet, 137 attack on the Moors at Ormuz, 173-177 refuse to sell water to the Portuguese at Nabande and Queixome, 181-185 routed at Queixome, 190 routed at Calayate, 217-221 driven from the wells at Lara, 244-246 butchery of, at Cananor, ii, xxi resist Dalboquerque's attack on Goa, 89 offer to surrender, 90 imprisonment of the chief Moors in Goa, lxxx, 148 their conduct on the attack by the Hidalcão on Goa, 155-158 one hundred and fifty principal men decapitated at Goa, 164 defeat of, at Pangij, 177 revolt of people of Goa, Saste, etc., against the Moorish Tanadares, 202 despatch their spice cargoes to the Straits, iii, 33
 the vessels wrecked, ib.
 discontinue their commerce with Calicut, ib.
 their general commercial relations, 33-34 proceedings of, at Malaca, 66 et seq.
 capture of Moorish vessels from Chaul and Dabul, 201 wreck of merchant ships at Cape Guardafum, and capture by Dalboquerque, 257 mutilated by Dalboquerque, iv, 28
- Moors (continued),
 grief of, at the death of Dalboquerque, 198 their appreciation of Dalboquerque's impartiality, 200 Morona, in Ormuz, proposal to erect a fortress at, i, 140
 Moses, ir, 30, 31
 Mosques, burned by Persians, iv, 184 Mostafação,
 conducts negotiations with Dalboquerque at Pangij, lxxxiv, 185 Muar, the river of,
 Tuão Nacem embarks for China at, iii, 131 notice of, ir, 91-93 Mulatto, a, prowess of, at the escalade of Adem, ir, 20, 21 Mutilation of Moors by the Portuguese, iv, 28
- N.
- Nabandé, in Ormuz,
 recommended as suitable place for a Portuguese fortress, i, 138
 the port surveyed, 139
 proceedings at, 181-185
 arrival of a Persian caravan at, 246 attacked and burnt, 247-251 suggestion to build a fort at, ii, 1 defeat of native archers at, lix loss of ships in a storm off, lxxxviii, 211, 212 Naçaradin,
 has his eyes put out by Cogeatat, i, 222 Naique,
 takes message from Timoja to Dalboquerque, ii, 105 Naires, the,
 explanation of the title, i, 4 expelled from Cochim, ib.
 routed at Repelim, 5 withstand the attack on Calicut and rout the Portuguese, ii, lxiv, 63-67 Nambeadarim, the, of Couião, explanation of the title, i, 9
 makes peace with Dalboquerque, ib.
 his proceedings on arrival of Moorish ships at Couião, 12, 13 Naodabegea,
 proceedings at Malaca, iii, 59 wounded and captured by A. Pereira, 61, 62 account of his magic bracelet, 62

- Calicut, conquest of.
 see Calicut, at the conquest of the king of 124
- Calicut.
 the king of it at war with the king of 124
 the king of it is invited to an ambassy with Da'boquerque to assist Calicut 127
 the ambassy of the king with Da' boquerque leaves 128
 the king sends an ambassy to assist it 128
 Da'boquerque's ambassy against him 128
 Da'boquerque's message to the king 128 Da'boquerque leaves 128
 the ambassy from the king of it returns to the king of India 128
 the king of Malacca to the king of 129 Da'boquerque sends an ambassy
 to 129
 the king of the king on the business of India 129
 the king sends an ambassy to Da'boquerque 129
 his reply to 129
 the king of it conquers Ormuz in the 129
 See Jan. 129, no. 11
- Natal, see the conquest of 128
country of 128
- Navigators of Guaharum and Adam.
 124
- Nagayagunc.
 possessed by the king 127 explanation of 127
- Nagayagunc, the.
 recent sale made from Da'bo-
 querque 127
 ask Da'boquerque to appoint Maria as governor of Goa 127
- Narain de Andrade.
 proceedings at attack on Ormuz 114 attacks the Mines at Nabandé 149
- Nicolas Coelho.
 discovers in India 11, xvii
- Nicolas Ferreira.
 a janissary, ambassador of the king
 of Ormuz 11, 133
 notice of him, 11, 133
 his opinion on the state of Ormuz, 134 interviews the king of Ormuz, 139 sent to search for fugitive Portuguese, 166
- Nizam Ferishta mentioned, appointed first governor of the king of Ormuz 124
- Nizam Sultan.
 takes part in attack on Ormuz, 1, 123
- Nizam Zaganjali.
 his ambassy indicating the commentaries of the Mirques de Pombal, 123
- Nizam Sultan.
 projected union of with the Red Sea by Alexander 11, 34 Da'boquerque intended to divert
 the 34
 Da'boquerque desires to divert the course of the 34
- Nizam Sultan.
 mediates between the governor of Malacca and King de Araya 11, ix, 11, 11
 further shown him by Da'boquerque 11, 124
 appointed governor of the Quilins and Chingis in Malacca, 128 asks for establishment of a mint in Malacca 127
 his efforts to re-establish commerce in Malacca, 124
 made governor of the Hindoos in Malacca, 124
- Nizam.
 history of Alexander the Great by,
 found at Orfação, 1, 99
- Nizam. See Nizam.
- Nizam, the fleet at 1, 59
- Nizam, or Nizam, the ancient Meroe, in Abyssinia 11, 36
- Nizam, in Orfação, mentioned at Orfação, 1, 43
governor of India in 1529, 11, xcii
- Nizam, Martin Raposo, employed in negotiations at Ormuz, 11, 149
- Nizam, Nizam Raposo, captain, sails with the fleet from Goa to
Ormuz 11, 133
- Nizam, Vaz de Castelo Branco, takes part in the attack on Çoco, 1, 45, 49, 51
 takes part in attack on Orfação, 96, 98 commands artillery at attack on
Ormuz, 112, 114
 is wounded at Ormuz, 160 accompanies F. Gomez to Port Feliz, 203
 takes part in the attack on Calayate, 220

- Nuna Vaz de Castelo Branco (cont.),
 attacks the Moors at Nabande, 249
 present at council at Cochim, ii, xc departure from Ormuz, 5 ordered to Malaca, 45 brings news of the treachery of the Malays, lxv, 73
 sent on expedition for supplies, 192
 captain, sails to Malaca, iii, 58 captures a Siamese junk, 65
 attacks Malaca, 102, 106, 123
- O
- Oaths,
 taken by Dalboquerque and Reys Nordim of Ormuz, iv, 145 of fidelity to the king of Ormuz, 149
- Omar,
 a pilot from Ormuz, i, 52 reference to his chart of Ormuz, 67 86, 93, ii, xlii
- Onor,
 a Moorish captain from, asks Dalboquerque's help against Cogeatat,
i, 148
 visit of V. da Gama at, ii, xxi proceedings concerning a ship captured at, li, lii
 Timoja sent to, for supplies, lxxxv, 196 arrival of Dalboquerque's fleet at, ii,
lxxxvii, 201
 despatch of L. Moreno to, lxxxix, 226 messengers sent by Dalboquerque to Timoja at, 53
 the fleet at, iii, 2
 the king seeks alliance with Dalbo-
 querque, 26
 the two rival kings of, 26, 27 return of Milrrhao to, on death of his rebel brother, 188
 condition of at the death of Dalbo-
 querque, iv, 206
 description of the fortress, by Pedro Barretto de Resende, 248
- Orfação,
 arrival of Dalboquerque with his fleet, i, 93
 account of the attack on, 94-98 Dalboquerque's treatment of the Moorish prisoners, 98, 99 the town burnt, 99
 description of the town, 100 destruction of, and mutilation of Moors at, ii, xlvii
- Ormuz,
 plan of, i, 112
 chart of the kingdom given to Dal-boquerque by a captured Moor, i, 52. See Omar
- Ormuz (continued),
 determination of Dalboquerque to sail for, 58
 adventures of Dalboquerque on his journey to, 60 et seq.
 fishing ships from Ormuz burnt, 61 proceedings of the fleet at Calayate, 62-67
 mutilated Moors from Curiate sent
 to, 71
 the importance of Mascate to Ormuz, 77, 83
 possessions of the king taken by the Benjabar, 84
 the king has sovereignty over Soar, 86 sends to the Moors there no aid
 against the Portuguese, 87
 the Moors throw off their allegiance, 90 information concerning Ormuz acquired at Orfação, 99 arrival of Dalboquerque's fleet at, 101-104
 preparations for the attack, 105
 negotiations, 105-111
 account of the attack and defeat of the Moorish fleet, 111-114
 plan of, 112
 the jetty attacked by Dalboquerque, 115-118
 the city traversed and the suburbs burnt, 119-121
 Cogeatat sends flag of truce, 120 and hostages, 122
 with message from the king of Ormuz, 123
 the latter willing to submit to Portuguese rule, 124, 125
 further negotiations, 125-128
 the amount of tribute, etc., fixed, 128-131
 a flag placed on the palace in sign of peace, 131-134
 account of the king's interview with Dalboquerque on the jetty, 134-137
 what passed concerning the erection of a fortress, 138-143
 the fortress commenced, 142
 further proceedings, 143-146
 the king asks to see a volley fired, 146, 147
 begs the ship Meri from Dalbo-
 querque, 148
 insubordination of the Portuguese
 captains, 149-160
 Cogeatat's rebellious messages to Dalboquerque, and his proceedings thereon, 160-164

- Ormuz (continued),
 withdrawal of men from the fortress, 164, 165
 messages between Dalboquerque and Cogeatar, 164-172
 the island attacked by the captains, 173 and the Moors routed at Turumbaque, 176
 the attack continued, 177-180
 the king begs for peace, 181
 the scarcity of water, ib. et seq.
 determination of Dalboquerque to quit the island, 195, 196 departure of the fleet, 197 complaint of Dalboquerque's doings at Ormuz made to the viceroy, 205-209
 condition of Cogeatar and the Moors
 at, 222, 223
 arrival of Dalboquerque at Ormuz, 224 scarcity of water and provisions, 225 negotiations between Dalboquerque and Cogeatar concerning, 238-243
 the city blockaded, 242 et seq.
 a chart of, given to Dalboquerque,
ib., xlii
 proceedings of Dalboquerque at, xlv
 the island taken, xlviii-1 a fortress built, 1
 further proceedings at, li-lv critical state of affairs at, lix
 a second blockade of, ib.
 desertion of Dalboquerque's captains at, 1
 their treatment by the viceroy, ib.
 complaints by Dalmeida of Dalboquerque's doings at, 4, 5 charges against Dalboquerque's proceedings at, 8, 9
 reference to merchandise and money which Dalboquerque brought
 from, 24, 25
 reference to desertion of captains at, 28, 29
 reference to, 43
 king of, sends ambassadors to Goa, lxxvi, 106
 their reception by Dalboquerque and the latter's letter in reply, 107-111, 119
 proceedings at, iii., 29
 trade of the Moors with, 33
 trade in horses between Goa and,
 40 arrival of D. Fernandez at Goa from, 191
- Ormuz (continued),
 importance of the site, iv., 24
 Dalboquerque's intention of wintering at, 30
 Gregorio da Quadra escapes from the Moors and reaches the fortress, 53
 Cogeatar advises the king to allow the erection of a Portuguese fortress, 77
 embassy sent to the king by the Xequé Ismael, 82
 Miguel Ferreira at, 86, 89
 trade voyages to, 103
 proceedings of Pero Dalboquerque at, 109 et seq.
 Dalboquerque determines to visit, with a fleet, 121
 the king accepts the religion of the Xequé Ismael, 134, 135
 Dalboquerque decides upon the expedition to, 134-136
 negotiations for the surrender, 136-147 article settling the trade of, with Persia, 154
 the king visits Dalboquerque, 157
 the king restored to his kingdom, 162
 the king visits Dalboquerque in the fortress, 163 et seq.
 the king's artillery conveyed to the fortress, 172
 interview of Dalboquerque with the
 king, 174
 fifteen blind kings of, sent to Goa, 179
 a Persian caravan arrives at, 181 situation and commerce of, 185-188 progress of building the Portuguese
 fortress, 188
 a governor appointed, 189
 the fortress entitled "Our Lady of the Conception", 190 Nicoláo Ferreira appointed chief guardian of the king, ib.
 various Portuguese officers of, 191 native preparations at Suez to rescue the kingdom, 201
 condition of, at the death of Dalbo-
 querque, 208
 description of, by Pedro Barretto de Resende, 231 et seq.
 Otor, or Tor. See Tor.
 description of, iv., 35
 Ourão,
 Moors from, sent to Cogeatar to Dalboquerque, i., 120
 trade of the Moors at, iii., 34

- Oyster Island,
in Red Sea, ir, 29
- P.
- Pacé, king of,
visit of Dalboquerque to, iii, 59 capture at sea of, 64
asks for assistance against a rebellious governor, ib.
proceedings of the king of, at Malaca, 168 submits himself to the king of Portugal, 169 proceedings of Jorge Dalboquerque at, ir, 131 Portuguese intercourse with the, 206
- Padua, Shoals of,
arrival of Dalboquerque at the, iii, 55
- Pages (M. Léon),
reference to his History of Japan, ii, cxvi
- Paio, or Pays, Pereira,
wounded at Calayate, i, 218
attacks the Moors at Nabande, 250
- Palmela,
convent of, presents to, by Dalboquerque on the capture of Goa, iii, v, 18
- Pam, or Pão, the king of, defends the attack on Malaca, iii, 106 withdrawal of the king of Malaca to, 131
- Pangij,
attack on, and capture of, the castle of, ii, 88-90 Dalboquerque anchors his fleet before, lxxxiii, 164 fortified by the Hídalcão, 166 the ships harassed by the Hídalcão's artillery, 171 the attack and capture of the fort by Dalboquerque, 173-177 negotiations at, 181, 184 command of the outwork given to M. Fragoso, iii, 242
- Parcati, Xerife,
lord of Judá, ir, 35
supports the inhabitants of Medina, 37
- Patané, city of, in Cambay, iv, 96
- Pateonur, Malay admiral, his fleet advances against the Portuguese, iv, 92 retreats, 93
- Patequitir, of Malaca, begs the lives of Utemutaraja and his children, iii, 149, 150
- Patequitir, of Malaca (continued), attempts to revenge their death, 151 rebellion of, iv, 90
- Patrão Mór, the,
present at interview between Dalboquerque and J. Barreto, ii, 13
- Paulo da Gama,
discoveries in India, ii, xvi
- Paverij,
account of shipwreck at, ii, 212
- Pearl fishery,
at Dalaca I., ir, 45, 47
at Barem I., 114
- Pedir,
the fleet of Dalboquerque anchors at, iii, x, 58 Portuguese intercourse with the kingdom of, ir, 206
- Pedrafonso de Aguiar,
present at council on proposed expedition against Calicut, ii, 55
takes part in attack on Calicut, 69
- Pedralvarez, page of the Count of Abrantes, proceedings at C'oco, i, 51
takes part in attack on Orfação, 96 appointed scrivener to Pero Vaz Dorto at Ormuz, 143 bears letters from Dalboquerque to the viceroy, 196
- Pedralvarez Cabral,
his alliances with Cananor and Cochim, i, 2 expeditions to the East, ii, xviii
- Pedralvres Froes,
takes part in attack on Ormuz, i, 115
- Pedreanes Lamprea,
takes part in the defence of Calayate, i, 220
- Pedro Barretto de Rosende, reference to his MS. account of expeditions to India, ii, xxix his account of Dalmeida's death, xli his history of Goa, xvi extracts from his work, iii, 265 et seq.; iv, 226 et seq.
- Pedro de Covilham, expedition to India, ii, viii
- Pedro Dataide,
assists in expelling the Naires from Repelim, i, 5
- Pedromem,
interview with Dalmeida on his arrival at Cochim, ii, 18, 19
- Pegu,
embassy from the king to Dalboquerque, ir, 89
trade voyages to, 103

- Pegu (continued),
 Portuguese intercourse with the, 206
 the Pegus make overtures to Dalboquerque, iii, 125 allowed to go home, 141
- Pekin,
 message to the king of China at, iii, 132
- Pentam, description of, iii, 75, n.
- Perim, or Meyun, Island, iv, 27 explored and named by the Portuguese, 26-29, 54, 55
 description of, ib.
- Pero de Afonseca, or Dafonseca, de Castro,
 captain of the fleet, iii, 1
 takes part in the attack on Goa, 8
 takes part in the siege of Benasterim, 211, 217, 219
 sails from Goa, iv, 2
 explores Adem, 13
 assists when the flagship grounds off Luya, 41
- Pero Barreto,
 insults Dalboquerque, ii, 38
- Pero Corço, captain,
 sails with the fleet from Goa to Ormuz, iv, 133
- Pero Coresma,
 expedition to Cape of Good Hope, ii, xxxii imprisoned for refusal to swear fealty to Dalboquerque, 232 released, ib.
 captain of the fleet, iii, 2
 takes part in the attack on Goa, 8
 proceedings at Goa, 51
 sent back in disgrace to Portugal, 54
- Pero Correa,
 takes part in the attack on Roçalcão, iii, 223
 wounded, 228
 endeavours to convey remains of Dalboquerque to Portugal, iv, 210
 his death, ib.
- Pero Dalboquerque,
 takes part in attack on Roçalcão, iii, 223
 wounded, 228
 sails from Goa, iv, 2
 takes soundings off Adem, 7 commands the fleet sent to C. Guardafum, 77 proceedings on the voyage from Goa to Cape Guardafum, 108 at Ormuz, 109 et seq.
- Pero Dalboquerque (continued), explores the Persian Gulf, 114 et seq.
 failure of his negotiations with the king of Ormuz, 116
 returns to Goa, 118
 captain, sails with the fleet from Goa to Ormuz, 132 employed in the negotiations at Ormuz, 143
 notice of, 170
 nephew of Dalboquerque and son of Jorge Dalboquerque, appointed governor of Ormuz, 189
- Pero Dalpoem, auditor of India,
 proceedings at attack on Ormuz, i, 116
 takes part in the attack on Calayate, 220 bears messages between Dalboquerque and Cogear, 239-242 attacks a Moorish paráo at Ormuz, 245
 attacks the Moors at Nabande, 249 is sent to discuss terms of peace with the Hidalcão's messengers at Pangij, ii, 182 orders his bombardier to shoot João Deiras, 183 reports the affair to Dalboquerque, ib. attends further negotiations at Pangij, 184 collects evidence against Ruy Diaz, 190 is sent by Dalboquerque to arrest D. Mendez and his captains, 231 acts with M. de Lacerda against D. Mendez, iii, 52 draws up a report on D. Mendez's disobedience to order, 54
 sails to Malaca, 58
 attacks a Javanese junk, 62, 63
 attacks Malaca, 102, 121, 124
 further proceedings in Malaca, 149
 embarks for India, 168
 sails with Dalboquerque from Malaca for India, 134 adventures on the voyage, 194-198 present at an interview between Dalboquerque and Prester John's ambassador, 252 secretary for India, interviews of, with the king of Ormuz, iv, 139-142 employed in negotiations at Ormuz, 149 et seq.

- Pero Dalpoem (continued), punishment awarded by, to Portuguese fugitives, 167 balances the Portuguese claim on the king of Ormuz, 171 Dalboquerque declares before him the succession to the governorship of Ormuz, 188, 189
 notice of, 191
 present at the death of Dalboquerque, 196 arranges the details of Dalboquerque's obsequies, 197-199
- Pero de Faria,
 in command at Malaca, iii, 166
- Pero Fernandez Tinoco, letter to Dalboquerque, ii, 15
- Pero Ferreira,
 receives charge of the fortress of Çocotora, ii, lxiii, 63 appointed captain of Çocotora, 122 is captain of Fort S. Miguel, 123 captain, sails with the fleet from Goa to Ormuz, iv, 133
- Pero Gomez,
 takes part in the attack on Ormuz, i, 115
- Pero Gonçalves,
 is wounded at attack on Ormuz, i, 114
 sent by Dalboquerque after the runaway captains at Ormuz, 195 endangers the fleet by bad pilotage, 214, 215
 attacks the Moors at Nabande, 249 chief pilot, takes part in attack on Malaca, iii, 113, 125
- Pero, or Pedro, Mascarenhas, receives Dalboquerque on his arrival at Goa, iii, 220 reconnoitres Roçalço's forces, 221 takes part in the attack, 223
 his bravery, 226
 further proceedings, 230, 232
- Pedro Mascarenhas,
 asks permission to return to Cochim, 242
 but is persuaded to stay in Goa, ib.
 to remain captain of Goa, iv, 1 his reception of an ambassador from Narsinga, 122 recalled from Malaca to Cochim, 129
- Pero da Nhaya, or de Anhaya, account of his expedition to India, ii, xxxi
- Pero Queimado,
 sent to Surat and Cambay, iv, 94, 95
- Pero Salgado,
 scrivener of the fortress of Malaca, iii, 166
- Pero de Sousa,
 attacks the Moors at Nabande, i, 250
- Pero Vaz,
 conducts inquiry into accusations against Dalboquerque, i, 209
- Pero Vaz Dorta,
 factor of T. da Cunha's fleet, i, 22
 parleys with the Moors at Çocotora, 46 examines the fleet at Çocotora, 57 negotiates with the Moors at Calayate, 63
 proceedings at Mascate, 73
 wounded at Ormuz, 118
 conducts negotiations with the king of Ormuz, 124, 128
 further proceedings at, 133, 134
 proceedings at Ormuz, 143, 157
 bears messages between Cogear and Dalboquerque, 161 proceedings at the port of Nabande, 183
- Persia. See Xequé Ismael. flight of a Christian from Moors travelling to Ormuz from, ii, 9 Moors of, come to interview Dalboquerque, iv, 181 a caravan from, arrives at Ormuz, ib.
 fame of Dalboquerque throughout, 207
- Persian Gulf,
 soundings and explorations of the, iv, 113
- Persian MS., life of Alexander, given to Dalboquerque at capture of Orfação, i, 99
- Persians,
 attacked by Dalboquerque at Nabande, i, 247-251
- Pervaloy, lord of,
 co-operation with the Hídalço against Dalboquerque, ii, lxxviii, 136
- Pestilence at Cairo, iv, 76
- Philippine Islands,
 occupied by Spain in 1564, ii, xciv
- Plague at Lisbon, iv, 199
- Pombal, Marquez de,
 the Epistle of N. Pagliarini dedicating the Commentaries to him, i, xxxi
- Pomp,
 at the reception by Dalboquerque of the Xequé Ismael's ambassador, iv, 152

- Pocaracem, or Porcassem, the Moor, reference to, iv, 79 accompanies embassy to Batalalá, ii, 226 result of his negotiations at Batalalá, 241
- Portrait of Dalboquerque made for Xequé Ismael, iv, 81
- Portugal,
 rise of the Empire in India, ii, i, et seq.
 expedition of João I against the Moorish princes of Africa, v account of the fleet to India in 1497, ii, xvi, xvii account of the 1500 fleet, xviii, xix account of the 1501 fleet, xx account of the 1502 fleet, xxii, xxiii account of the 1503 fleet, xxvii, xxviii account of the 1504 fleet, xxix account of the 1505 fleet, xxix-xxxii account of the 1506 fleet, xxxiv-xxxvi account of the 1507 fleet, xliv account of the 1508 fleet, lv, lvi account of the 1509 fleet, lxi, lxii account of the 1510 fleet, lxxxvi, lxxxvii the king assumes title of "Lord of Guinea", vii review of Indian affairs after Dalboquerque's death, xcii, et seq.
 decay of power in the East, xciii, xciv account of the bibliography of Portuguese-Indian literature, cvii account of the first dealings of Portugal and China, iii, xxvi-xxix account of the 1511 fleet to India, 207
 account of the 1512 fleet, 208 1,700 Portuguese in the fleet, iv, 1 orders from, 3
 policy of Dalboquerque for maintaining dominion in Arabia and India, 24 captive Portuguese in the hands of the Xequé of Adem, 46, 49 a messenger despatched overland through Abyssinia by Dalboquerque, 48 a messenger sent to, 58 merchandise left at Diu to start a factory, 59 influence of, in Calicut and Cochim, 64 details of the fleet sent to India in 1513, 80
- Portugal (continued), Dalboquerque sends horses and gold pieces, etc., to the king, 88, 90 fleet of A.D. 1514 to India, 119 advantages of native Indian alliances with, 176 Dalboquerque advises the Portuguese to conciliate the Xequé Ismael, 184 composition and list of the captains of the 1515 fleet to India, 194 influence of, in India and to the eastward, 206 Dalboquerque desires that his remains may be conveyed to, 210 account of the 1515 fleet to India, 227
 account of the 1516 fleet, 228
 account of the 1517 fleet, 229
 first entry of Portuguese into the Red Sea, iv, 26 flight of seven Portuguese from Ormuz in a boat, 166 capture and cruel punishment of the Portuguese, 166, 167
- Powder Island, the, arrival of the fleet at, iii, 62
 arrival of Dalboquerque at, 194
- Presents,
 detailed notice of, iv, 82, 85, 88 sent to the king of Cambay, 94 sent by Dalboquerque to the Xequé Ismael, 175 and to the Xequé's ambassador, 178 sent by Dalboquerque to the king of Portugal, 179
- Preste João, or Prester John, dealings with T. da Cunha, i, 202, 203
 reference to, ii, 229
 sends an ambassador to Portugal, iii, xxxix, 250 who is detained at Dabul, ib.
 and sent to Dalboquerque at Goa, 251
 particulars of his embassy, ib.
 and journey to Portugal, 252, 253
 his reception by Dom Manuel, 254 territory of, described, iv, 28, 32 intended diverting of the Nile by Dalboquerque in the land of, 36 extent of his territories, 38 called Elati, or Emperor, ib.
 Dalboquerque determines to visit the land, 47 prophecy concerning, 48
 policy of Dalboquerque towards, 207
- Proverb concerning Ormuz, 186

- Pulatecão,
sent by the Hídalcão to attack Goa,
iii, 187
particulars of his expedition, 188, 189 fortifies Benasterim, 189 further proceedings, 190-192
death, 192
- Q.
- Queixome,
flight of Moorish ships from Ormuz to, i, 115
recommended as suitable place for a Portuguese fortress, 138
the port surveyed, 139
proceedings at, 183, 184, 189-193
state of the wells at, 240 the island of Lara garrisoned with soldiers from, 244
loss of D. de Melo's vessel at, 253 sighted by Dalboquerque's fleet, ii, xlvii
native force routed at, liii
- Quíloa,
departure of L. Coutinho for, i, 25 arrival of V. da Gama at, ii, xvii,
xxi
- Quilins, the,
in Malaca, iii, 128, 151
- Quillinan (Edward), translation of Camões' poem on the doubling of the Cape of Good Hope, ii, xiii-xv
- R.
- Rajalinga, king of Linga, relations with the king of Malaca,
iii, 129
- Ramilá, canal, or Ramleh, traces of the, iv, 34
- Raphael Savonarola,
account of his Orbis Terrarum, ii,
cxiv
- Ras Alargah, near Jebel Azan. See Alaca.
- Ras Mussendom,
arrival of the fleet at, ii, xlvi
- Ras Sedour, in Gulf of Suez. See Acintura.
- Ras Zebid. See Zibit.
- Raxel, or Rexil, in Persian Gulf, iv, 115
position of, 180
province of, in Persia, 186
- Red Sea,
adventures of Dalboquerque's fleet in, i, 58, 59
Dalboquerque's journey to, in search of the Sultan's fleet, ii, lxvii, 80
- Red Sea (continued), cruise of the Portuguese fleet off the Straits, iii, 33 method of navigating, iv, 28 et seq.
deficient in fresh water, 29-33 prevalent idea of the cause of the redness, 33, 34
present nature of its climate, 33 Dalboquerque's intention of entering the Straits, 130
- Red Sea Straits,
intention of Dalboquerque to sail into, iii, 255
Dalboquerque penetrates the, iv, 26-28
description of the lands adjacent, 28-39
importance of the position, 185 Dalboquerque, the first Portuguese who penetrated, 209
- Regunecerage, made governor of the Javanese in Malaca, iii, 166
- Repelim, island of,
defeat of the Naires at, i, 4, 5 subjugation of, by Dalboquerque, ii,
xxv
- Resalgate, cape,
the fleet at, i, 60
arrival of the fleet at, 214
- Retelim Chetim, governor of Bracelor, sent by the king of Narsinga to visit Dalboquerque, iv, 121-124
- Rexnordim v. Reys Nordim.
- Reys Butos, or Rajputs, iv, 84, 96, 106
- Reys Hamed, a Persian,
his intrigues at Ormuz, iv, 136 et seq.
sends Haçem Ale to the Portuguese fleet, 137
character of, 140
his intrigues, 147
history of his rebellion, 148 Dalboquerque determines upon his
death, 155
events preceding the assassination, 156-158
his tragical end, 158, 159 his relatives rise up, on hearing of
his death, 160
they are quelled, 161-162
his body not surrendered by the Portuguese, 163
his family driven out of Ormuz, 167 the brothers of, surrender the fortress of Monejão, 168
suspected intrigues of his brothers, 171
- Reys Mudafar, of Ormuz, brother of Reys Hamed, iv, 143, 146, 149, 150

- Reys Nordim, or Rextordim, receives the Portuguese flag of peace at Ormuz, i, 132-134
 is present at the interview between Dalboquerque and the king of
 Ormuz, 135, 136
 advice on proposed erection of a fortress in Ormuz, 141 proceedings concerning the tribute due to Xeque Ismael, 144-146 proceedings with Dalboquerque at
 Ormuz, 162, 163
 death of his son at Ormuz, 180 his sons banished from Ormuz, 222 governor of Ormuz, policy of, iv, 82 reception by, of Miguel Ferreira, 89 influence of, 119
 Dalboquerque's opinion of, 135 his nephew, Reys Hamed, intrigues against him and the king, 136, et
seq.
 his son sent as a hostage to the
 fleet, 139
 interview of, with Dalboquerque, 144 informs Dalboquerque of the intrigues of Reys Hamed against the king of Ormuz, 147 visits Dalboquerque in company with the king and Reys Hamed, 157, 158
 the palace of Ormuz restored to, by Dalboquerque, 163
 reprisals by, 168
- Reys Xarafo,
 chief officer of the king of Ormuz's guard, iv, 174
- Roçaleão, captain of the Çabaio, co-operates with the Hidaleão against Dalboquerque, ii, lxxviii, 136 attacks Dalboquerque's fleet at Bradez, lxxxv, 194
 sent to supersede Pulatecão, iii, xxxii, 190
 ejects him from Benasterim, 192 seeks entry into Goa, 193 defends Dalboquerque's attack on Benasterim, 216
 advances on Goa, 221 particulars of Dalboquerque's attack on his army, 222-225
 his flight, 226-228
 his defence of Benasterim, 229-233 asks for truce, 233
 terms of surrender considered, 234-236 evacuates Benasterim, 236, 237 anxiety to make peace with Dalbo-
 querque, 248
 his interview with the same, 249
- Rodrigo, Padre Fr.,
 mediates between Afonso and Francisco Dalboquerque at Cochim, i, 7, 8
 in charge of the Christians at Coulão, 15
- Rodrigo de Lima,
 sent as ambassador to Prester John,
iii, 254
- Rodrigo Rabelo de Castelbranco, accompanies D. Fernando Coutinho,
ii, lxii
 takes part in attack on Calicut, 64, 67, 70
 captain of Cananor, proceedings on arrival of Dalboquerque's fleet at Cananor, 202, 203, 213
 present at interview between D.
 Mendez and Dalboquerque, 220 sent on cruising expedition to Monte de Deli, 230 ordered to arrest D. Mendez and his
 captains, 231
 stationed at Divarij, iii, 25 appointed captain of the fortress of Goa, 42
 in charge of the city of Goa, 55 attacks Pulatecão at Benasterim, 189
 his death, ib.
 grief of Dalboquerque at news of
 his death, 206
- Rodriguez Dias,
 reflections on his treatment by Dal-boquerque, i, xviii, xix
See Ruy Diaz.
- Rubaca, village of, iv, 13
- Rubães,
 name of the native Red Sea pilots,
iv, 26
 inhabit the island of Sheikh Malu, 29 employed by Dalboquerque as pilots, 40, 41
- Rumes, the,
 expedition against, ii, lx, 1, 3 Dalboquerque determines to drive them from Goa, 81-84
 escape from the attack on Goa, 92
 the wives and children of the Rumes at Goa taken as slaves, lxxx, 149 news of their expedition to reinforce Goa, lxxxvii, 203
 Dalboquerque receives news of, from two captured Jews, 228
 news of, iii, 51
 proceedings at Malaca, 69 expedition from Portugal against an expected invasion by, 209, 210 the rumour of the attack denied, 211

- Rumes, the (continued),
 notice of, iv, 8
 notice of their reduction, 35 news of their preparations against Ormuz, 171 preparations to resist the, 175 merchants from, arrive at Ormuz, 181
- Rustazes, the,
 rebel against the king of Ormuz, i, 222 overtures of friendship made them by Dalboquerque, 243, 244
- Ruxia,
 flight of a Christian slave from, to Dalboquerque, ii, 9
- Ruy de Araujo, receives Dalboquerque at Cochim, i 4 present at interview between Dalboquerque and J. Barreto, 13 letter to the viceroy concerning Dalboquerque, 16 interview with Dalmeida on his arrival at Cochim, 18, 19 is threatened by him, 21 his advice asked concerning the non-arrival of pepper at Cochim, 25
 his arrest ordered by Dalmeida, 43 sent to Malaca, 45
 his arrest, lxv, 74
 his treatment by the Bendarí at Malaca, iii, ix, 44, 45 sends letter asking Dalboquerque to come and release him, 46 escape of some of his companions from Malaca, x, 58 account of their sufferings, 59 news of his safety, 65
 negotiations for his release, 66-70 receives letter from Dalboquerque, 91 and sends reply, 92
 gains his liberty, 96
 his opinion of the mode of attack on Malaca, 101, 102 asks Dalboquerque to show favour to Ninachatu, 126 sent against the prince of Malaca, 130 reads the articles against Utemutaraja, 148 made chief Alcaide of fortress of Malaca, 166
- Ruy de Brito Patalim,
 captain of the fleet, iii, 1
 proceedings at the attack on Goa, 5, 8 made captain of the fortress at Malaca, 166
- Ruy de Brito Patalim (continued), captain of Malaca, sends word to Dalboquerque of the condition of the Portuguese, iv, 90 returns from Malaca to Goa, 131
- Ruy da Cunha,
 arrives at Cochim with messages from Dom Manuel, i, 211 present at interview between Dalboquerque and the viceroy, ii, 1 deserts Dalboquerque at Ormuz, ib.
 his treatment at Cananor by Dalmeida, ib.
 his behaviour to Dalboquerque, 4
 his desertion reported to the king, 5
- Ruy Diaz,
 takes part in attack on Ormuz, i, 115 charge against, ii, lxxxiv, 188 condemned to death, 190 attempted rescue, 190, 191
 death, 192
See Rodriguez Dias.
- Ruy Freire,
 accompanies D. Fernando Coutinho to India, ii, lxii
 present at council on proposed expedition against Calicut, 55
- Ruy Galvão,
 takes part in the attack on Roçalcão, iii, 223
 wounded, 228
 sails from Goa, iv, 2
 takes part in escalade of Adem, 19
 notice of, 26
 sent to Zeila, 55
 doings there, 58
 called Ruy Gonçalves in error, ib.
 sent forward to Goa, 59 sails for Adem and C. Guardafum, 77, 78 sails with the fleet from Goa to Ormuz, 132
- Ruy Gomez,
 is sent on an embassy to Xequé Ismael and the king of Ormuz, ii, lxxvi, 110 text of the letters which he carried, 111, 119 and of the instructions of his action to Xequé Ismael, 114 arrival at Ormuz and reception by Cogeatar, 120 death by poison, ib., lxxvi
- Ruy Gonçalves,
 assists in the attack on Roçalcão, iii, 222
 wounded, 228
 attack on Benasterim, 232

- Ruy Paez,
negotiates with Destureão, iv, 96
- Ruy Palha,
takes part in escalade of Adem, iv, 19
- Ruy Pereira,
arrival at the island of S. Lourenço,
i, 25
reports his exploration of the island to T. da Cunha, 26
joins in the attack on the island, 28-30
proceedings in Madagascar, ii, xl
his vessel wrecked, ib.
- Ruy Soares,
proceedings at Cocotora, i, 55 proceedings at Melinde, 202
proceedings at Cananor, 255 expected to join Dalboquerque's fleet, *xl*iii, *xl*vi news of his joining Dalmeida, lvi
at Cananor, lx
- S.
- Saba, or Zebayer, island.
See Ceibão.
- Sabão, or Sabon, straits, site of, iv, 90
- S. Augustine, cape of, attempt of T. da Cunha's fleet to double it, i, 23
- S. Bras,
Dalboquerque's fleet at, i, 17
arrival of Dalboquerque at, ii, xxvi evidence of A. de Saldanha's visit to, xxvii
- S. Helena,
first inhabited by F. Lopez, iii, 239, 240
account of his life there, xxxv-xxxix
- S. James,
reverence of Dalboquerque for, iii, 101, 103
- S. John,
shipwreck of the ship so called, ii,
lxxxiii, 170
- S. Lourenço, or Madagascar, island of, determination of T. da Cunha to explore, i, 25, 26
the attack and sack of the island, 29, 30
further proceedings of T. da Cunha
at, 30-32
the shallows of, i, 45
notice of, iv, 107
- S. Mary, the reef of, the fleet of T. da Cunha at, i, 29
- S. Miguel,
condition of the garrison there, i, 203
- S. Thomas, island of, proceedings of J. Queimado at, i, 28
- Sal (? Salee, in Marocco), Dalboquerque expects fleet from, i, 144
- Saldanha,
a watering station near Cape of Good Hope discovered, i, 33
- Salsete,
journey of Timoja to, ii, 105
- Sancho the Brave,
king of Castile, iv, 213
- Sancho de Noronha,
chief Alcaide of Goa, iv, 133
- Sanctiago, Order of,
Dalboquerque, after death, vested in the habit of a "Commendador" of the, iv, 196, 197
- Sanctiago*,
a brigantine so called, iv, 192, 193
- Sangradura, or Singradura, description of the, iv, 31
- Sanguiaçar, lord of,
co-operates with the Hidalcão against Dalboquerque, ii, lxxviii, 136
- Santa Cruz*, ship so called,
account of its wreck, ii, 211, 212
- Sargol, king of Ormuz, relations of Cogeatar with him, i, 125, 128
his widow assists the king of Ormuz against the Portuguese, i, 246
- Saste, revolt of the people of, ii, 202 arrival of T. da Cunha at, iii, 3 Meliqueaye at, iii, 22
- Savião,
distance from Siam, iii, 158
- Savoy,
the younger Dalboquerque goes in the Portuguese fleet to, iv, 217
- Seal, a golden, iv, 74
- Sebastião,
king of Portugal, iv, 210, 212 dedicatory epistle of the author of the Commentaries to him, i, li
- Sebastião de Miranda,
present at council at Cochim, ii, xc
attacks Malaca, iii, 102
- Sebastião Toscano,
makes a funeral oration in honour of Dalboquerque, iv, 212
- Sertão Island,
in the Red Sea, iv, 32

- Sheikh Malu, or Oyster Island, iv, 29
- Siam, or Sião,
 Dalboquerque sends embassy to the king, iii, xxv, 114 silver brought from, 142 arrival at Údia, 153 reception by the king, 153, 154 reply of the latter to the embassy, 154, 155 a further embassy to Siam, 156 description of the kingdom of Siam, 158 embassy from the king to Dalboquerque, iv, 89 described to Dalboquerque by Manuel Fragoaso, 90 Portuguese intercourse with the, 206
- Sião Gaber, or Ezion Geber, mistaken reference to, iv, 39
- Silk trade of Persia, iv, 187
- Silver,
 mines in Sião and Pegu, iii, 142, 143
- Silvestre Corço, captain,
 sails with the fleet from Goa to Ormuz, iv, 132
- Simão Afonso,
 is left with his ship to watch the port of Calicut, ii, 71 at Calicut, iii, 31
 captain, sails to Malaca, 58
 attacks Malaca, 102, 112, 124
 sent to explore the Moluccas, 162
- Simão de Andrade,
 present at council on proposed expedition against Calicut, ii, 55 forgiven by Dalboquerque for his ill-treatment of him, 61 accompanies Dalboquerque's expedition to Red Sea, 81
 attacks Goa, 89
 interview of João Machado and Dalboquerque on board his galley, 162 attempts to rescue Ruy Diaz from execution, 190, 192
 put in irons, 192
 released, 208
 captain of the fleet, iii, 1
 wounded at Goa, 13
 sails to Malaca, 58
 attacks Malaca, 102, 124, 130
 sent on board captured Moorish vessel, 201 the Moors take the ship to the Maldivé Islands, 201 and desert him, 202
 sails from Goa, iv, 2
 explores Adem, 13
- Simão de Andrade (continued),
 sails with the fleet from Goa to Ormuz, 132
 employed in the negotiations at Ormuz, 143
- Simão Dalçaçeva, or de Alçaçeva, captain, iv, 194
- Simão Martinz,
 present at council on proposed expedition against Calicut, ii, 55
 accompanies Dalboquerque's expedition to Red Sea, 81
 attacks Goa, 89
 reconnoitres the Hídalcão's fleet, 178 sent to intercept ships bound for India, lxxxix, 217 returns with captured ship to Cananor, 223 returns on same expedition, 230
 captain of the fleet, iii, 1
 captain, sails to Malaca, 58
 his vessel lost, ib.
 attacks Malaca, 102, 107, 124
 embarks for India, 168
 mutiny on board his junk, and death, 196
- Simão Rangel,
 conducts the negotiations with the Çamorim, iii, 31
 returns to Goa, 32
 is carried off by Mafamede Maçari to Adem, 203
 account of, 204
 reference to his embassy to Calicut, 243
- Simão da Silveyra,
 captain, iv, 194
- Simão Velho,
 takes part in the attack on Calayate, i, 220
 attacks the Moors at Nabande, 249
 sails from Goa, iv, 2
 explores Adem, 13
 assists when the flagship grounds off Luya, 41
- Simon, son of the Commendador of Almourol, takes part in the attack on Ormuz, i, 115
- Sinai, Mount, iv, 30, 31
- Sinde,
 description of, by Pedro Barretto de Resende, iv, 238 et seq.
- Singapura, or Singapore, straits of, importance of the position, iv, 185
- Singradura. See Sangradura.
- Slaves, trade in,
 intercepted by Dalboquerque, iv, 28

- Ormuz (continued),
 withdrawal of men from the fortress, 164, 165
 messages between Dalboquerque and Cogear, 164-172
 the island attacked by the captains, 173
 and the Moors routed at Turumbaque, 176
 the attack continued, 177-180
 the king begs for peace, 181
 the scarcity of water, ib. et seq.
 determination of Dalboquerque to quit the island, 195, 196
 departure of the fleet, 197 complaint of Dalboquerque's doings at Ormuz made to the viceroy, 205-209 condition of Cogear and the Moors at, 222, 223 arrival of Dalboquerque at Ormuz, 224
 scarcity of water and provisions, 225 negotiations between Dalboquerque and Cogear concerning, 238-243
 the city blockaded, 242 et seq.
 a chart of, given to Dalboquerque, ii, xlii proceedings of Dalboquerque at, xlv
 the island taken, xlviii-1
 a fortress built, 1
 further proceedings at, li-ly
 critical state of affairs at, lix
 a second blockade of, ib.
 desertion of Dalboquerque's captains at, 1
 their treatment by the viceroy, ib.
 complaints by Dalmeida of Dalboquerque's doings at, 4, 5 charges against Dalboquerque's proceedings at, 8, 9 reference to merchandise and money which Dalboquerque brought from, 24, 25 reference to desertion of captains at, 28, 29
 reference to, 43
 king of, sends ambassadors to Goa, lxxvi, 106 their reception by Dalboquerque and the latter's letter in reply, 107-111, 119 proceedings at, iii, 29
 trade of the Moors with, 33
 trade in horses between Goa and, 40
 arrival of D. Fernandez at Goa from, 191
- Ormuz (continued),
 importance of the site, iv, 24
 Dalboquerque's intention of wintering at, 30
 Gregorio da Quadra escapes from the Moors and reaches the fortress, 53 Cogear advises the king to allow the erection of a Portuguese fortress, 77
 embassy sent to the king by the Xequé Ismael, 82 Miguel Ferreira at, 86, 89
 trade voyages to, 103
 proceedings of Pero Dalboquerque at, 109 et seq.
 Dalboquerque determines to visit, with a fleet, 121 the king accepts the religion of the Xequé Ismael, 134, 135 Dalboquerque decides upon the expedition to, 134-136
 negotiations for the surrender, 136-147 article settling the trade of, with Persia, 154
 the king visits Dalboquerque, 157
 the king restored to his kingdom, 162
 the king visits Dalboquerque in the fortress, 163 et seq.
 the king's artillery conveyed to the fortress, 172 interview of Dalboquerque with the king, 174
 fifteen blind kings of, sent to Goa, 179
 a Persian caravan arrives at, 181 situation and commerce of, 185-188 progress of building the Portuguese fortress, 188
 a governor appointed, 189
 the fortress entitled "Our Lady of the Conception", 190 Nicoláo Ferreira appointed chief guardian of the king, ib.
 various Portuguese officers of, 191
 native preparations at Suez to rescue the kingdom, 201 condition of, at the death of Dalboquerque, 208
 description of, by Pedro Barretto de Resende, 231 et seq.
 Otor, or Tor. See Tor.
 description of, iv, 35
 Ourão,
 Moors from, sent to Cogear to Dalboquerque, i, 120
 trade of the Moors at, iii, 34

- Timoja (continued), his defence of Goa, 157, 158 accompanies F. Perez in his attempt to sail over the bar at Goa, 170 refusal of Dalboquerque to deliver him up to the Hidalcão, lxxxiv, 187 sent to Onor for supplies, 193, 196 obtains supplies for Dalboquerque, 195 receives letter from the king Dom Manuel, 202
 interview with Dalboquerque at Onor, ib.
 gives news of events at Goa, ib.
 letter to, from Dalboquerque, 227 prepares to co-operate with Dalboquerque in the second Goa expedition, 241
 interview with Dalboquerque at Onor, iii, 2
 his help expected in the attack on
 Goa, 7
 Dalboquerque warned concerning, 35
 death of, 188
- Tolbort (Mr. T. W. H.), account of his papers on the Portuguese in India, ii, cv, cvii account of his map of Goa, cxxii
- Tor, or Toro,
 in Red Sea, iv, 30, 31
 position of, 32
See Otor.
- Tortures,
 the Moors captured at the attack on Calayate mutilated, i, 221
 Moors mutilated, iv, 28
 the sign of the Moor wrought on Portuguese captives, 53 cruel treatment of fugitives, 166, 167 See Fernão Lopez.
- Trade,
 encouraged at Ormuz by Dalbo-
 querque, iv, 169
- Tremecim,
 trade of the Moors at, iii, 34
- Trindade, ship,
 adventures of, on shipwreck of the Flor-de-la-Mar, iii, 195-197
- Tripoli,
 trade of the Moors at, iii, 34
- Tristão da Cunha, ordered to India as governor, i, 20 his blindness, ib.; ii, xxxvii treatment of Dalboquerque, 20-22 discovers the island of "Tristão da Cunha", 24; ii, xxxviii arrives at Moçambique, 25
- Tristão da Cunha (continued), determines to explore the island of Lourenço, 26-28
 attacks it, 29, 30
 desires to explore the whole island, 32
 sends Dalboquerque to Çocotora, ib.
 narrowly escapes destruction, ib.
 arrives at Melinde, 34
 sails for Anjoja, 35 attacks and destroys it, 35, 36 proceeds to Braboa, 37 demands tribute from the king, 38, 39 threatens to destroy the city, 41
 attacks it, 42
 is wounded, and knighted by Dalboquerque, xli, 43
 returns to Portugal, xliii sets fire to the city, 43 and departs for Magadaxo, 44 alters his course to Çocotora, 45 finds a fortress erected by the Moors,
ib.
 demands their surrender, 46 attacks and takes the fort, 47-52 conciliates the Christians there, 53 appoints various officers, 54, 55 sails for India, 55
 and thence to Portugal, ib.; ii, xliiii messenger from the viceroy to Dal-boquerque, ii, 7 message concerning the appointment of Dalboquerque to India, 28
 account of his expedition to India in 1506, xxxiv-xliiii
- Tristão da Cunha islands, discovered, i, 24; ii, xxxviii
- Tristão Déga,
 appointed tre surer of the mint at Goa, ii, 129
 sent on an embassy to Cambaya, iii, 245 gives to Dalboquerque at Chaul an account of his visit to Cambay,
iv, 60
 factor, sails to Adem ar fum, 77, 78
 proceedings of, at Or remains as factor 115
- Tristão de D
 procedia
 212
- Tristão Vi
 discover
- Tuão Bar
 defend his dea...

GLOSSARY
OF
REFERENCES TO FOREIGN AND UNUSUAL WORDS.

---

A.

Adaião, iv, 211. See Adail.
 Adail, ii, 137; iii, 244; iv, 83
 Adarga danta, iii, 157
 Agomia, i, 117, 137
 Aguazil, or Alguazil, ii, 104; iii, 189;
iv, 78, 79
 Albarrada, iii, 158; iv, 94
 Albecora, i, 62
 Alfenim, iv, 37
 Alferce, i, 87
 Alfenadas unhas, iv, 37
 Alicerce, iii, 17
 Alimaria, i, 84
 Aljofar, i, 235, etc.
 Almadia, i, 26
 Almazem, iii, 158
 Almotacel, iii, 43
 Almozarife, ii, 126; iii, 14; iv, 190
 Alqueire, iv, 88
 Amainar de ramania, iv, 41
 Amor, ii, 138; iv, 35 por amor dos Alarves (for fear of the Alarves) Anafil, i, 86, 104; iii, 186
 Andor, iii, 198
 Anilado, iv, 94
 Arratel, iii, 80
 Arremeço, lanças de, iii, 18, 122
 Arrombada, iii, 215
 Atalaia, i, 113; iv, 148, etc.

B

Bade, ii, lxxii
 Badem, i, 92
 Bahar, iii, 150
 Bajn, iii, 161
 Balandrão, iii, 89
 Banco de pinchar, iii, 215
 Barca, ii, 230
 Barcaça, iv, 10
 Bastardo, iii, 138, 140
 Bastiães, ii, 205
 Bastiaina, ii, 224
 Bazalisco, iii, 212

Bedem, ii, 30
 Bela, ii, lxx
 Bendará, iii, 87
 Benjabar, i, 83
 Berço, ii, 69, 156; iii, 127; iv, 175,
 etc.
 Betlem, ii, 48
 Biocos, iii, 67; iv, 32
 Bombarda, i, 242
 Bombardas de cepo, ii, 86
 Bombardo, iv, 23
 Bonito, i, 61
 Botafogo, ii, 224
 Bragani, ii, 129

C.

Cabaia, iv, 100, 104, 145, 158
 Cabaio, ii, 82
 Cabals, iii, 62
 Cabaya, iv, 95
 Cabria, i, 47
 Caciz, iii, 69, 166; iv, 76
 Caimal, i, 3; ii, 27; iv, 70
 Cairo, iii, 215
 Caixe, iii, 77, 138
 Calaim, iii, 45, 78, n.
 Çalema, iv, 100
 Camarabande, iv, 104
 Camelo, i, 73; ii, 156; iii, 212; iv, 23
 Çamorim, explanation of, i, 1, etc.
 Candura, iii, 203
 Cão, iv, 175
 Carapuça, iii, 162; iv, 82
 Caravela, i, 4, 16, 22, 23, etc.
 Carreta, iv, 95
 Cattle, ii, 204; iv, 99
 Catual, ii, 72
 Catur, ii, 55; iii, 206, 218
 Ceitil, iii, 78
 Cepta, iv, 82
 Cerame, i, 115; ii, 5, 8, 65, 66; iv, 67, 156
 Cesto, iii, 215

Chamalote, ii, 206
 Chatim, ii, 225
 Chitim, ii, 130
 Cocos, ii, 79
 Coge, i, 227; iii, 147
 Comiada, iv, 10
 Conaique, iii, 229
 Congo, ic, 237
 Coromandel, vara de, i, 41
 Corpo de Satanás, iii, 151
 Covado, i, 176; iv, 94, 145
 Cris, iii, 85, 86
 Cruzado, i, 17, 170; ii, 130; iv, 145
 Cubelo, iv, 17

D.

Dar tratos, ii, 44
 Dinheiro, ii, 130, iii, 138
 Dragão, iii, 159

E.

Embarcação, ii, xxiii
 Endoenças, iv, 53
 Erpes, ii, 180
 Esconvés, iii, 63
 Espera, ii, 127, 129; iii, 121, 138
 Espingardão, iii, 103, 121
 Estaleyro-Mor, i, x; iv, 216
 Estribeiro-Mor, iv, 216

F.

Falcão, i, 242
 Faluz, i, 223
 Fardo, i, 65; ii, 226; iii, 159
 Fidalgo, i, 211
 Figueira de Inferno, ii, 79
 Frusseria, iii, 88
 Funda, iii, 158
 Fusta, i, 144; ii, li, 81, 85, etc.

G.

Ganda, or Rhinoceros, iv, 85, 104
 Garça, ii, 48
 Gate, iv, 83, 127
 Gavea, iii, 122
 Gelua, iv, 42
 Gemma, iv, 31, 32
 Goazil, or Guazil, i, 63
 Guazis, iv, 76
 Goroupés, iii, 63
 Gudões, iii, 127

H.

Herva, iii, 109

I.

Ilheo, ii, 218
 Infausona, iv, 213

J.

Jaoa, ii, 74
 Jelua, or Gelua, i, 226
 Jogue, ii, 87

K.

Kaimal, i, 3
 Kris, iii, 85, 86

L.

Lanças de arremeço, iii, 122
 Lanchara, iii, 67
 Lassamane, iii, 87
 Laudel, i, 105; iii, 127
 Lenhonoe, iii, 159, 200

M.

Macuas, ii, 58
 Malaqueses, iii, 139
 Malvas, ii, 19
 Mancebia, iv, 169
 Marco, i, 200
 Matical, iii, 142
 Meirinho, i, 191; ii, 39; iii, 145
 Menagem, torre de, i, 45; iii, 136;
iv, 73, 147, 215
 Meri, i, 105; ii, 122
 Metical, or Mitical, iii, 142
 Morte natural, iii, 149
 Mortos, i, 131
 Mulás, Muluas, or Mollahs, iv, 162, 168
 Mungo, ii, 132

N.

Naique, ii, 105
 Naire, i, 4
 Nakhoda, ii, 224
 Nambearim, i, 9
 Negodaxemeçadin, i, 228

O.

Orsa, iv à, iv, 41
 Ouvidor, ii, 136; iii, 149

P.

Pacharim, ii, 126
 Padeses, or Padez, ii, 178; iv, 167
 Padrão, iii, 162
 Palmito, ii, 195
 Pangajaoa, iii, 60
 Parao, i, 4; ii, liii
 Pardao, ii, 95, 103; iv, 47
 Passo seco, iii, 215
 Patamares, ii, 78
 Pipa, iii, 113
 Poial, or Poyal, ii, 68
 Porcelana, iv, 83
 Postigo, iv, 73

- Provedor, iv, 211
 Pruzo, iv, 7
 Pudricoraja, iii, 37
- Q
- Quina, iv, 215
 Quinca, iv, 49; iii, 53, 157
 Quinca, iii, 145
- R
- Ramada, iv, 234
 Rebelião, iii, 23
 Reis, iii, 41
 Relógio de mar, i, 25
 Rea, iii, 147
 "Requisito sobre o café da enzada", a governo, iv, 215
 Ruiva, iv, 18
- S
- Sandoa, iii, 38
 Sangradura, or Singapura, iv, 31
 Seta, iv, 19
 Serrawati, iv, 191
 Sembah, iv, 191
 Sesta Feira de Fimbrizas, iv, 5
 Siendang, iv, 191
 Soldo, iv, 188, 197
 Sombro, iv, 182
 Sphera, iii, 195
 Sudra, iv, 191
 Swaga, iv, 191
- T
- Tafoca, i, 18, 34; iv, 37
 Taja, iv, 205
- Talhado, a pique, iv, 11
 Tamung, iii, 37
 Tamar, iv, lxxvii, 125; iv, 128
 Tarado, iv, 158. See Terçado.
 Taxia, iii, 18
 Terado, i, 137. See Tarçado.
 Terraia, i, 105; iv, 53, 115, 192, 193
 Titiran, iv, lxxiv
 Torre de Menagem, i, 45; iii, 136; iv, 73, 147, 215
 Trabuco, iv, 11
 Traquete, iii, 63; iv, 7
 Travessa, iv, lxxviii
 Tulo, iii, 131
 Tundeia, iii, 139
- V
- Vara de Coremandel, i, 41
 Veador, iv, xvi
 Vereadores, iii, 43, 206
 Vintem, iv, 129
 Virtude, iii, 45
 Voga arrancada, iv, 179
- X
- Xabandar, iv, lxxviii; iii, 87; the description at, iv, 132, is incorrect Xerafim, i, 43, 82, 129, 170; iv, 124;
iv, 149, 168, 170, 171, 192, etc.
- Z
- Zarucho, iv, 20
 Zambua, i, 100
 Zambuco, i, 29; iv, 206
 Zamorim, i, 1. See Çamorim.
 Zarvatana, iii, 104

910
H157
710.69

JUL 12 1972

DEC 8 1972

Stanford University Library
Stanford, California

In order that others may use this book, please return it as soon as possible, but not later than the date due.

